AIRSHIP COLLISION AVERTED BY CURTISS

American Flying at Rheims Soared Over French Machine Which Crossed His Course.

FEAT WAS WILDLY APPLAUDED

Crowds at Aerodrome Saw Three Aeroplanes in Air at Once for First Time in History of Sport.

RHEIMS, Aug. 19.—The American aviator, Glenn H. Curtiss, at sundown to-day added a dramatic feature to the trial flights of the aeroplanes entered for the contests of aviation week by skillfully guiding his machine above another aeroplane and averting a collision in the air that seemed imminent.

The feat was accomplished when, for the first time in history, three heavier-than-air craft were manoeuvring at the same time. All were flying rapidly, when suddenly Curtiss saw M. Dumanest in an Antoinette monoplane approaching at right angles and on the same level with him. Curtiss elevated his planes, his machine instantly shot upward and soared safely over the Frenchman. The thousands of spectators who lined the aerodrome watched the manoeuvre with bated breath, but when they saw it successfully carried out they applauded the American wildly. The third machine in the air at this time was that of M. Tissandier.

Experts to-night were agreed that Mr. Curtiss had made a fine demonstration of his skill and ability to control his machine during the evolution. They declared that his biplane was a real racer.

The wind which had been master of the aeroplanes for two days, suddenly died out at sundown, and the aviators rushed to the sheds and dragged out their machines. Thousands of eager spectators crowded about them, but mounted gendarmes and dragoons soon cleared the aerodrome so that the trials could proceed. Count de Lambert, on a Wright model, was the first of the aviators to start, and made a complete circuit of the aerodrome. M. Tissandier, also on a Wright biplane, followed him.

Curtiss Machine Looks Small.

Then the Curtiss machine, looking smaller and more compact than the others, was placed in position for a flight. Curtiss was still limping and used in walking a gnarled stick, which was presented to him by the village curé; but, like M. Bleriot, who, before crossing the English Channel in his monoplane, threw aside his crutch, Curtiss mounted the seat of his biplane unencumbered.

"Where will you land?" somebody asked him.

"I will land right here," answered Curtiss, and, smiling, he started his motor. After a short run over the ground the aeroplane ascended and made a wide turn, and then described evolutions back and forth over the aerodrome. Meantime M. Dumanest had started across the field in one of the Antoinette machines. Then occurred the incident which proved Mr. Curtiss's command of his machine and won the plaudits of the French spectators.

At the end of his manoeuvres Curtiss, true to his word, landed without accident at his place of starting after having been in the air four minutes. The altitude reached by him was 150 feet, fifty feet higher than any of the others. Count de Lambert and M. Tissandier each made flights of twelve minutes during the evening, and Hubert Latham took a few short spins about the course and was given an ovation by the spectators. M. Bleriot came out on the field with his monoplane, but darkness prevented his making a flight.

After his flight Mr. Curtiss said:

"I am entirely satisfied with my aeroplane which the recent accident has not in any wise hurt. I used an eight-cylinder motor to-day. The only trouble I experienced was with the propellers, which revolved so fast that the draught from them strained the rudder. This, however, can be remedied for future flights by strengthening the rudder."

Aviation Fine Weather Sport.

Mr. Curtiss to-night joined the other experts in a statement to the effect that aviation is a fine weather sport and that people must not expect flights to be made in all sorts of weather. Personally Mr. Curtiss said he did not intend to take any risks. He has decided not to enter the passenger carrying test, as he has no hope of defeating Bleriot in it. He intends, instead, to devote himself to the speed contests.

During the evening Count de Lambert and M. Tissandier received numerous congratulations on their flights this evening.

It is said that one of the surprises of aviation week will be the appearance of a mysterious aeroplane, built along the lines of the Wright machines, which has been used successfully in a number of secret flights held recently near Paris. The pilot of this machine only abandoned a project to fly from Paris down to Rheims because of the possibility of damaging the flier. This aeroplane takes to the air immediately without running over the ground or making use of outside force. It rises aloft by varying the angle of the planes and the force of its propellers.

Along the route from Rheims to the Plains of Betheny, where the aerodrome is situated, there was to-day a long procession of wagons laden with provisions, while the crowds of spectators bound for the practice flights of the aviators used all sorts of vehicles, from hayracks to automobiles. Booths of various kinds and restaurants are springing up along the road, and a curious sight is the number of trees and fences which are covered with advertisements of various types of aeroplanes.

Many Americans Arriving.

Rheims is filling up rapidly with visitors from all parts of the world for aviation week, and the ancient capital of Champagne is showing more animation and activity than it has at any time since 1901, when the Emperor of Russia visited the city and reviewed the French Army. All the hotels are engaged to the last room. A special lighting agency has been organized by the committee, and demands for accommodations are coming in from far and wide. A good many of the visitors are arriving in automobiles, and the streets are filled with rapidly moving cars. A number of Americans already have arrived and taken up their quarters. Numerous fêtes and entertainments have been arranged at the local theatres and music halls for the entertainment of the crowds expected next week.

The members of the committee are working day and night to finish the multitudinous preparations for the forthcoming contests. The aerodrome, which until recently was an expanse of plowed fields, has been given over to landscape gardeners, who will accomplish wonders in a short time. Twelve hundred pine trees have been transplanted to the field to afford shade and give artistic decoration, while the tribunes for spectators are to be bordered by extensive beds of flowers. In order to meet the complaints of the aviators regarding the condition of the course, an army of peasants has been enlisted to level and clear the ground. The committee is confident that everything will be in readiness by Saturday, the day before the races begin.

HARRIMAN'S HEALTH HOPEFUL

Physicians Think He Has Many Years to Live—Busy in Paris.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—It is probable that many alarming reports have been cabled from this side about the physical condition of Mr. Harriman. I have made a careful investigation, and from the highest sources I can state that Mr. Harriman's condition is by no means critical and that his physicians think his "after cure" on shipboard and at his country home will restore him to better health than he enjoyed before he left America.

The "cure" at Bad Gastein is most enervating, and it is an invariable rule to send patients of advanced years to a quiet mountain resort to take what is known as an "after cure." Mr. Harriman's active temperament made it impossible for him to settle down to this humdrum existence, and his physicians thought it best to let him have his way and proceed home.

While at the residence of Mr. Stillman, in the Rue Rembrandt, he saw many business associates and was immersed in affairs until the time of his departure. Mr. Harriman is an overworked man, but his physicians are confident that by taking care of himself he has still many years to live.

A conference of the most intimate friends and physicians of E. H. Harriman was held yesterday morning, and it was determined to arrange to take him off of the steamer on his arrival on a small boat and move him at once to his country place to recuperate.

$25,000 JEWELS LOST ON BOAT

Package Disappeared on the Erie Ferry Line on June 29.

Through a "Lost and Found" advertisement in THE TIMES of to-day, information is conveyed of the loss on the Erie Railroad Ferryboat Passaic, on June 29, of a package containing a valuable array of jewelry. It belonged to the firm of Dreicer & Co., jewelers, of 560 Fifth Avenue, and to recover it the firm has offered a reward of $5,000. It is stated in the advertisement that "absolutely no questions will be asked" of the one restoring the lost jewelry.

The package contained one diamond tiara, a large bow-knot brooch, a diamon-paved watch, and an emerald of large size. It was lost on the boat making a trip from Jersey City at 10:40 A. M.

After the loss of the package became known it was reported to the Erie Railroad, and since then the railroad's police have been doing all they could to find it. At the offices of the Erie in Jersey City it was stated last night that the package, as reported to the railroad's detectives, contained jewelry worth considerably more than $25,000. The officials in charge last night did not have the full details as to the manner in which the jewelry was lost, but it was stated that the package was believed to have been in charge of one of the employes of Dreicer & Co., who was commissioned to bring it here from some Western city. On the ferryboat, when nearly at the end of the journey, the messenger was jostled in a crowd, it was said, and the package was lost without his knowing it, until the boat had reached the slip on this side.

Since then more than a dozen detectives have been searching for the lost jewelry. None of the firm of Dreicer & Co. could be found last night.

ALFONSO GROWS WHISKERS.

Also Has His Hair Cut Short—Courtiers Surprised by Change.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—A San Sebastian dispatch says that King Alfonso has paid a brief visit there, coming from Madrid in order to see the Queen and the royal children.

His Majesty's appearance caused a mild shock among the members of the Court who remained in San Sebastian when the King went to Madrid. During his absence his Majesty has grown side whiskers like those worn by his father, Alfonso XII.

In fact, he looks like a different person altogether. While the whiskers have appeared most of his hair has disappeared, being now cut very short.

CHASED INTO RIVER BY BULL.

Montclair Young Man Had Diverted Animal's Attack from a Girl.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Aug. 19.—In saving Miss Ruth Manning of Paterson from an enraged bull near Singac this morning Reynold Thomas and Guy Taylor of this city had a narrow escape from being gored to death.

The bull was owned by a farmer named Pier, who lives not far from the home of Mme. Schumann-Heink, near Singac. It was rampaging up and down the road when Miss Manning came along. Some crimson ribbons on her gown aroused the bull to attack.

Bellowing furiously the bull charged on Miss Manning, who turned and ran. The young men arrived on the scene just as the bull started after her.

Young Thomas hit the bull with a stone and it turned on him and bowled him over. The bull was trampling on Thomas and attempting to gore him when Taylor smashed him over the head with a fence rail.

Then the bull rushed at Taylor, who dashed off at a ten-second clip. The bull was young and speedy, too, and began to gain on Taylor. Feeling that he could not keep up the pace for long Taylor turned toward the Passaic River, which runs parallel with the road at this point.

Into the river Taylor dashed, followed by the bull, which, after wading out shoulder deep, abandoned the chase.

At this juncture the owner of the bull and farmhands arrived, and with pitchforks finally drove the bull back to the farm.

Young Thomas was not severely hurt when trampled on by the bull, and Taylor did not mind his ducking. Miss Manning warmly thanked the two young men.

EXPELS 7 CADETS FOR HAZING SUTTON

President Taft Signs the Order Approving the Findings of West Point Board of Inquiry.

CADET SERIOUSLY INJURED

Was Attacked with Tent Poles at Night on Sentry Duty—Mother Says She Is Sorry for Dismissed Cadets.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Aug. 19.—An order from President Taft dismissing seven cadets from the United States Military Academy was announced to-day at noon when the cadets were assembled on parade. The cadets were concerned in the hazing of Cadet Rolando Sutton, a brother of Lieut. James N. Sutton of the Marine Corps at Annapolis, a second investigation into whose death has resulted in the finding that Lieut. Sutton killed himself either by accident or design.

The cadets who are dismissed are:

JOHN H. BOOKER, JR., of West Point, Ga., first class.
RICHARD W. HOCKER, Kansas City, Mo., third class.
EARLE W. DUNMORE, Utica, N. Y., third class.
CHAUNCEY C. DEVORE, Wheeling, West Va., third class.
GORDON LEFEBVRE, Richmond, Va., third class.
ALBERT E. CRANE, Hawarden, Iowa, third class.
JACOB S. FORTNER, Dothan, Ala., third class.

The action of the President, which was definitely forecast in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Aug. 2, upholds the action of the board which investigated hazing at West Point, and of Col. Hugh L. Scott, Superintendent of the Academy.

The text of the order, signed by the Secretary of War and approved by the President, has not yet been made public.

On the morning of June 14 last, Cadet Rolando Sutton of the fourth or "plebe" class, reported sick and was ordered to the hospital badly bruised and suffering great pain. He did not report for duty again until twenty-three days later, and his case immediately became a matter of concern to the upper classmen, when it was seen that the authorities proposed to dig to the bottom of it.

Before the board of investigation which was immediately ordered, Sutton, true to the unwritten code of the corps, proved a reticient witness. The regulations provide that any cadet implicated in a case of hazing must answer frankly and fully all questions put to him, no matter whom they may incriminate. Sutton's testimony, as transcribed on the records of the board, has not been given out, but the gossip has been that though he gave a complete narrative of his adventures on the night of June 13, he professed to have been unable to recognize any of his assailants.

The board, whose report led to the dismissal of the cadets, was presided over by Lieut. Col. Sibley, with Capt. Oscar J. Charles of the Seventeenth Infantry and Capt. M. F. Smith of the Twentieth Infantry as members. It was in session almost daily for over a month. During this period 135 cadets were examined under oath as to hazing conditions at West Point this year. Its report was presented to Col. Scott several times, and sent back by him for the elucidation of certain points and for further investigation.

On the night of the attack, for which the cadets have been dismissed, Cadet Sutton was walking on a lonely post when a number of third classmen, dressed in white sheets, suddenly ran out of the woods and attacked him with tent poles.

Sutton, who is an athlete, was on the alert, and succeeded in capturing two of his assailants, but he was disabled by a blow from a tent pole after he had beaten off three attacks. He was injured so seriously that he was three weeks in the hospital. It was said at West Point then, unofficially, that had President Roosevelt upheld the recommendations of the Howze board for the dismissal of eight cadets under the law governing hazing, instead of pardoning them and allowing six of the young men to return to the Academy, the hazing of Cadet Sutton and other attacks on fourth class men this year would not have occurred.

Col. Scott, Superintendent of the academy had nothing to say to-night beyond denying that Sutton is still under treatment for his injuries. Varicose veins have troubled him and are still being treated by the surgeon. They have nothing to do with his hazing, he said.

The dismissed upper classmen are supposed to nurse no hope of reinstatement, as the President has already acted on their case, and is not likely to reverse his decision.

The correspondence between the War Department and William Loeb, the President's secretary, last Summer on the hazing at West Point was published in THE TIMES of May 30. The letter from Mr. Loeb to the War Department from Oyster Bay, dated July 23, 1908, read:

> My dear Secretary: Returning herewith the papers in the hazing cases in the Military Academy, which accompanied your letter of the 22d inst., I beg to state that the President approves of the action taken.

Subsequent to the writing of this letter, Secretary of War Wright asserted that the enactment of Congress, making dismissal for hazing obligatory, did not describe hazing. He asserted that picking up ants and counting them and other performances of a like nature were not described as hazing in Webster's Dictionary. As a result six cadets were pardoned; only two, Rossell and Weaver, were dismissed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—News of the severe penalty imposed by the Secretary of War and approved by the President on the seven West Pointers who were convicted of having taken part in the hazing of Cadet Rolando Sutton was received at the War Department to-day in silence. No surprise was felt, as the steps that would be taken to suppress hazing were known here several days ago. But all officers had been cautioned not to disclose the nature of the penalty in advance of its announcement on the cadet parade ground, and now, on the general principles of discipline, they refuse to discuss it.

There is, however, an undercurrent of comment on the fact that Mr. Taft should have dealt so much more rigorously with the offending youths than did Col. Roosevelt last year for a somewhat similar offense. In that incident eight cadets were suspended by the West Point authorities, while a decision was reached as to the definite expulsion of all of them. After President Roosevelt's position in the matter was stated and corrected several times, he finally decided on the expulsion of only the two first-class men, and allowed the others to return to the Academy after a year's rustication.

Mrs. Rosa D. Sutton, mother of the cadet whose hazing started the investigation, expressed herself this afternoon as deeply grieved at the severity of the sentences imposed on the tormenters of her son.

"I am very, very sorry for the boys," she said. "I consider the affair a boyish prank, and don't see why the seven cadets should have been dismissed. For my part, I never asked that anything be done to them. Their dismissal will naturally have a serious effect on their future careers, and it is too bad that their punishment should be so severe.

"The letters I receive from my son are to the effect that he is getting along splendidly. He does not appear to be in the least unhappy."

PUSHED CAR UP HILL TO HELP BRIDEGROOM

Passengers Unite to Aid Man Going to His Wedding Stalled on a "Dead" Car.

BRIDE LONG IN SUSPENSE

Sonberg Is Finally Propelled to New Rochelle by Hand Power and the Wedding Comes Off.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 19.—For a while last night it looked like a case of "Waiting at the Church" for Miss Laura Arabelle Randall, a pretty nineteen-year-old High School girl of New Rochelle, who was to be married to John Sonberg, son of August Sonberg, a wealthy builder of White Plains. The ceremony was scheduled to take place at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's father, N. P. Randall, Superintendent of construction work for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, at 19 Hillside Avenue, New Rochelle.

The bridegroom with his best man, William Ford, son of the real estate broker, took a trolley car at White Plains, and expected to be in New Rochelle at 6:30 o'clock, which would have given them an hour before the arrival of the guests. They were loaded down with suit cases, bouquets for the bride and bridesmaids, and wedding gifts which had been sent in advance by friends.

Between Tuckahoe and New Rochelle there was a flash, and the car carrying the bridegroom came to a sudden stop. It was found that the motor had burned out. To add to the difficulty, another car, which came to the rescue of the disabled one, also burned the motor out trying to get up a steep hill.

This left the two cars completely disabled, and the bridegroom began to look at his watch. He looked anxiously about for a vehicle or automobile to carry him to New Rochelle, but there was nothing in sight.

After the car had been stalled about an hour word was passed from one passenger to another that Sonberg was due in New Rochelle to be married and that the delay might upset the wedding. This caused his fellow-passengers to help him, and a man with a loud voice got up and said:

"Here's a man that's going to be married, and the wedding party is all waiting for him in New Rochelle. Let's get out and push the car."

The passengers, numbering about fifty thereupon got off and pushed the car up the hill. There was only one man who refused to help, a German weighing 350 pounds. He would not budge and the crowd hooted him, and one woman called him "unsentimental."

After the car had been pushed up the hill it ran along pretty well for a distance of its own momentum, but before long it came to a second hill and everybody had to pile off and push again. The bridegroom and his best man joined in with the others.

When Sonberg and his best man got to the home of the bride they found that the minister and guests had been waiting nearly an hour. The bride was nearly frantic. She had been keeping the wires busy to White Plains, but had been unable to get any trace of Sonberg.

Her fears were much increased because she had gone through another romance about a year ago, when young Leo Wolf, the son of a prominent family, fell in love with her, and when ordered by his father to give her up so that the affair should not interfere with his studies, ran away from home. Before going he took his father's revolver. For this breach of discipline the elder Mr. Wolf had his son arrested, charging him with petit larceny, but he was discharged on the ground that he was not of age.

When the bridegroom failed to arrive last night his father, the elder Mr. Sonberg, took an auto and went out to look for him. No tidings came from him, and, at a late hour, it was learned that his machine had broken down near White Plains.

It was not until 9:15 o'clock that the ceremony could be performed, as the Rev. Dean Leland, pastor of the Baptist Church, having waited until 8 o'clock, had to go back to his church and conduct the Wednesday evening prayer meeting, and then make a second trip to the Randall home.

The couple will live in White Plains, where they have furnished a home on Kensico Avenue.

ROCKEFELLER AIDING CHINA.

Said to be Behind Movement to Promote Higher Education in the Orient.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 19.—Dr. Ernest De Witt Burton, member of a commission sent out by the University of Chicago to investigate educational conditions in the Orient, is at the Ingraham Hotel before proceeding to his home. The investigation which occupied Dr. Burton in China is of a movement, backed by John D. Rockefeller, to undertake an extensive educational enterprise in the Orient.

"If anything is done by the University of Chicago for the educational benefit of these Chinese," Dr. Burton said, "the money will come from the university treasury. Of course, the university is deeply indebted to Mr. Rockefeller for his gifts, and as this commission was sent out from our institution, naturally he is behind the project.

"We found that China is doing her best to establish higher education along Western lines, and although in some particulars she is not succeeding in the fullest sense of the term, there is yet a strong tendency in the right direction which the expenditure of several millions will greatly promote.

"Just what will be done as a result is not for me to say. It may be Mr. Rockefeller will determine to undertake a work of education in the Orient, but I am not to speculate as to that."

HAD $1,000,000 BAD MONEY IN A TRUNK

Prisoner Held with His Bundles of Counterfeit Spanish Notes Said He Wanted Wealth.

CAUGHT THROUGH BROTHER

Had Tried to Sell the Bills and When Arrested After a Long Chase Told Where to Find Principal.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 19.—With $1,000,000 worth of Spanish and Mexican counterfeit money in his brass-bound trunk John C. Roberts, formerly of this city, sat in the Secret Service Agent's office in the Custom House this afternoon and confessed that he had made the counterfeits and that if the Government Secret Service men had not closed in on him when they did he would soon have been a rich man.

As it is, however, Roberts's trunkful of gaudy counterfeit money will be confiscated by the Federal officials and Roberts will probably serve a term behind prison walls, as he says he will plead guilty to the charge of counterfeiting at the October term of the United States court.

The first clue to the scheme came through Chief of Police Haager from a local broker. This broker told Chief Haager that a man had approached him and had asked him if he would consider a proposition to dispose of counterfeit foreign money. Chief Haager told the broker to seem to enter into negotiations with the man, and had him meet at a hotel where detectives watched him. The detectives shadowed the man, who proved to be M. O. Roberts, the brother of John Roberts. Detectives arrested him several days ago. He had been shadowed to his room. When arrested he had one of the bogus notes in his possession.

Chief Haager notified Secret Service Agent Donella of the arrest. Marion Roberts was taken to the Secret Service office, and shortly afterward William Koenig, a printer, was arrested. It is charged that he helped print the money.

Marion Roberts told the Secret Service officials that his brother had gone to Simpsonville. On investigation it was found that his trunk had been sent to that place. The Secret Service agent set out for Simpsonville at once, and to-day succeeded in running his man down near Veechdale.

Roberts confessed to the Secret Service agent and showed his trunk, which was packed full from top to bottom with the crisp new money. The bills were 100-peso certificates, and are fair specimens of the counterfeiter's art. The only reason that Roberts had not gone to Mexico a week or so ago to put the money on the market was that he was waiting for a perforating machine and a device for numbering the bills, he told the agent.

Agent Donella and his prisoner arrived in Louisville this afternoon. Roberts is a son of the late Judge John Roberts, formerly of the law firm of Mundy, Parsons & Roberts. He is a large man, weighing probably 240 pounds. He was poorly dressed, having on a serge suit, very much worn; a battered straw hat,, and low shoes with several breaks in them. He wore a celluloid collar, but no necktie. His clothing was spattered with mud as though he had been traveling over country roads either on horseback or in a buggy.

Commissioner Cassin set Roberts's bond at $15,000, but Roberts waived a preliminary examination, saying that he would plead guilty.

At the Secret Service agents's office Roberts appeared cool. When he was questioned about his plea he said:

"What do you suppose I'm going to do with that trunk full of counterfeit money in my possession? I did the work and I'm going to take the responsibility.

"Louisville is my home," he added, "and I hate to have this come out here. I thought I was going to get rich, that's all. I don't deny making the money, and I was going to dispose of it the best way that I could. I never dreamed that the Federal officers were on my trail."

Roberts wouldn't say whether he regarded his bills as a good imitation of the original.

"It's as good as I could do," he said, "and I hoped that it would make me rich for life. I did not intend to pass any of it in the United States."

Asked where he printed his 100 peso notes, Roberts said:

"I printed them out home in Jefferson County. I wasn't far from Louisville, but I don't propose to state exactly where. It would not do any good to reveal the whereabouts of the place because the house was vacant when I went into it, and is now vacant."

CLUTCHED BY A DEVIL-FISH.

Fisherman Fights for Life with a Giant Octopus in Newfoundland Waters.

After an exciting fishing experience in Conception Bay, N. F., William H. Bucholz and James V. Lorber of Baltimore arrived yesterday on the Red Cross liner Rosalind on their way home to Baltimore. While out fishing on Aug. 3 Bucholz, in trying to land a big fish, was pulled overboard and dragged some distance from the boat before he could get free of the line.

Finding that the boat, in which his friend and Jacques Le Burin, the guide, were trying to reach him, was a long distance away, Bucholz swam to what he thought was a log on the water.

The instant he grasped the log it came to life, and the man found himself in the grasp of a giant octopus.

"I strove to escape," said Bucholz, "but the whiplike arms entangled me. The giant squid was thrashing the water like mad. I shouted for help, and Lorber and Jacques headed the boat for me."

Lorber could not wait for the manoeuvring of the boat, but, seizing a short-handled hatchet, he jumped overboard and swam to his friend. He chopped away at the tentacles of the octopus, and after several had been severed the fish released its hold and sank. The guide assisted both exhausted men back into the boat.

When Bucholz arrived yesterday his body still bore the marks of the tentacles that had encircled him.

SHACKLETON TO BE REPAID.

British Premier Will Ask for $100,000 for South Polar Voyage.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The debt incurred by Lieut. E. H. Shackleton and the members of his family in connection with his south pole expedition is to be liquidated by the Government. The Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that he would ask the House to vote $100,000 for that purpose.

ANITA STEWART WEDS SOON.

Will Become Prince Miguel's Bride in Scotland Sept. 15.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The date has been fixed for the wedding of Miss Anita Stewart, daughter of Mrs. James Henry Smith by her first marriage, and Dom Miguel of Braganza, son of the Portuguese Pretender.

Sept. 15 is the day, and the ceremony will take place at Tulloch Castle, the Dingwall place in Scotland taken by the prospective bride's mother for the season. The wedding is to be very quiet and only the members of the two families are to be present.

ENGINE LOSES ITS TRAIN.

As It Pulls Into Essex Fells the Cars, 200 Yards Behind, Try to Catch It.

Special to The New York Times.

CEDAR GROVE, N. J., Aug. 19.—There was excitement here to-night as the 6:50 o'clock train arrived from Essex Fells. The engine came in with a blast of its whistle, but the train was 200 yards behind and coasting slowly toward the station. The engine and tender had parted from the rest of the train a quarter mile or so away.

The passengers on the train were much exercised over the accident, but neither the engineer nor fireman realized that anything out of the ordinary had happened till the engineer glanced back to get the signal for starting.

According to commuters the engines on the Erie Road which runs through here have exhibited a tendency recently to part from their trains.

PROF. SUMPLOWICZ A SUICIDE.

Famous Sociologist and His Wife Take Poison at Graz.

GRAZ, Styria, Aug. 19.—The famous sociologist Ludwig Sumplowicz, Professor of Political Law at Graz University, and his wife, Francisca, committed suicide today by taking poison.

The reason assigned for the deed is that Prof. Sumplowicz was suffering from an incurable disease.

Submarine Cuttlefish Finishes First Over a Two-Mile Course.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—The submarine flotilla of the Atlantic Fleet is daily employed in manoeuvres on the surface and below the sea in and about Narragansett Bay with frequent target practice.

During the week the submarines, save the Octopus, at a given signal, submerged to a depth sufficient to obscure their periscopes and at full speed, raced beneath the sea over a course of about two miles. The speed of the boats averaged between eight and nine knots.

The Cuttlefish finished first, with the Viper and the Tarantula close behind.

The correspondent adds that each side has mobilized troops.

WED SECRETLY; DIVORCED.

Mrs. Emery of Baltimore Also Obtains Permission to Use Maiden Name.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Mary T. Emery, whose secret marriage to Wilber oBsley Emery, well known in society circles, was made public in March last, secured an absolute divorce to-day and permission to resume her maiden name, Mary L. Davidson.

The marriage took place on Oct. 24, 1908, before a Justice of the Peace in Hoboken, N. J., and was kept secret for five months. On June 2 they separated. Mrs. Emery sued for an absolute divorce on July 9 last.

Just a week before he was sued for divorce Mr. Emery was found near his home in a battered-up condition. He was taken to a hospital, but was unable to give a good description of his assailants.

GETS TRIP BY CABLE ERROR.

Mrs. Clarke Went to Europe, but Missed Husband, Who Sailed Home.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—An error in the telegraphic transmission of a single letter has been the cause of much perturbation in the domestic affairs of R. M. Clarke of New York. Three weeks ago Mr. Clarke sailed for England, having arranged that his wife should follow in a few days. Mr. Clarke, however, finished his business in this country sooner than he anticipated and decided to return to America.

He hereupon cabled to his wife, "Don't sail." The word sail in the dispatch was transformed to "fail," and Mrs. Clarke booked her passage with all speed. She arrived at Tilbury Monday last, having sailed from New York on Aug. 7 on board the Atlantic Transport liner Minnewaska, but no trace of her husband could she find.

With many misgivings she reported the circumstances to the police and Mr. Clarke was scheduled as a missing man. To-day, however, Mrs. Clarke discovered that her husband had returned to America and must have passed her in another vessel as she was coming to this country.

The reason for his apparently inexplicable conduct was, of course, satisfactorily explained when the telegraphic error was discovered. Mrs. Clarke will return to New York by the first available boat.

TWO IN RACING AUTO KILLED BEFORE 10,000

Wilfrid Bourque and Harry Holcombe Lose Lives on Indianapolis Speedway's First Day.

ACCIDENT'S CAUSE UNKNOWN

Women Faint and Men's Faces Blanch as Car Leaves Track and Falls on Occupants.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 19. — Urefrid Bourque of Springfield, Mass., driver of Knox Car No. 3, and Harry Holcombe of Grandville, Mass, Bourque's mechanician, were killed to-day during the running of the 250-mile race for the Prest-O-Lito Trophy of $1,000, at the inaugural meeting of the Automobile Speedway.

The Knox racing car, in which the two men were riding, of which Bourque was the driver and Holcombe mechanician, left the track and crashed into a fence on the home stretch of the speedway. The accident was witnessed by nearly 10,000 persons, and women fainted and the faces of men blanched as they saw the car leave the track and turn over upon the daring occupants, crushing out their lives.

The car in which the two men were riding was running second to the Buick, driven by Burman, the ultimate winner of the race, and the crowd was intensely interested, as it was apparent that the race would be between the Buick and the Knox car that was close upon it. One hundred and fifty miles of the two hundred and fifty-mile race was nearly completed when the accident occurred. The two cars were tearing down the track at terrific speed, and every eye in the crowd was centred upon them. Both cars had just passed the grand stand amid the shouts of the onlookers and the waving of handkerchiefs and cries of encouragement when the crash came. Whether the car skidded or the driver lost control in some way will never be known, but with thousands of eyes upon it the Knox machine leaped from the track and dashed into the fence and turned completely over, burying its occupants underneath.

Cries of horror from the grandstand rent the air as the car went over, and in a moment the wrecked machine was surrounded by a thousand persons, all anxious to lend a helping hand. Bourque was lifted from the machine, limp and lifeless, and gasping for breath, and it was seen that both legs were broken and there was a bad fracture of the skull, from which blood was flowing in a stream. He died as he was being taken from the car.

Both Die in Few Moments.

With great difficulty Holcombe was brought from under the car, but he was still alive and was taken to a hospital with the greatest speed. His arms were broken and there were three deep gashes in his skull, one of which had laid bare his brain, but a hasty examination of his pulse showed that life was not extinct. The mad race to the hospital was just completed when Holcombe died, without having at any time been conscious. All of the Knox cars were immediately withdrawn from the races, and gloom succeeded to the hilarity with which the races had been watched.

As the bodies of the men were taken from the machine women were overcome by the sight of the crushed and dust-covered forms, and two or three fainted when the fatal result of the accident became known. All interest in the races disappeared, and in a few moments hundreds had left the grounds.

In the meantime, however, the other entrants in the race were tearing over the speedway as though nothing had happened, and the Buick, having lost its nearest competitor, won the race with comparative ease.

Bourque Lost Control.

Theories as to the cause of the accident vary and no one will ever know what really caused the car to swerve from the track. According to the story told by Private Frank Brandoer, Company H, Second Regiment, Indiana National Guard, who was nearest to the scene of the accident and who had a narrow escape from injury, something caused both men to suddenly turn and look behind. As they did so the steering wheel slipped from Bourque's hands, and he threw his arms helplessly in the air. Then came the crash.

One of the rear wheels was found a few hundred feet from the scene of the accident, and this has led to the advancement of the theory that the axle nuts on it had not been properly tightened when the machine had taken on a new tire shortly before. The men probably felt that wheel slipping off, and after they looked behind they realized their helplessness to prevent an accident.

Albert Denison, the racing partner of Bourque, collapsed after the accident, and the services of a physician were required. The sight of the two men lying dead was too much for the friend of both, who had been called upon so often to face danger of death in similar manner.

Louis Chevrolet, the French driver of the Buick team, was led into the hospital almost blinded with tar and dust from the track shortly after the two men had died. The Frenchman, who had been leading during the early part of the long race, was forced to give up. As he gazed upon the bodies of his two former rivals of the track he muttered, "Too bad! Too bad!" and then staggered to a chair, too weak to stand both the physical and emotional strain of the moment.

BOURQUE A SKILLED DRIVER.

Had Taken Many Prizes During Three Years of Automobile Racing.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 19.—Wilfred Bourque, killed in Indianapolis today, was nearly 30 years old and had been in the automobile racing game three years, representing the Knox Automobile Company of this city, by whom he was considered one of the most expert drivers in the country. He was born in West Farnham, Canada. He came to this city twenty-two years ago, and had ever since made his home in West Springfield. He was an amateur bicycle rider of local note ten or more years ago. He entered the employ of the Knox Company six years ago as an assembler, later being a tester, inspector, and demonstrator.

Bourque's entry into the racing game was made as a hill climber, and he at once came to the front as a driver of note. He raced successfully at Richfield Springs, N. Y., last week, winning four prizes, which were presented to him by Vice President Sherman. Bourque possessed wonderful nerve and judgment and great physical strength. He was to have been married this Fall.

Harry Holcombe, Bourque's mechanician, had been a tester for the Knox Company for two years, this season being his first in racing. He rode with Bourque in the Crown Point race this Summer, in which Bourque finished second to Chevrolet. That event was Holcobe's first race. He was married and leaves a family in West Granville.

RECORD BREAKING CONTESTS.

New Figures Established for One, Ten, and One Hundred Miles.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 19.—The new motor speedway, said to be the fastest automobile race course in the world, was dedicated here to-day at the cost of two lives, William A. Bourque, driver of a Knox Giant, and Harry Holcomb, his mechanician, being killed when their car crashed into a fence on the home stretch during the race of 250 miles for the Prest-o-lite Trophy.

Records of long standing were broken during the day, but the accident which resulted in the death of Bourque and his assistant put a damper on the speed carnival. The races to-day were the first of a three days' series of sprint and distance events, and there is keen anxiety on the part of the management to learn what effect the unfortunate happening will have on the attendance during the rest of the meet.

Both grand and field stands were comfortably crowded when the first event, a five-mile race, was run off, and the enormous parking spaces were filled with motor cars. The motoring public turned out in force to support the new $400,000 enterprise, and it is doubtful if a more brilliant assembly of people ever attended an automobile race meet in this country. One section of the grand stand was occupied by a delegation of New Yorkers and another section was occupied by motorists from Chicago.

Barney Oldfield, in his new 120 horse power Benz racer, caused the first excitement by breaking De Palma's American circular track record of 51 seconds for a mile. Oldfield drove the distance from a flying start in 43 1-5 seconds. Following this performance Louis Chevrolet, in a Buick car, set a new American track record for ten miles, covering the distance in 8:56 4-5. This lowered the record held by Barney Oldfield on a circular track, Oldfield's old record being 9:12.

The short distance races were only preliminary to the principal event of the day, however, and the crowd awaited impatiently the running of the 250-mile Prest-o-lite Trophy event. This race was open to stock cars of 1909 or 1910 model and of piston displacement of 301 to 450 cubic inches. There were nine cars entered as follows: Knox Giant, driven by Bourque; two Nationals, driven by Kincaid and Merz; a Stoddard-Dayton, driven by Miller; three Buicks, driven by Burman, Strang, and Chevrolet; a Jackson, driven by Ellis, and a Stoddard-Dayton, driven by Clemens.

From the very start the race was most spectacular. Chevrolet took the lead on the first lap, with Burman a close second, and the manner in which these two daring drivers circled the track electrified the crowd. The speedway is so constructed that the racers could be seen every minute of the struggle, and as Chevrolet and Burman sped around the course in record time the crowd cheered enthusiastically.

At the end of fifty miles Chevrolet was still in the lead, his time for the distance being 46 minutes and 54 seconds, a remarkable performance. Burman still held second place, his time being 47:05½, while Kincaid, in his National, had crept up to third position, and covered the fifty miles in 48:05 4-5. Bourque, Ellis, and Merz trailed close up in the order named; Miller and Clemens were one lap behind the leaders, and Strang was five miles in the rear.

When the time for the 100 miles was hung up Chevrolet was still dashing along in front, and he had broken the American track record for the distance, his time being 1:32:18 9-10, an average of 1:08 miles a minute. Ellis, in a Jackson, was second, his time being 1:37:31½, and Burman in a Buick was third, his time being 1:38:11 7-10. Just after the 100 miles had been passed Strang withdrew from the contest.

The racers had covered nearly 160 miles when Bourque and his mechanician lost their lives. Chevrolet, who, it seemed a certainty, would win the race, narrowly avoided colliding with the wrecked Knox car. He was blinded by the dust and tar torn from the track and had to drop out of the contest. The daring Frenchman was deeply disappointed, but his eyes were in such condition that it would have been dangerous to permit him to continue in the race.

Burman took the lead after the accident and held it to the end. Kincaid in the National was second for a while and Ellis in the Jackson car held third place while Merz, Clemens and Miller were strung along in the order named. Burman's time for the 250 miles was 4:38:57 2-5. Clemens, in a Stoddard-Dayton was second in 4:46:01 4-5, and Merz, in a National, was third in 4:52:39 7-10. The second National, driven by Kincaid, was the only other car to finish the long grind.

The death of Bourque and Holcomb caused the American Automobile Association to issue an ultimatum to the owners of the big track that certain changes must be made by to-morrow or the sanction for the races will be withdrawn. The American Automobile Association demands that the track be freed from its many dangerous ruts, which are claimed to be unavoidable in a new track, and that every inch of it be thoroughly oiled and tarred. To-day only a short portion in front of the grand stand was oiled, and the dust on the other parts is blamed for the collapse of Louis Chevrolet and Fred Ellis, who were blinded by the dense white dust that covered the major portion of the track and had to withdraw.

Five starters were at the tape in the first event, for cars of 161 to 230 cubic inches piston displacement. There were two Stoddard-Daytons, driven by Wright and Schwitzer; two Buicks, driven by De Witt and Ryall, and a Velie, driven by Stickney. A Velie and a Jackson were scratched. The time for the race was slow, Schwitzer winning in 5:13 2-5, while Wright was second and De Witt third.

The second event was ten miles for stripped stock cars of 231 to 300 cubic inches piston displacement. There were eight starters, as follows: Three Marions, driven by Tinkler, Monson, and Steity; two Marmons, driven by Stillman and Raronna, and three Buicks, driven by Burman, Strang, and Chevrolet. The Buicks finished one, two, three, with Chevrolet, Strang, and Burman in the order named. The Marmon, driven by Stillman, was a close fourth. Chevrolet's winning margin was more than a mile, and his time, 8:56 4-5, established a new American track record.

The third event was five miles for stripped stock cars of 301 to 450 cubic inches piston displacement. There were nine starters, including a Knox, driven by Bourque; three Stoddard-Daytons, driven by De Hymel, Miller, and Clemens; three Buicks, driven by Burman, Strang, and Chevrolet, and two Jacksons, with Lynch and Ellis as pilots.

This race was the most exciting of the day, aside from the 250-mile event. It was won by Bourque in his Knox Giant, after the most spirited kind of a contest over the entire route with Burman in his Buick. The cars whirled around the course with hubs almost touching, and when the finish was reached daylight barely separated them. Bourque's time was 4:45½, nine-tenths of a second ahead of Burman. Chevrolet was third.

For number of entries the ten-mile free-for-all handicap proved the most popular event of the day, twenty-two cars facing Starter Fred Wagner when the signal to get away was given. A Marmon car, driven by Stillman, with a handicap of 1:45, was first; a Jackson, driven by Lynch, handicap 1:30, was second, and a National, driven by Aitken, 20 seconds back of scratch, was a close third. Chevrolet in a Buick, Ellis in a Jackson, Heina in a Lozier, Miller in a Stoddard-Dayton, Burman in a Buick, Wright in a Stoddard-Dayton, Ford in a Stearns, and Keene in a Marmon, finished in the order named. The time was 8:22 1-5.

Aitken, at the wheel of the National, drove a splendid uphill race in this event. He moved up to ninth at the end of the second lap, and a wonderful burst of speed moved him into third position when the race was three-quarters run.

Following is the summary of the 250-mile race, giving the three leaders and their times at various stages:

Fifty Miles—Chevrolet first, 0:46:54; Burman second, 0:47:35; Kincaid third, 0:48:58.
100 Miles—Chevrolet first, 1:32:18 9-10; Ellis second, 1:37:31 5-10; Merz third, 1:38:11 7-10.
150 Miles—Burman first, 2:27:32 8-10; Kincaid second, 2:36:30 3-10; Ellis third, 2:39:53 3-10.
200 Miles—Burman first, 3:24:13 4-10; Ellis, second, 3:28:47 9-10; Kincaid third, 3:52:04 5-10.
225 Miles—Burman first, 4:10:27 2-10; Clements second, 4:19:00 5-10; Kincaid third, 4:25:16.
250 Miles—Burman first, 4:38:57 4-10; Clements second, 4:46:01 8-10; Merz third, 4:52:39 7-10.

AUTO BACKS DOWN MOUNTAIN.

Two Women Hurt as Machine Brings Up Against Four-Ton Rock.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 19.—Backing on the heavy grade of Southing Mountain last night a big touring car went fifteen feet over the gutter and into a rocky fern lot against a four-ton rock. The car was occupied by Oscar M. Trowbridge and Welton Hermersley of New York, James Deshon and Jared Toucey of Brooklyn, and Miss Sarah Banning and Miss Adelaide Pembroke of Philadelphia and Baltimore respectively.

Both of the women jumped from the car when it crashed. Miss Pembroke fell on her head, straining her neck and shoulders and one leg. Miss Banning was rendered unconscious by the fall, but revived this morning, apparently slightly affected.

After the machine began to back, it struck a farm wagon occupied by Miss Anna Benton and Sadie Phelps of Brooklyn, made ruin of the equipage, and threw the women out over the horses' heads to the side of the road.

SAGE RHODODENDRONS CHEAP

Only Twenty Cents Each, so Three Who Took Them Are Released.

Ex-Policeman James McKeagney of 1,249 Gerard Avenue, the Bronx, who was dismissed from the force recently because of the part he took in the theft of rhododendrons from Central Park, and two others concerned in the alleged theft, were arraigned yesterday before the Court of Special Sessions on a charge of petit larceny.

The other prisoners were Shada Airy of 14 West Ninety-fourth Street, describing herself as a boarding house keeper at Stony Point, N. Y., who received the plants after they were taken from the Park, and Frank Boyle, who is alleged to have taken them. Boyle is a bartender, and lives at 58 West 104th Street.

When the case first came up, the rhododendrons taken were said to be of the value of $5 each. Later it was said that the entire lot, three in all, was worth about $5. Finally the value dwindled down to 20 cents each. The case was dismissed and the prisoners discharged.

COURT UPHOLDS WHIPPING.

Says a Mother Is Justified in Punishing Disobedient Children.

In releasing ten-year-old John Wadsworth to his mother and remanding twelve-year-old Mildred Wadsworth to the custody of the Children's Society until to-morrow, Justice Mayo in the Children's Court yesterday upheld Mrs. Mildred Wadsworth, mother of the children, of 804 East 156th Street, in her policy of whipping them for disobedience.

The children ran away from home on Wednesday morning, and when taken to the West Forty-seventh Street Station by an unidentified woman whose son found them in the De Witt Clinton Park at Eleventh Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, they told an astonishing story of how their mother had beaten them almost every day for the last year and a half. They bore no marks, however, and were neatly dressed, but their earnestness caused the police to turn them over to the Children's Society for investigation.

REWARD FOR SAILOR PIERSON.

If He Will Call at 115 Broadway He Will Get His Share of $550.

If Mans Pierson, the sailor who was carried off to sea on a piece of wreckage on Tuesday, when the three-masted schooner Arlington, struck amid the breakers just south of Long Beach, L. I., and was landed at Beekman Street late Wednesday, after being rescued from his perilous plight by the fishing schooner Irene May, will call at the office of Edwin G. Kaufmann, at 115 Broadway, he will receive his share of the $550 which the Nassau Hotel guests made up as a purse for the shipwrecked sailors after witnessing the accident.

The purse was divided among the Captain and the crew of the Arlington, and Pierson's share is now awaiting him. Capt. Smaul, before leaving Long Beach, presented to Mrs. Kaufmann the British flag of the Arlington.

WORLD SUPPLY OF RADIUM.

Great Deposit of Pitchblende Is Reported in California.

KENNETTA, Cal., Aug. 19.—According to a story told by Dr. S. Wilkins, who arrived here yesterday, enough pitchblende has been discovered on the McCloud River, north of here, to supply the world with radium for all time.

Dr. Wilkins had in his possession fine specimens of the precious stuff, and so impressed were some business men with his story that they sent an expert to visit the newly discovered ledge. It is twenty miles up the McCloud River from the confluence of that stream with the Pitt River.

LONG BRANCH CARNIVAL.

2,000 Expected to be in Line When the Parade Begins—Other Features.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 19.—With its first children's parade Long Branch at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon will open its first beach carnival. More than 2,000 are expected to be in line. To-night there will be a masque fête on the bluff-walk, and this will be followed by a masque ball in the Casino.

To-morrow morning a series of running and other athletic contests under A. A. U. sanction will be held on the bluff drive, and at 2 P. M. trotting races.

The big feature of the carnival will conclude the celebration, however. That will be the auto speed tests for world's mile records. Prizes, to the amount of over $1,000, will be divided. In the other events some $1,500 more will go for prizes. There are seventeen makes of machines, which will take part in the contest, and twenty-one entries.

Former Senator James Smith, Jr., Jefferson Seligman, Harry Content, J. J. O'Donohue, and Judge W. A. Hurley will judge the parade of decorated cars which will follow the races.

CAUGHT BABY ON THE BOUNCE.

Magistrate Finds Human Baseball Awaiting Him at Court Entrance.

Just as Magistrate Maurice Connolly was entering the Fifth District Magistrate's Court in Long Island City yesterday, a three-year-old child who had been left on a step in the middle of the stairway by its mother commenced to bounce down the stairs like a ball.

The little one had almost reached the bottom when the Magistrate caught the youngster with the agility of a baseball player.

The Judge ran up stairs to his chambers and after ascertaining that the baby had not been injured sent for the mother and lectured her for her carelessness.

Ten minutes later two other children who had been left on the stairs by their mothers rolled to the bottom and aroused the court by their cries.

ALIMONY HUNTERS CLOSING IN Court Decides That Lawyer Must Give Client's Address to Latter's Wife.

That all communications between lawyer and client are not privileged was decided by Supreme Court Justice Bischoff yesterday when he gave William C. White, attorney at 42 Broadway, two days to disclose the address of John Treadwell Richards, his client, who is also a lawyer.

The decision arose out of an action brought by Helen W. Richards to force her husband to pay a $250 counsel fee and $50 a week alimony allowed her by a New Jersey court decree. Richards, it is alleged, has avoided the order for two years and his wife brought action here, obtaining an order from Justice Guy directing her husband to pay.

When her counsel went to see Richards at 42 Broadway, where he was said to have an office with White, to serve him with a copy of the order, the latter admitted that he knew where Richards was living, but considered that as he was acting as Richards's counsel and in his confidence, he was not called upon to disclose his client's address.

Justice Bischoff decided that White must give the information.

THEOSOPHY DIVIDED HANSONS

President of Georgia Central Denounces Use of Mrs. McVickar's Name.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 19.—Major J. F. Hanson, President of the Central of Georgia Railway, resents the use of the name of Mrs. J. H. McVickar of New York in the suit for divorce, filed by Mrs. Hanson. He is now in Seattle, but he wired to friends here to-day denouncing the introduction of Mrs. McVickar's name, asserting that theosophy caused Mrs. Hanson to bring the suit.

The estrangement from Major Hanson of all the members of his family except Mrs. Anne Garrett of Baltimore is charged to theosophy. It is said that for fifteen years Major Hanson has been fighting against this belief. One intimate friend declares that his son, the late Walter Hanson, was his companion and friend, and that they were devoted to each other until the son took up with the cult. Major Hanson felt deeply wounded after his son's sudden death in New York recently, when he was not consulted as to the funeral. Mrs. Hanson is now at Point Loma, Cal.

Roland Ellis, one of Major Hanson's counsel, said: "The connection of his name with that of the lady mentioned is a cruelty to both, and his answer will show that the family estrangement is due to religious differences, which divided his entire household two years ago."

TELL OF PADDED PAYROLLS.

More Testimony by Coler Employes—H. W. Seabold Not at Hearing.

Testimony indicating that there had been wholesale padding of payrolls in the Brooklyn Bureau of Sewers was brought out yesterday at the hearing before the Commissioners of Accounts into the administration of Borough President Bird S. Coler of Brooklyn. A majority of the men employed in the Bureau of Sewers had been subpoenaed and attended the hearing. Assistant engineers of the department took the stand and testified that names had been interpolated in the payrolls without their knowledge or consent.

Payrolls during the first six months of last year were placed in evidence by Commissioner Mitchel. Five out of seven employes who were placed on the stand testified that they had never received the amounts appearing on the payroll as having been paid them. They were per diem employes, entitled to pay only for days when they actually were at work. Testimony was brought out showing that these employes had not performed any services to entitle them to these amounts appearing on the payroll of the department. They also repudiated signatures purporting to be theirs which appeared in the receipting column on the payrolls, and as indorsement on the back of the corresponding city vouchers.

Henry W. Seabold, a former assistant pay clerk in the Bureau of Sewers, who is said to have been in charge of these payrolls, had been subpoenaed by Commissioner Mitchel, but failed to appear at the time his testimony was wanted. Testimony has been brought out to show that Seabold was dismissed from the department after the disappearance of two pay checks which he admitted having taken out of the department safe for safe keeping, and said he afterward lost. Seabold is now employed in the Department of Docks and Ferries.

A detective from the office of District Attorney Clarke of Kings County attended the hearing yesterday, and after an adjournment had been taken for the day said he would go out and "look up" a man who had been employed in the Brooklyn Sewer Department.

EAST SIDE WANTS MORE CARS.

Merchants Open a Crusade for Better Transportation Facilities.

A meeting of the East Side Merchants' Association was held yesterday in the Real Estate Exchange, 165 East Broadway, with a view to getting better transportation facilities for the lower east side. Thirty merchants and business men met and a temporary organization was formed, with Joseph Barondess Chairman and Charles Zunser Secretary.

The object of the organization, it was explained, is to fight for increased street car lines and better facilities generally. A committee was appointed to arouse interest in the movement among other organizations and to make preparations for hearings before the Public Service Commission and Aldermen.

WRIGHTS START SUIT ON CURTISS AIRSHIP

Action Brought Against Aeronautic Society Which Owns Machine Used by Willard.

CHARGE INFRINGED PATENTS

Society Officials Say Wrights Cannot Get Injunction and Plan Flight for Willard at Hempstead To-day.

The brothers Wilbur and Orville Wright of Dayton, Ohio, yesterday through their attorneys instituted action in the United States Circuit Court in this city against the Aeronautic Society on the ground that the public exhibition of the Curtiss machine now owned by the society constitutes an infringement of their patent rights, and is otherwise detrimental to their interests. The reason why the suit is brought against the society and not against Mr. Curtiss personally or the Herring-Curtiss Company is because the society possesses the only Curtiss flying machine available for public exhibitions.

Such exhibitions have been given at Morris Park, for which admission was charged, and it is the intention of the society when its pupil, Charles F. Willard, becomes sufficiently familiar with the operation of the aeroplane with which he has been making trial flights near Mineola, to give a series of exhibitions on a much larger scale.

The news that the Wright brothers had finally determined to institute suit to protect their rights was not wholly unexpected. Rumors were current some time ago when the Curtiss machine was brought to this city that suit for the infringement of patent rights would be brought.

Mr. Curtiss at the time submitted his plans to a patent lawyer, who, after comparing them with the patents granted to the Wrights from the United States Patent Office, stated that he believed there was no clear infringement, and it was said last night that when Mr. Curtiss left for Europe to compete in the international aviation race in France he was under the impression that no suit would be brought.

President Lee S. Burridge, however, of the Aeronautic Society, whose offices are at 1,777 Broadway, said previous to a meeting of the society last night in the rooms of the Automobile Club of America that he had been aware of the contemplated action for nearly three months.

Discussed Matter with Wrights.

"In fact," added Mr. Burridge, "I discussed the matter in a perfectly frank and friendly manner with the Wrights some time ago. I offered at that time to accept service on behalf of the society. Personally, I am glad the suit has been brought. It had to come sooner or later, and it will have the effect of clearing away the chaos now existing in the aeronautic world regarding the exact status of the numerous patent rights concerning which many differences of opinion prevail. It may not be generally known that 368 airship patents have been granted in the United States. Of these the Wright brothers control a great number. At the present time none of these patents has been adjudicated by the courts."

It was stated in the bill of complaint filed by the Wright brothers' attorneys, Arthur C. Fraser of 170 Broadway and H. A. Toulmin of Springfield, Ohio, that the court would be asked to restrain the Aeronautic Society from making further use of the Curtiss machine for exhibition flights.

"This cannot be done," explained Mr. Burridge. "In a patent suit the courts will not grant an injunction in the case of a suit that has not been legally acted upon. When the case has been legally determined the Circuit Court of Appeals may then stipulate the amount of damages due through illegal use of a patent. Provided the Wrights win, these damages would be assessed upon the Herring-Curtiss Company, the maker of the machine."

The Wrights ask, in their bill of complaint, that damages be assessed to threefold the amount of their losses by reason of the infringement of their rights, and the public exhibition of the machine containing the alleged infringements.

The Wrights claim that the alleged infringements of their patents in the flying machines used by the society are fully covered by the papers issued to them by the Patent Department, dated May 22, 1906, and they ask that all such parts be returned to them for destruction. The inventors claim that their rights in the "heavier-than-air" flying machines are recognized by the United States Government, which has purchased some of their machines, and that the sovereigns of other countries have acknowledged their rights.

The Wrights' Claims.

"The inventions of the complainants," concludes the bill of complaint, "constitute the first instance in the history of the countless attempts to produce flying machines wherein a 'heavier-than-air' machine ever made aerial flights and wherein the machine was within the control and will of the operator, thus giving to the world the first machine to actually and successfully fly, being in this sense a creation or embodiment of a new art, and an epoch in aerial endeavor, human flight having been for ages a synonym for failure and impossibility."

The chief infringement on which it is believed the Wrights base their suit is the use of the side wings employed for giving greater stability to the aeroplane. While the Wrights thus far have not built a machine with side wings, their method being to warp the supporting planes, they have secured patents for these end wings controlled by levers connected with the rudder. While the Curtiss machine employs these end wings they are not in direct control with the rudder.

A. M. Herring declared last night that when the Curtiss machine left the Hammondsport factory it contained nothing that could be construed as an infringement of the Wrights's patents.

The attorneys for the Wrights ask that a hearing be granted on Oct. 4.

A close friend of the Wrights stated last night that Wilbur Wright told him a few days ago that there was not a practical airship in the world that had succeeded in getting off the ground that was not in some respects an infringement of their rights.

In spite of the agitation aroused by the institution of the suit everything was in readiness last night for a long flight by Charles F. Willard in the Curtiss machine this morning over the Hempstead Plains. The new cam shaft has been fitted to the engine, and with favorable weather Mr. Willard hopes to exceed Mr. Curtiss's flight made last month of 24.7 miles by the official measurement for The Scientific American Cup. The course was properly measured, and two members of the Contest Committee went to Mineola last night to witness the flight. Col. E. H. R. Green of Texas will be among the spectators. Col. Green came to the city early in the week to make arrangements to purchase a good flying machine to take back to Texas and he may purchase one of the Curtiss aeroplanes.

WRIGHT AND CURTISS TO FLY.

Aeroplanists Engaged Finally for the Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

Clarence E. Leonard, Secretary of the Lower Hudson-Fulton Celebration Committee, announced at Yonkers last night that the committee had finally come to an agreement with Wilbur Wright and Glenn H. Curtiss to have them give daily exhibitions with their aeroplanes during the celebration.

These aeronauts are to fly their machines over New York City an hour each day for the six-day celebration. The flights will be solely for exhibitory purposes. Mr. Leonard would not state the price to be paid to Wright and Curtiss.

ORVILLE WRIGHT IN BERLIN.

Will Fly in German Built Wright Machine—Kaiser May See Trials.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Orville Wright, his sister Katherine, and Hart O. Berg, the European business manager of the Wright brothers, arrived here to-day from London. Mr. Wright is to make a series of public flights on the Tempelhof parade ground, in the suburbs of Berlin. If he is ready by the end of the month the Kaiser will probably witness one of his exhibitions. The Kaiser is coming to Berlin to review the Berlin and Potsdam garrisons and to receive Count Zeppelin, who is expected to make his long voyage from Friedrichshafen to Berlin Aug. 28. The two masters of the different schools of aviation will then meet and compare methods.

Mr. Wright, in his flights here, will use an aeroplane built in Germany by the company that has acquired all the rights for this country. He went out to the shops at Tegel to-day and examined the craft. He has two completed machines to choose from.

A pamphlet written by Capt. Von Hildebrand on the Wright brothers is being widely sold in Germany. Some pride is taken in the fact that the grandfather of the Wright brothers was a German. Capt. Von Hildebrand was formerly an instructor attached to the air navigation battalion of the army.

BALLOONS OFF FOR ST. LOUIS.

Three Start from Peoria Southwest on an Endurance Race.

PEORIA, Ill., Aug. 19.—Three balloons started late this afternoon in an endurance race. The Missouri was the first to start. It rose at 5:28, carrying two passengers. The Illinois was second, with two passengers at 5:40 P. M. The Peoria cut loose and sailed away at 6:11. All three are required to remain in the air all night.

The direction was southwest for all the balloons, and indications were that they would not land at St. Louis, their destination, before late to-morrow morning, owing to the calm weather prevailing.

THIS MONOPLANE DIDN'T FLY.

Beach Has Combined Two French Models, but His Engine Did Not Work.

Stanley Y. Beach, aeronautical editor of The Scientific American, made an unsuccessful attempt to fly his new monoplane last night at Morris Park. The fifty horse power, four-cylinder gasoline engine coughed and fumed, the seven-foot propeller in front whirled around, and the monoplane ran along the track on its dependent bicycle wheels, but it would not rise from the ground.

It was explained that there was something wrong with the water-cooling apparatus, which made the water that should have acted as a cooler boil. After a run of a few hundreds yards up and down the track Mr. Beach decided not to attempt further flight until he had righted his engine.

This monoplane is built partly on the model of the Bleriot machine and partly on that of the Antoinette monoplane. Its wings are not quite so large as M. Bleriot's and the engine is not so powerful.

Mr. Beach said last night that he would attempt a flight again within two or three days.

Wright Machine Damaged in Italy.

BRESCIA, Italy, Aug. 19.—The Wright aeroplane in which Lieut. Calderara of the Italian Army has been making flights, was damaged in a storm yesterday.

CAN'T REMEMBER WHO HE IS.

Bellevue Patient Does Not Know If He's Married or Not—Has Amnesia.

A sturdy middle-aged man, of medium height applied yesterday for admittance at Bellevue Hospital. He wore a gray suit and a derby hat, and to all appearances was sane.

"What's your name?" asked Dr. Leroy Smith, the admitting physician.

"I don't remember," was the answer.

"Where do you live?"

"I don't remember."

The patient declared he didn't know whether he was married or single, or where he came from. His past was a blank, except for a few incidents of yesterday, which he described vaguely.

"I was in a saloon at Fulton and West Streets yesterday, I think," he said. "I have a faint recollection of taking a drink of whisky before breakfast and another after. I remember also being struck a blow on the neck, and I have pains there now."

He was sent to the psychopathic ward and examined by Dr. Gregory, who declared that he was suffering from amnesia or loss of memory. The patient was carrying a letter addressed to "George White" in some town in Maryland, the name of which the doctors could not make out.

SHOOTS SELF AND LANDLADY.

"She Ruined My Life," Youthful Boarder Tells the Coroner.

Tenants in the apartment house at 680 Melrose Avenue, the Bronx, were startled by the reports of two pistol shots. They ran into the hall and on the floor in front of the apartment of Mrs. Anna Halloran, a widow of 30 years, they found Frederick C. Willert, a young man who lodged with Mrs. Halloran and her mother, unconscious from a bullet wound in his left breast.

Inside the flat Mrs. Barbara Paterson, Mrs. Halloran's mother, and Miss Florence Rothman, her cousin, were weeping over the senseless form of the young widow, who had a pistol shot wound in the back.

Mrs. Paterson and Miss Rothman said that Willert had done the shooting while they were in the dining room. He had arisen from the table and gone into his room, reappearing presently with a pistol. Mrs. Halloran ran and he shot her and then running into the hall shot himself.

Dr. Block took the man and woman to Lebanon Hospital, where both regained consciousness. Coroner Schwannecke came and took ante-mortem statements from both. Willert would only say:

"I shot her. She ruined my life."

Mrs. Halloran said that her relations with Willert had been simply those of a landlady toward a lodger, and that she knew of no reason for Willert wanting to kill her. The physicians said that Mrs. Halloran might recover, but that there was little hope for Willert.

ARCHITECT McKIM ILL.

Has a Severe Attack of Heart Trouble at St. James, L. I.

Charles F. McKim of the firm of McKim, Mead & White, architects of this city, the junior member of which, Stanford White, was murdered by Harry K. Thaw, is seriously ill at St. James, L. I. While a guest at the White villa there he was prostrated by an attack of heart trouble on Tuesday night.

Dr. Guy H. Terrell of Smithtown, L. I., and Dr. W. H. Ross of Brentwood, were hurriedly summoned, and worked over Mr. McKim nearly all night. For a time his condition was critical, but it is believed now that he will recover.

CITY BREVITIES.

Beginning Saturday, Aug. 21, the steamer Puritan will take the place of the steamer Plymouth on the Providence Line between New York and Providence. The Plymouth will go on the New Bedford Line, taking the place of the New Hampshire, which will be transferred to the Norwich Line service, replacing the steamer City of Lowell.

Aug. 22 the Union Pacific Railroad will shorten the running time of its Train 5 from Chicago to Portland via Chicago Northwestern to seventy-two hours, leaving Chicago 11:30 A. M. instead of 10:45 P. M., and arriving at Portland 8:30 A. M. third day.

John A. Noble, heretofore assistant cashier of the Night and Day Bank, has been appointed cashier of that institution, succeeding the late G. L. Wilmerding. Mr. Noble was formerly associated with the Merchants' National Bank.

HAMERSLY $5,000,000 AGAIN IN THE COURTS

Son Demands Accounting and Other Heirs Renew Fight Begun 25 Years Ago.

TESTATOR DIED IN 1883

He Was Louis C. Hamersly, Whose Widow Married the Duke of Marlborough and Later Lord Beresford.

Litigation over the Hamersly estate, said to amount to $5,000,000, which began twenty-five years ago in this State with a contest over the will of the late Louis C. Hamersly between the widow and other heirs, the widow afterward becoming the Duchess of Marlborough, and who after the death of the Duke married Lord Beresford, was renewed before Justice Crane, in the Special Term of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday.

Counsel for William Rasquin, who is acting as guardian ad litem for Arthur Hamersly, 14 years old, the only son of J. Hooker Hamersly, applied for an order to have the New York Trust and Life Insurance Company render an accounting of the estate of Louis C. Hamersly, who died on May 3, 1883.

Applications were also made in behalf of seventy other relatives for the right to share in the estate.

Justice Crane reserved decisions on both motions.

Louis C. Hamersly left the income of his estate to his widow. At her death the property was to go to the heirs of his first cousin, J. Hooker Hamersly. Under this condition it would appear that the entire estate is inherited by the only son of J. Hooker Hamersly, Arthur.

A contest was made by relatives of the testator, who alleged undue influence in the making of the will, but the Surrogate of New York County admitted the will to probate. The contestants appealed the case, but before the case could be heard by the Court of Appeals the widow, who was then the Duchess of Marlborough, settled with the relatives for $101,667, and insured her life for the benefit of the Hamersley relatives for $102,000.

The relationship of the Hamerslys and Masons is traced through Mrs. Sarah Hamersly, who was the daughter of John Mason, founder of the Chemical National Bank. She was the wife of Andrew G. Hamersly and mother of Louis C. Hamersly.

The Masons who are contesting the will are decendants of James Mason, maternal uncle of Louis C. Hamersly.

THAW SUMMONS NEW LAWYER.

Matteawan Man May Succeed Mr. Morschauser as His Counsel.

Special to The New York Times.

MATTEAWAN, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Harry Thaw spent a quiet day to-day in the State Asylum. He occupies his old quarters, a private room, and has certain privileges which are denied to many of the inmates. He was up early to-day, and out for an airing.

Just before noon he requested that James G. Meyers, a prominent local attorney, be summoned. Mr. Meyers arrived soon, and held a long conversation with Thaw. Mr. Meyers to-night would not deny that he is to succeed Mr. Morschauser as Thaw's counsel. Thaw has expressed himself at the hospital as being rather disappointed with Mr. Morschauser, saying that his case was not conducted as he had planned it. Mr. Meyers defended George Conrow at his trial for murder in this county recently. Conrow is now in the death house at Sing Sing, his execution having been stayed by an appeal.

FURLONG'S CASE DISCUSSED.

District Attorney Clarke Preparing to Investigate the Magistrate's Conduct.

District Attorney Clarke of Kings County, who has just returned from his vacation, was in consultation in his office yesterday with his first assistant, Robert H. Elder, and others on a plan of investigation into Magistrate Henry J. Furlong's conduct of the Gates Avenue Court as reflected on in a confession made by Jacob W. Gotthelf while he was in Raymond Street Jail in default of bail on the charge of bribing a witness.

What plan of procedure will be followed in looking into the charges against the Magistrate could not be learned at the conclusion of the conference, as neither Mr. Clarke nor Mr. Elder would talk. Magistrate Furlong is expected to return to the bench in the Gates Avenue Court on Monday. In the meantime Magistrate Hylan will continue to conduct the affairs of that court.

ROW OVER GOWANUS SEWER.

Committee Protests Against a Change, and Says It Will Pollute East River.

Edward Hatch., Jr., Chairman of the Pollution Committee of the Merchants' Association, addressed a letter to Borough President Coler of Brooklyn yesterday protesting against certain changes which, it is said, are to be made in the plans of the new million-dollar Gowanus flushing sewer in South Brooklyn.

The sewer was recently designed to flush out the Gowanus Canal, into which a number of smaller South Brooklyn sewers had been piling up stagnant refuse for years. The original plan for the new sewer was to pump water up from the East River to the head of the Gowanus Canal and keep the accumulating sewage constantly moving down the canal and out into New York Bay.

Mr. Hatch recently learned that this plan had been changed and that the sewage in the Gowanus Canal was to have an outlet, not into the open harbor, but directly into the East River near Buttermilk Channel, opposite Governors Island.

In his letter to Borough President Coler yesterady Mr. Hatch says that if the rumored change of plan is made the sewage discharge from the canal will be deposted under the docks, settle in the harbor, depress real estate values, and become a menace to the health of the people of Brooklyn living near the river.

Mr. Hatch further informs Borough President Coler that he has been advised by Dr. Eugene H. Porter, State Health Commissioner, that no plans have been filed or permits granted for the construction of the sewer, as required by the health laws of 1903.

STRAWBERRY WAR STILL ON.

Jersey's Famous Question, "Whose Are They?" Not Yet Answered.

It is now believed that Ridgewood's famous strawberry case will yet reach the New Jersey Supreme Court for a decision, for, no matter how Judge Doremus of Hackensack, who presided at the recent trial of the suit decides, it will be appealed. The suit was on the calendar simply as William Moore vs. Harry Tompkins. The question involved is: "If a man leases property for a year, but his lease is unexpectedly terminated, is he then entitled to the crop of strawberries growing on plants which he set out?"

Moore, the plaintiff, leased a New Jersey farm from a man named Williams. The lease was subject to termination on six months' notice, and last Fall Williams sold the property to Henry Tompkins. Moore had planted strawberry bushes last Summer, and as his six months' notice to move expired in the Spring, he believed he was entitled to the first crop of the berries. Early in June he went to the farm and started to pick the berries. Mr. Tompkins ordered him off.

Moore then started suit, not only for the crop, but also for the value of the plants. The case was tried before a jury, and the verdict was in favor of the plaintiff, allowing him $100 for the berries, but nothing for the plants. It was unsatisfactory to Tompkins, and a rule to show cause why the verdict should not be set aside was granted by Judge Doremus at Hackensack, N. J. On this the arguments were heard yesterday, but Judge Doremus will not render a decision for some time.

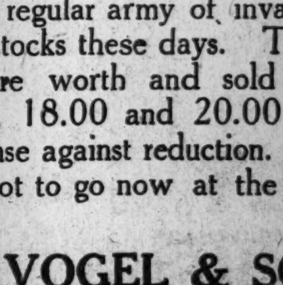
FOLLOWS FRIEND IN DEATH.

Coney aBrkers Who Boasted of Living Long Side by Side in the Morgue.

Between Timothy Cronin and Theobold Borneck, both "barkers" for Coney Island hotels, there were many good-natured arguments as to which would live the longer. Borneck, although 51 years old, always insisted that he would outlive Cronin, the younger by eighteen years, but when Cronin was taken sick with pneumonia and was removed to the Kings County Hospital a week ago, it looked as though Borneck would see his boast come true.

Cronin died a day or two ago, and Borneck, although grief stricken at his friend's end, couldn't resist telling the story of the many arguments in which he and Cronin had indulged, and it was with a certain pride that he spoke of his own continued good health.

But yesterday morning they could not awaken Borneck, and a surgeon from the Coney Island Hospital said that he had died of heart trouble. Last night his body lay beside that of his life-long friend, Cronin, in Kowski's morgue in Coney Island. The two old friends will be buried to-day.



We are a regular army of invasion among our men's suit stocks these days. The fact that certain suits are worth and sold at 15.00, 16.00, 17.00, 18.00 and 20.00 all season long is no defense against reduction.
They've got to go now at the new price, 11.75.

BOSTON CAPTURED; WAR GAME CLOSED

Red Invaders Cut Off the Blue Defenders Everywhere and Make Many Prisoners.

THOUSANDS SEE SPECTACLE

New York Organizations Take Prominent Part in All Encounters—Start Home To-day.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 19.—The remnant of the Blue Army, under Brig. Gen. William A. Pew, Jr., was completely routed by the Red Army of invasion to-day, and to-night Boston is in the possession of the troops under Gen. Bliss.

Pew made his final stand at Hanover Four Corners, near Brockton, at 11 o'clock this morning, and after two hours of general fighting, in which the Second Brigade of New York troops, detachments of the regiments from the District of Columbia and Connecticut, all the batteries of field artillery and the cavalry regiment under Major Bridgman of Squadron A, bore the brunt of the attack on all that Gen. Pew had left of his army of defenders, Gen. Wood, the chief umpire of the manoeuvres, declared the war ended. An hour later the Blue and the Red were sharing in common the same camps, fraternizing as brothers in arms, all enmity and rivalry forgotten in the general jollification at the ending of a week of as hard work as militiamen were ever called upon to experience in time of peace.

The battle of Four Corners, as it will go down in the record of the Massachusetts war of 1909, was the first and last general engagement of the conflict. The battle was fought under a clear sky and in the glare of a blazing sun. So great was the expenditure of powder that at times it looked as if all the forests surrounding the Four Corners were on fire, the smoke extending in solid clouds hundreds of feet into the air. A better place for a battle could not have been found in all Massachusetts. There were bush-covered fields to charge across, swamps to wade through, hills to climb, and forests through which the fighting men had to worm their way. Gen. Pew's headquarters, which, when the battle ended, were in the possession of the victorious Reds, were on the top of a high hill that overlooked the Cranberry swamps. Gen. Bliss's headquarters were everywhere.

To-morrow morning the troops in Bliss's army will get under way, some going to Boston and the remainder to Fall River, where they will take army transports and chartered Sound liners for home. Squadron A of New York, the Essex Troop of Newark, and the cavalry and artillery from the District of Columbia will embark at South Boston, while the rest of the State militiamen and the squadron of the Tenth Regular Cavalry will sail from Fall River.

Both Armies on the Alert.

This morning when reveille sounded in the camps of the Red and the Blue the soldiers in those armies knew that the last day of the campaign was at an end. They also knew that the hottest fight of the struggle would probably be fought before Gen. Wood declared the war ended, and on both sides the men were determined that this last day, the only clear warm one since hostilities began, should be recorded as a victory for their respective armies. The Reds, flushed with their unbroken string of successes, were more confident, and from the highest officers to the privates there was only one opinion in the crimson ranks, which was that what was left of the disorganized Massachusetts army had to be ruled out as dead, wounded, captured, or in retreat before the day ended. On the other hand Gen. Pew's men were just as determined to regain the prestige they had lost since the two forces came into contact last Monday.

At 5:01 o'clock Gen. Bliss's army, which had camped overnight on the shores of Stettson's Pond, near Pembroke, broke camp. The morning was clear and the breeze that swept in from the lakes was brisk and cheering. Gen. Bliss, as he had done every morning since he began his onward rush into the enemy's country, ordered the horse commands to go ahead of the main column and open up the way for the march into Boston. A mile in the rear of the cavalrymen was the head of the column, the place of honor this morning being to the first and second regiments of Connecticut infantry under Col. Geddes.

The Second Brigade, under command of Col. Daniel Appleton of the Seventh New York, which is made up of the New York foot commands, came next, and was in turn followed by the First Brigade of the District of Columbia troops under Gen. Harries. The task of protecting the rear of the main column, which proved to be the day's toughest assignment, so far as the march was concerned, was given to the Tenth Regular Cavalry and the Field Artillery, commanded by Major David Wilson of New York.

Gen. Pew realized his perilous position thoroughly, and it was soon apparent that the Massachusetts commander was making his last and most desperate effort to outflank his trained opponent of the regular army. The orders to the Red cavalrymen who were advancing ahead of the main column was that the foot soldiers were to be protected at all hazards and that no interference on the part of the Blues that might delay the troops en route to the Hub was to be permitted. The first two brigades of New York and Connecticut troops got past Pew's men all right, but it was different with the Washingtonians, the rear guard of black horsemen, and the artillerymen.

Blues in Full Retreat.

At Bryantville, two miles north of Pembroke, the District of Columbia troops and the rear guard ran afoul of the enemy. On a hill near that place, which overlooked the road through which Bliss was forcing his way into Boston, the First Brigade of Massachusetts, under Col. Frederick E. Pierce, had been concealed waiting a chance to cut Bliss's rear guard off from his main column. This was Pew's first desperate effort of the day to even up matters with the Reds for the reverses he had suffered in the last few days. The negroes charged the Blue stronghold, yelling like demons, and as they got under way the New York artillerymen quickly got into position where they could rake the Blue lines. A minute later ten big field pieces were shelling the Blues. Soldiers from the National capital swung into line just to the left of the Tenth Regulars, and at the end of fifty minutes' fighting the hill had been carried, and the Blues were retreating back to Pew's main column on the Whitman Road.

The next fight was at "Pat" Gurney's Corners, on the shore of Lake Monponsett. Near that place was stationed the Massachusetts Coast Artillery, fighting as infantry, the first Corps of Cadets from Boston, and seven companies, each from the Second and Sixth Regiments of Massachusetts Infantry. The Tenth troopers and Capt O'Ryan's battery and field artillery from Manhattan had the job of dislodging this force, which outnumbered them about five to one. Battery A of Massachusetts came up during the fight and joined an artillery duel with O'Ryan's cannoneers. This fight was short and stubborn, and owing to superior numbers the Blues received the credit of holding the Red rear guard in check.

While these little scraps were going on the main column of the Red Army was rapidly forging ahead and nearing the Hanover Four Corners, near which Pew was known to have established headquarters, from which he was to direct the last stand of his shattered army. Pew evidently thought that Bliss would come up the Whitman Road, and planted Batteries A and B of his command in the road to open fire on the invaders the moment the column came into view. But Bliss had figured out exactly what Pew would do, and instead of taking Whitman Road he swung his column into the Brockton Road, and two brigades of Reds had passed through the Hanover settlements and were a mile in advance of the Blues, with a clear road to Boston ahead, before Pew discovered that he had been out-manouvred.

At this time the Blue line of defense extended for several miles, forming a crescent between Mayflower Grove, ten miles south of Brockton, and Pembroke, with Pew's headquarters on the Whitman Road as the centre. Gen. Bliss ordered the Second Brigade of New York, a part of the Connecticut troops, the field artillery commands, and the cavalry regiment to crush this last line of defense, and the enthusiastic Reds lost no time in obeying the order.

The Seventh took up its position behind the stone wall on the southern boundary of the Stettson Farm, a few hundred yards distant from the Four Corners. Down the road, that is known in these parts as the Hanover Broadway, the batteries, under Major Wilson, took up a position where they could subject the Blue centre to a grueling crossfire, while the infantry and cavalry made the attack from another angle.

Blue Fall Into an Ambush.

Pew's men opened the battle when Battery B, under Capt. Sherwood, which was in position on a clay cliff overlooking the cranberry swamp, opened fire on the Tenth Cavalry, which was in the woods to the west of Hanover, waiting the command to attack. Right behind Sherwood's battery, and on the Whitman Road less than ten yards distant from Pew's headquarters, was Battery A of Worcester, under Capt. Wheeler. Supporting the Blue artillery, and under the personal command of Gen. Pew, was the Sixth Massachusetts, a part of the Second Regiment, the Corps of Cadets, and three companies of the Eighth Regiment.

The Blues tried to retreat back upon their main column, but the Reds were waiting for just such a movement, and before they knew it the Massachusetts soldiers were surrounded in the back yard of Dr. William Briggs's home, where they were umpired into captivity.

While the fight between the foot soldiers and the cavalrymen was in progress the artillery, under Wilson, opened fire, the detonations of the great guns being so terrific that they could be heard in the outskirts of Brockton, ten miles away.

Leaving the captured Blues under guard in the Briggs yard the Reds rushed through the fields into the valley known as the Cranberry Swamps. Pew's scouts told him what had happened and the Blue commander hurried all of his available men into the valley to try to stop the mad rush of the Reds, for he knew that if Bliss's men were not checked in quick order his own headquarters would be in danger of capture with a possibility of himself being taken prisoner. As the Blue infantrymen dashed into the swamp to head off the Reds, Pew ordered Battery A, which was stationed in the main road, alongside the front part of John Wayman's house, opposite the Blue headquarters, to open fire.

Artillery Wreck a House.

Pew told the artillerymen to fire five rounds, and when these five rounds ended nearly every pane of glass in the windows of Wayman's house had been shattered and the piano in the parlor had been toppled over and the sounding board of the instrument wrecked by the concussion.

When the order to fire the first five rounds had been executed, one of the Blue officers, standing near General Pew ordered a second round of five fired, but before the order could be executed one of the regular army officers galloped up and ordered the cannoneers not to fire.

"Don't fire another shot!" yelled the regular. "You have nearly wrecked a house, and there is no telling what other damage you may do. Suppose a child should cross the road. Besides, there are no troops in front of you and you are firing at automobiles filled with women and children."

By this time the fight in the swamp was general, and the artillery, with the exception of Battery A of the Blues, was engaged in a great duel. The smoke of battle extended in long, streamy columns hundreds of feet into the air, and when the firing ceased the wild cheering of the men who were fighting in the marshlands could be heard by the crowds that packed the Brockton and Whitman Roads in all directions.

The battle in the Cranberry Swamp kept up for half an hour before the Blues gave way before the Reds, the flanks of Pew's fighting lines being driven back in disorder upon his main column. Thus ended the Battle of the Hanover Four Corners, and ten minutes later Gen. Wood's aids were galloping through the lines of both armies, officially announcing that the war was ended. No official direction as to the victor in the struggle for Boston was made, although it was admitted by everybody in the Blue as well as the Red Army, that Bliss had completely outmanoeuvred Pew at every turn, and that had it been a real war Boston would now be in the hands of an enemy.

War Declared at an End.

This afternoon Gen. Wood issued his last order of the war. It was as follows:

Headquarters Chief Umpire, Field Exercises,
White Farm, near North Rochester,
Mass., Aug. 19, 1909.
FIELD ORDER NO. 6.

1—The field exercises in Massachusetts are terminated at 1 o'clock P. M. this date.

2—The six troops, Tenth United States Cavalry, and the troops of the States of Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, and District of Columbia engaged in field exercises, so far as the authority of these headquarters is applicable, are relieved from further duty in connection therewith and may proceed to their home stations by transportation already provided, and of which their commanders have been advised.

3—The commanding General takes this opportunity to express to all the troops engaged his sincere appreciation of their services and the soldierly spirit and bearing manifested throughout the period of the exercises, and he is particularly gratified with their splendid conduct and the respect for persons and property of civilians which has characterized their sojourn and march through the country.

By command of Major Gen. Wood,
GEORGE S. ANDERSON, Colonel, General Staff, Chief of Staff.
Official, H. O. S. HEISTAND, Adjutant General.

"Gen. Wood," said Col. Heistand this afternoon, "is extremely well pleased with the manoeuvres, and all of the regular officers regard the exercises as highly satisfactory and very instructive to the troops that participated in them. Gen. Wood and his staff will return to New York on Saturday."

MEN SUFFERED SEVERELY.

Connecticut Troops Complain of Lack of Food and Exhausted.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 19.—Connecticut troops returning from the Boston war game are exhausted to the point of prostration by their experiences before Boston. Nearly all have taken to their beds and will require many days to recover from the heavy colds, the blistered feet, and the muscle bruises. William Farren of the New Haven Grays said to-day that the suffering of the Nutmeg State troops was universal and severe. He said:

"Two days in the heavy rain from 6 o'clock in the morning till 6 o'clock at night made every soldier look like a drowned rat. The Grays found so many of their company completely prostrated that they hired a house, and it was soon packed from cellar to dome with members of the company who were ill. Others, unable to march longer, begged quarters in hotels and houses and were cared for there. We passed Company A of Waterbury, and learned that they had not had a mouthful from Monday morning till Tuesday noon. Many of this company dropped out through sheer starvation. The horses of cavalry Troop A of this city had no water or food, and many of them suffered so badly from lack of food that they had to be shot. Only once on the entire trip were we able to get enough water to fill our canteens. All the wells along the line of march were dry. While we were on the transport Meade we were given hardtack that was full of worms, and the coffee was unfit to drink."

McGOWAN SENDS SYMPATHY.

Acting Mayor Tells Boston Mayor He Has Sincere Pity for Fallen City.

When Acting Mayor McGowan received word that Boston had fallen into the hands of the victorious Red Army, he sent the following message to Mayor Hibberd of that city:

"You have my sincere pity for your fallen city. New York's soldiers are gallant fighters, but generous conquerors."

MAURETANIA MAKES NEW OCEAN RECORD

Big Cunarder Sails from Liverpool to New York in 4 Days, 14 Hours and 38 Minutes.

NOW HOLDS ALL RECORDS

More Than a Thousand Passengers Aboard the Liner—She Stays at Quarantine Over Night.

The Cunarder Mauretania from Liverpool arrived at Quarantine last night just too late to allow her to come to her pier and be the first steamship to cross the North Atlantic from Liverpool, and, leaving there on Saturday, land her passengers here on a Thursday night.

The Mauretania is the first transatlantic liner to come over the short or northerly course this season, and she made the remarkably fast time of 4 days 14 hours and 38 minutes, breaking the recrod westward over the short course, which was held by her sister ship, the Lusitania. The latter came over in 4 days 15 hours, flat. By her performance last night the Mauretania has cut down the record twenty-two minutes, and won her title to being the fastest passenger-carrying steamship afloat. She now holds all records.

The Mauretania would have fulfilled the ambition of Capt. Pritchard to land his passengers last night even though she experienced some haze and rough weather at the latter end of her trip, but, though she reached Sandy Hook at 9:10 P. M. and Quarantine at 9:50 P. M., the line decided not to steam her up the river until daylight. This was a disappointment to her officers and many of the passengers.

By wireless early in the afternoon Capt. Pritchard notified his office here that he would come to the pier last night. The line notified the customs officials, and all was ready for her arrival. Then the line officials countermanded the order for her to come up, and she dropped anchor for the night. The Mauretania has on board over a thousand passengers.

The voyage was rather uneventful. Her best run was made on Monday, when 655 knots were logged. The lowest day's run was 587 knots.

Some of the passengers on the vessel did land last night. They were the schoolboy team and their teacher escort, the Rev. A. A. King and John Conway, who have been racing around the world in record time for The New York American.

Under a special arrangement with the harbor authorities the lads and their escort were taken off the vessel in a tug as soon as she dropped anchor. They were hurried to the Battery, where they landed. They went to the City Hall in cabs, where Acting Mayor McGowan welcomed them.

The boys from Chicago, who are also completing a trip around the world, were sent on to Chicago last night in a special train. The New York team is said to have gone over the world-around route in 41 days and 8 hours.

Among the prominent voyagers are Lord Strathcona, Col. Cary Sanger, and Sir John Harrington of the British Foreign Office.

One of the arrivals was William R. Hearst, who has been abroad about two months. He was taken off the big Cunarder at Quarantine in a tug, and hurried to the Battery. It was nearly midnight when he landed.

Mr. Hearst said he had spent a very pleasant time abroad. He declined to discuss the Mayoralty situation.

"I haven't got my bearings yet," he said. "When I have been here a couple of days I will be glad to talk to you."

"Did you see Justice Gaynor while abroad?" Mr. Hearst was asked. The Brooklyn Judge has a keen admirer in the Independence League leader, who asked him to become the Mayoralty candidate in 1905, when he finally ran himself after Justice Gaynor had declined.

"No, I did not," said Mr. Hearst, his manner indicating that it was a surprise to him to learn that Justice Gaynor had gone abroad.

Mr. Hearst was driven in an automobile to his home in the Clarendon, at Eighty-sixth Street and Riverside Drive. Mrs. Hearst and her sister, Miss Wilson, who went abroad with Mr. Hearst, returned on the Mauretania. So did Clarence J. Shearn, Mr. Hearst's counsel, who joined him abroad.

GRIEF DROVE HER TO DRINK.

Mother Worried Over Illness of Daughter, Who Died as She Was Helpless.

When Charles Wirth got home from work last night, he found a note and two telegrams on the table in the living-room of his flat at 272 West Nineteenth Street. The note informed him that his wife had been arrested for intoxication. The first telegram told him that his only child, a four-year-old girl, was seriously ill at Hope Farm, Verbank, Dutchess County, N. Y., and the second said that the girl had died at the New York City Children's Hospital on Randall's Island.

Wirth said last night that his daughter had been ill for weeks, and in hope of bettering her condition he and his wife sent her to Hope Farm, a charitable institution. He and his wife were unable to leave the city, having a hard time to make both ends meet. The constant worry over their child's health, Wirth said, had made his wife ill. She had not been able to sleep for several weeks, he said. Yesterday, he learned later, unable to eat from worry she took a drink of whisky. This went to her head, and she was arrested in front of her home charged with intoxication.

Magistrate Corrigan discharged the woman, and she was told of her child's death after leaving the court.

WEALTHY SPINSTER SLAIN.

Her Sister Had Gone Away for a Time—Two Men Arrested.

BROXTON, Ga., Aug. 19.—News has just reached here of the murder of Miss Mattie Graham, one of two maiden sisters, which occurred some time during last night near her home, two miles north of Hokesboro, in Coffee County. She was dragged to a creek half a mile from her house, where there was a desperate struggle, and her skull was crushed.

The motive is believed to have been robbery, as Miss Graham was wealthy. Her sister was away from home at the time of the murder.

Sheriff Ricketson late to-day arrested William McLeod, a youth who is employed on the Graham farm, and under a strict examination he confessed to knowing where the body had been hidden, although he denied having murdered the woman. He was placed in Douglas jail. A. B. Carter, another white tenant, was also arrested.

BERKELEY CALLS A WOMAN.

Miss Smith Chosen Professor of Mathematics in California University.

BOONE, Iowa, Aug. 19.—Miss Adelaide Smith, a native of this city, has been elected to the chair of mathematics in the University of California at Berkeley.

Miss Smith was a brilliant student and an accomplished pianist and early gave signs of a promising career. She left Boone for Chicago, where her parents now reside, several years ago. From there she went to Johannesburg, South Africa, to take the chair of mathematics in the university there.

WOMAN DEAD ON ELEVATOR.

Janitor's Sister Crushed—Negro Operator Who Found Her Arrested.

Hannah L. Mahoney, 33 years old, sister of Joseph Mahoney, janitor of 12 East Twenty-third Street, was found dead on the top of the elevator in the building yesterday morning at 8 o'clock when James Baker, a negro, of 44 East 132d Street, the operator, started the elevator up for the first trip.

Baker is a prisoner in the East Twenty-second Street Station, but Coroner Harburger has not yet determined the exact manner in which the woman met her death. It is suspected that she fell through the open elevator down from the third floor, and was crushed between the elevator and the top of the shaft. The body is at the morgue, awaiting an autopsy.

The woman's face was lacerated and bruised, and it is believed that almost every bone in her body was broken.

The ground floor of the building is occupied by a restaurant and the upper floors are office rooms. Mahoney and his sister occupy an apartment on the seventh and top floor. At the time of the discovery of the body, Mahoney was not there, having gone, as he said, to meet a friend on an incoming steamer.

ELEVEN DROWNED AT SEA.

Went Down with Fishing Schooner Orinoco, Which Capsized.

LUNENBURG, N. C., Aug. 19.—Eleven members of the crew of the Gloucester, Mass., fishing schooner Orinoco were drowned as they slept in their berths last night when the vessel capsized twenty-five miles off Cambro, and sank less than three minutes later. Capt. William Larkin of Pubnico, N. S., the commander of the vessel, three men, who were on deck at the time of the accident, and one man who was below, but who reached the deck in safety, were saved.

The Orinoco was on her way to the Grand Banks. The helmsman had brought the schooner up into the wind to clear the jib-sheet, which had become fouled. When the vessel came around, the wind caught the sails back, and the craft capsized and sank immediately. The Captain and the other men who survived put off in dories before the schooner sank.

The schooner Orinoco was built at Essex, Mass., in 1902, was 88 tons net register, and 102.8 feet long.

STOLE FOR SOCIAL REASONS.

Jamaican Postmaster Helped Family to Keep Up with Wealthier English.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—Edward W. Excell, alias John W. Leslie, who is charged with embezzling $9,000 from the Post Office of which he was in charge, at Hempstead, Jamaica, was to-day held in heavy bail by a Magistrate for a further hearing to-morrow. He will be turned over to the United States authorities, who will arrange for extradition in all likelihood.

Excell was arrested upon the arrival here last night from Port Antonio of the steamship Vincenzo di Giorgio on a warrant obtained by Wilfred Powell, British Consul at this port. He at first denied his guilt, but under the questioning of detectives broke down and confessed. In tears he said that what wrong he had done was not for himself, but for the needs of his family, who, he declared, tried to keep pace with the wealthier English in Hempstead.

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 19.—A telegram from Mammoth Hot Springs, Yellowstone Park, reports that a new geyser has broken out 100 feet north of Fountain Geyser, playing 150 to 200 feet high. The eruptions are not regular and last generally about one hour.

DETROIT PASTOR MISSING.

Preaches and Then Disappears—Relatives Think He Worked Too Hard.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 19.—The Rev. Carl S. Jones, associate pastor of the large North Woodward Avenue Congregational Church in this city, has disappeared, leaving nothing to explain his action. He dropped out of sight after preaching a sermon at his church on Aug. 1.

His relatives, who made public to-day the fact of his disappearance, think that hard work may have unsettled his mind.

THE McMANUS GIVES A PICNIC.

Little Tim and Big Tom Foley Will Lead His 3,500 Guests to College Point.

Senator The McManus and his followers in the Eleventh Assembly District will join with prominent Tammanyites from other sections of the city in making merry on Monday, Aug. 23, when the annual outing and games of the Thomas J. McManus Association will be held at Witzel's Point View Grove, College Point.

It was announced yesterday that "Little Tim" Sullivan and "Big Tom" Foley, the Sheriff, would lead the parade of the McManus cohorts from the clubhouse on Ninth Avenue to the foot of West Forty-fifth Street, where the Iron Steamboat Sirius will be in waiting to take the picnic party to the grove.

It was estimated, when the schedule of refreshments was made up, that 3,500 persons would partake of the McManus hospitality. The start will be made promptly at 9:30 A. M.

Outing of 21st District Republicans.

The Manhattan Republican Club of the Twenty-first Assembly District will have its annual outing and clambake to-morrow at Witzel's Grove, College Point. The members and their guests will leave Cording & Salzmann's dock at 135th Street and the Harlem River at 9:30 A. M. A series of athletic events has been arranged for the afternoon, including a baseball game between teams of the Manhattan Republican Club and the Liberal Republican Club of the Twenty-third Assembly District. The bake will be opened at 5 P. M.

Osteopath's Death Certificate Void.

In refusing Undertaker A. Struening of 465 Ninth Avenue a permit to bury the body of Mrs. Hannah Elizabeth Bigelow, 70 years old, of 215 East Fortieth Street, who died on Wednesday afternoon of natural causes, the Board of Health yesterday gave as a reason that the certificate of her death had been signed by two members of the German-American School of Osteopathy. Dr. Darlington, President of the board, said that until the Supreme Court in Brooklyn had handed down a decision on the Osteopaths' bill passed by the Assembly, and challenged on the point of constitutionality Dr. William H. Guilfoy, the Registrar of Records would continue to refuse permission to bury those treated by practitioners of that school.

STRIKERS WOULD END M'KEES ROCKS STRIKE

Their Offer to Return to Work Rejected by Car Company, Labor Leader Says.

MOB IS LED BY A WOMAN

Fires Upon Steamboat Which Landed More Imported Men—Woman Had Baby in Her Arms.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 19.—To-day for the first time the strikers at the Pressed Steel Car Company's plant in McKees Rock wavered and broke ranks by refusing to attend the usual mass meeting held on the Indian Mound, back of the town. It was in vain that the strike leaders tried to whip the mein into line.

C. A. Wise, Chairman of the Strikers' Executive Committee, announced to-day that he had found it would be impossible for the company to pay the scale of 1907, on which the fight has been made, and that the strikers had offered to return to work in a body if the company would continue its investigation against graft and attend to some minor matters. Wise said that the company refused to do anything of the sort and refused to treat with any one representing the strikers.

The proposition of the strikers is considered tantamount to an offer of complete surrender and that of the company a refusal to accept the surrender.

Three thousand strikers lined the banks of the Ohio River, and men in the crowd fired more than 100 shots from pistols when the company landed fifty more imported men from the steamer P. M. Pfeil to-day. The shots were fired in the direction of a woman who had a baby in her arms. A detail of ten troopers of the State Constabulary, in command of a Sergeant, all mounted, sallied from the plant as the boat pulled near the landing place and held the strikers in check and dispersed them. It is said some of the shots fired struck the boat. No one was injured.

Deputy Sheriffs to-day arrested an imported workingman from Philadelphia on a charge of breaking windows inside the plant of the car company. After his arrest the workingman told the Sheriff that his reason for breaking the windows was simply to get out of the plant, as every request he had made of Superintendents to be permitted to go outside had been refused. On the strength of the charge made by the man, Sheriff Gumbert of Allegheny County investigated.

Strike leaders said to-day that they saw imported workingmen try to pass guards stationed at the gates of the plant and have seen the imported men beaten back by clubs. The Sheriff said that his investigations of the charge of the arrested workingman proved to be without foundation in fact.

More than 500 shots were fired last night and early to-day by strikers and sympathizers who had gathered on the O'Donovan bridge, near the works.

Strike leaders to-day explained the shooting and disorder. They said that workmen are being held in the mills against their wishes and that the shooting was for the purpose of bringing the constabulary from the plant to the bridge to give the new men an opportunity to escape from the works. But the troopers did not leave the plant.

THINK BURGLAR KILLED HIM.

Young Lawyer Found Dead in Yard with Two Bullet Wounds.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 19.—The body of Albert Gerald, a prominent young lawyer, was found lying in the front yard of his home, 194 Arlington Avenue, on the fashionable east side to-day, with two bullet wounds an inch apart in the region of his heart. His family was away for the Summer. It is the theory of the police that he was reading in his library early this morning when he heard some one prowling about the house, and upon investigating came suddenly upon a burglar, who shot the lawyer to escape capture. Then, the police think, the burglar dropped the revolver beside the body with the idea of making it appear a case of suicide.

Gerald was 38 years of age. He dined with a friend last evening and returned to his home in excellent spirits shortly after 10 o'clock, after havig made arrangements to meet the friend this morning.

ILLITERACY LED TO DEATH.

Negro Couldn't Read Burglar Trap Warning and Was Shot.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—Unable to read a warning in the window of a store in the Kentucky Highlands, across the river from Cincinnati, to beware of a burglar trap, James McCurdy, a colored man, entered the store last night. To-day his body was found on the floor. He had been caught in the trap, a load of buckshot from a shotgun having ended his life.

The trigger was attached to a cash register pull. The muzzle was aimed on a level with the counter, just where a man would naturally stand to open the register. When McCurdy opened the drawer the full charge of the shot entered his stomach.

NEW SCHUMACHER EVIDENCE.

Cemetery Won't Be Reconsecreated, as Murder Is Placed Outside It.

ROCHESTER, Aug. 19.—Through the draining of an ice pond near the scene of the murder of Anna Schumacher evidence has been found, it is believed, that she was murdered near the spot where her body was buried in a hastily made grave on Aug. 7.

A fine comb and a button with portions of her clothing attached and a bit of paper in which she wrapped a pair of shears at her home before going to Holy Sepulchre Cemetery to decorate the family graves, found in the pond bottom, have been identified as the property of the murdered girl.

This will end the question of the reconsecrating of the cemetery. Had the murder been placed definitely within its consecrated portion the cemetery would have been reconsecrated.

CLEW TO ASSASSINS OF LIEUT. PETROSINO

Detectives Vachris and Crowley Back from an Investigation of His Murder in Palermo.

BIG CRIMINAL CRUSADE ON

Plan Afoot to Co-operate with Italian Government to Keep Undesirables from Landing Here.

Police Lieut. Tony Vachris and Detective John. R. Crowley arrived unheralded yesterday morning at Police Headquarters. They had landed from the Regina d'Italia, and had come directly from Naples, where they went to try to discover the assassins of Lieut. Joe Petrosino, who was shot at Palermo March 12.

They at once went to report to Commissioner Baker and had a long conference within. No details were given out of this, but in a short statement the Commissioner announced that the visit of the detectives had been of distinct value, which may result in the apprehension of Petrosino's slayer. He laid particular stress on the fact that Vachris and Crowley had gathered much valuable information with regard to Italian criminals, who have established themselves here, and he announced that there is reason to hope that before long some arrangement will be concluded between the Italian Government and the New York Police Department with reference to other criminals, who may try to effect a landing.

This work is on the lines which Petrosino regarded as the only possible solution of the Black Hand and other criminal problems. He had paid a great deal of attention to the immigration laws and was convinced that not until the Italian Government ceased to regard immigration to America as a convenient means of ridding itself of its troublesome subjects would the New York police be clear of the almost impossible task of keeping down Italian crime.

Commissioner Baker was asked yesterday afternoon to outline the arrangement, which it is hoped may be made with the Italian authorities, but he refused in any way to add to his formal statement. Lieut. Vachris and Detective Crowley also declared that they were unable to say anything without the permission of the Commissioner. Here is the official announcement:

> Lieuts. Vachris and Crowley report as the result of their visit to Italy that they have brought back much valuable information in regard to Italian criminals now in America, and that we will be enabled to establish a working agreement between that country and this department which will be of great benefit in connection with Italian criminals who may in future sail for this country.
> They have also some information in regard to the assassination of Lieut. Petrosino which, it is hoped, will be effective in reaching the men responsible for his death.

Among the rumors which were rife at Headquarters yesterday was the statement that the detectives had brought back the names of 200 counterfeiters, who make a specialty of American money, some of which is said to find its way into this country by way of Canada. It is also believed that the hunt for the slayers of Lieut. Petrosino will be at once renewed with increased vigor as the result of the researches made in Italy.

The dangers to which the detectives were exposed on their trip was evidenced by the arrival of Vachris with a black Vandyck beard, which so altered his appearance that he was not recognized when he entered Headquarters. When Petrosino went to Italy he was warned by the Italian authorities that it would be hazardous for him to go about in Sicily, the home of the Mafia. He refused to take any warnings, and was shot down on the eve of his return to this country with a great deal of valuable information.

When Vachris arrived in Italy about April 1 a similar warning was given to him. But by growing his beard he assumed the appearance of a Jew, and taking the name of John Simon he went freely about Palermo and into the haunts of the very men who would have been only too pleased to run a knife into him had they realized his identity.

The detectives have been away about four months. They were sent originally by Commissioner Bingham, but had not completed their work when he was dismissed. Commissioner Baker gave them a free hand to stay as long as they thought proper, and now that they have returned and it is officially announced that they have achieved important results, it is believed that arrests and possibly many deportations of immigrants with criminal records will be the result, as well as the capture of the assassins of Petrosino.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

SANTANDER, Spain, Aug. 19. — Cipriano Castro, former President of Venezuela, has left here for Solares, a resort seven miles from Santander, to take the cure.

PEKING, Aug. 19.—A solution of the boycott of long standing against the British coal mines in Honan Province has apparently been reached by the conclusion of an agreement which permits the mines to dispose of their product at wholesale. The British Legation has been informed that an edict suppressing the boycott will be granted.

GAYNOR BOOM STARTS A ROW.

Indorsement Adopted Amid Disorder at Brooklyn Civic Meeting.

A meeting which was called last night by the civic organizations and Boards of Trade of Brooklyn at the Johnston Building, in Nevins Street, near Flatbush Avenue, to discuss the rapid transit facilities, resolved itself into a Mayoralty boom for Justice Gaynor. There were about 100 present, and Michael E. O'Connor was made Chairman of the meeting.

At the opening of the discussion several men arose and protested against the condition of affairs in the borough. After Arthur Cameron, President of the Twenty-fifth Ward Independence League, had declared that a man should be nominated for Mayor who would give proper transit facilities there were shouts of Gaynor from a part of the audience, while another faction wanted to know whether it was a political meeting.

Morris V. Theall, President of the Downtown Board of Trade, offered a resolution that the Boards of Trade should not indorse a man who would not promise proper transit facilities, and Durbin Van Vleck, Deputy Tax Commissioner, added an amendment:

"We are in favor of Justice Gaynor as candidate for Mayor, and move that the Chairman be empowered to authorize and appoint a committee of five to confer with other independent organizations to bring about Justice Gaynor's nomination."

Great confusion followed Theall's acceptance of the amendment, and several men representing various political organizations arose and vigorously opposed the amendment. Cornelius Sheehan, Secretary of the Twenty-eighth Ward Board of Trade, declared that they had been hoodwinked, and that the meeting had been turned into a political boom by trickery. All the opposition to the motion and the amendment was hooted down by its sympathizers, and several finally left the hall. The resolution and the amendment favoring Justice Gaynor's nomination were finally passed, and the meeting broke up in disorder.

PARSONS ON THE MAYORALTY.

He Will Not Have an Unofficial Vote on Available Candidates.

Word came from the Republican camp yesterday that President Herbert Parsons of the Republican County Committee, after consultation with his district leaders, has determined to drop a plan much discussed recently. It had been intended to give the enrolled Republicans in Mr. Parsons's bailiwick an opportunity to indicate their preference for Mayoralty nominees by a system of unofficial primaries to be conducted in connection with the official primary election.

A similar plan was used by Mr. Parsons at the primaries last year for the purpose of determining the strength of Gov. Hughes with organization Republicans. Partly as a result of this test Mr. Parsons supported the Governor for the renomination at Saratoga.

Mr. Parsons and the other leaders feel that a primary test of that kind would be impractical on this occasion, partly because it might tend to bring out too big a field of candidates for the nomination, and partly because it might tend to bind the organization to some man who would not do at all as a fusion candidate.

The Committee on Candidates of the Committee of One Hundred held its first meeting last night and effected organization by electing Eugene H. Outerbridge Chairman and Joseph M. Price Secretary, the same position these men hold with the full Committee of One Hundred. After a two-hour conference the members scattered with the official announcement that the subject of candidates and fusion had been fully discussed but no conclusion had been reached. The Committee on Candidates will meet again next Monday.

An official statement was made yesterday by the Committee of One Hundred declaring unwarranted any inference that Justice Gaynor would be the Committee's candidate for Mayor, from the interview given on Tuesday by Chairman Raymond V. Ingersoll of the Hundred's Executive Committee.

HUGHES REOPENS HIS FIGHT.

Pleads Again for Direct Primaries and Will Continue Speaking.

WALDEN, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Direct nominations was the theme of Gov. Hughes to-day in an address before a large assemblage at the annual outing of the Wallkill Valley Farmers' Association at Gillespie's Grove, near Walden. It was the first of a series of addresses on the subject which the Governor plans to deliver between now and election in various parts of the State.

"The matter of direct nominations is not a personal concern of mine," said the Governor, "and I would not have recommended it were it not that I believe it involves a fundamental reform that we must have in the State if the people are to take charge of their own affairs. I want to see responsible leadership, leadership that represents something more than selfish purpose. There are many who talk about party loyalty, but we do not want party loyalty capitalized for personal gain."

The Governor declared that the State had been run by rings almost from the beginning of its government and had been a hotbed of political strife. "But we can do better than we have done," he continued. "Public opinion has enormous play. Even despots bow to public opinion, and when the tide of public opinion rises sufficiently high the American boss will recognize it."

Gov. Hughes after his address returned to Albany.

SAY WELLMAN HAS STARTED FOR POLE

Ship Captain Reports His Balloon Sailed North from Spitzbergen Aug. 16.

WAS TO CARRY THREE MEN

On Previous Attempt to Reach Pole by Airship in 1907 Wellman's Balloon Was Wrecked on Glacier.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—A special dispatch has been received here from Triest saying that according to a telegram received from the Captain of the Italian steamer Thalia, now at Hammerfest, Norway, Walter Wellman left Spitzbergen on Aug. 16 in his dirigible balloon, bound for the north pole. He had a favorable wind when the start was made.

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Arthur Wellman, who lives in Madison, and whose husband has been with his brother, Walter Wellman, making preparations for the flight to the north pole, received a letter from her husband to-day in which he stated that Walter would within three or four days start for the pole. He said his brother would take with him simply an engineer and one other man.

This is Walter Wellman's second attempt to reach the north pole in an airship. The craft in which he sailed to-day is the same one in which he made the unsuccessful attempt, in 1907, when he was driven back to his starting point by a severe storm which he encountered. Mr. Wellman recently estimated that the pole could be reached in from two to five days under favorable conditions from Spitzbergen, the point from which he is said to have started on his present trip.

For four years Mr. Wellman has been making preparations for the undertaking to reach the north pole in an airship. He was at Spitzbergen with a balloon in 1906, but postponed his departure on account of the lateness of the season. He left this city on May 12 last for Spitzbergen to complete his preparations for the start. Before leaving he said that the capital for his undertaking had been supplied entirely by Americans interested in the project on scientific and patriotic grounds.

FALLING TOWER WRECKS CAR.

Other Cars of Passing Train Damaged and Five Passengers Hurt.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—A tower on the building of the English Gas Company, located in the suburb of Schoenberg, collapsed at noon to-day and fell across the tracks of the Circular Railway.

An unoccupied car of a passing train was completely wrecked. Some of the other cars were slightly damaged, but as the train was almost empty only five passengers were injured. Their hurts are slight. The English Company supplies Berlin with gas. The tower was 250 feet high.

AGAMEMNON REFLOATED.

British Battleship Stranded Wednesday Goes to Margate for Examination.

SHEERNESS, England, Aug. 19.—The British first-class battleship Agamemnon, which stranded yesterday on the Longsands range, while engaged in target practice was refloated at half-past two this afternoon with the assistance of tugs. The battleship afterward proceeded to Margate for an examination of her hull.

INTERPELLATION ON STEEL.

Jaures, Socialist Leader, to Ask in Deputies About Listing Stock in Paris.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—M. Jaures, the Socialist leader, has announced his intention of interpellating the Government regarding the proposal to quote officially in France American speculative stocks.

The interpellation regards notably the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation.

STANDARD OIL APPEALS TAXES

Objects to Increase of Its Bayonne Assessment from $7,360,000 to $13,000,000.

The Standard Oil Company has appealed to the Hudson County Board of Equalization against the increase of the assessment on its Bayonne property this year from $7,300,000 to $13,000,000. A hearing was granted the corporation yesterday, and Col. Charles Fuller, representing the company, declared that if no fair adjustment was made the company would appeal to the courts and would delay the payment of the taxes, which are one-fifth of all that Bayonne collects annually.

Assessor Hinse of Bayonne and his assistants, Oliver and Clark, were examined as to their method of making assessments. They insisted that the valuation placed on the Standard Oil property is just and can be sustained. This means that the Assessors are not likely to recede, and an appeal will be taken after the county board confirms the Bayonne books. However, Mr. Hinse was ordered yesterday to go over his books and see if there are any changes he can make.

Other corporations are also asking for reductions in their assessments, and if they are not made next week Bayonne is likely to be crippled financially, and may be forced to borrow money on temporary loan bonds to meets its obligations.

HUSBAND CUT OFF IN WILL.

Mrs. Creighton Left Her Entire Estate to Her Daughter.

The will of Mrs. Emily S. Creighton, wife of Frederick W. Creighton of 530 West 112th Street, and a sister of George S. Strawbridge of Philadelphia, who died on Aug. 14, was filed yesterday for probate. Her daughter, Charlotte Ellis Dunn, gets the entire estate, which is left in trust, the income to be devoted to her maintenance until she reaches 21. She will then get the entire income, and at the age of 30 the principal. She also receives her mother's diamonds and jewelry.

A portion of the document reads:

"If, however, my son, George B. S. Dunn, should, at the death of my daughter, be entitled to receive the whole or any portion of the estate, it is to be held in trust until he is 30 years old."

No bequest to her husband is made by Mrs. Creighton, which she explains by saying that "he has already received large sums of money from me."

ORGANIST MISSING; WIFE'S MIND BLANK

Mrs. H. E. H. Benedict Found Unconscious Under the Bed by Her Brooklyn Neighbors.

HOUSE BADLY UPSET INSIDE

Husband Just Out of Hospital, Where She Constantly Watched Him—Her Sanity Questioned.

Calling constantly for her husband, who left her, Mrs. H. E. H. Benedict, wife of a music teacher of 825 President Street, Brooklyn, was taken yesterday afternoon from the Methodist Episcopal Hospital to the Kings County Hospital, to be placed under observation as to her sanity. Mrs. Benedict was taken to the Methodist Episcopal Hospital on Aug. 12 after she had been found unconscious beneath a bed in her home. After going to the hospital Mrs. Benedict was for three days in a stupor, then she gradually recovered, but her memory has since been a blank.

As to how she came to be lying beneath the bed, with the windows of the house and the front door open and her husband gone, Mrs. Benedict has not been able to tell the police of the Bergen Street Station, who have been working on the queer case. Mrs. Benedict's husband, who until recently was organist of the First Reformed Church, Brooklyn, was ill in the Jewish Hospital there from early in July until Aug. 7. During his stay an operation was performed.

Mrs. Benedict was at her husband's side at the hospital as much as she could be. Neighbors saw them return home together the night of Aug. 7, accompanied by a young man who carried a suit case. No more was seen of Prof. Benedict by the neighbors after that. He left the house some time between that night and the noon of Aug. 12, but when it was no one knew.

All the neighbors do know of the strange affair is that the windows and front door of the Benedict house were open for at least two days before Aug. 12, when, excited by curiosity, one of them, a woman living across the way, went into the house to investigate. She found the furniture in the parlor upset, bric-à-brac scattered about and broken, and papers strewn around.

The police of the Bergen Street Station set out to try to find what had become of Prof. Benedict. They questioned all the neighbors, but without getting any clue. On Wednesday night it was learned that the day before he had engaged a room at the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn. The police tried to see him, but whenever they called word was given that he was out. Where Prof. Benedict went after leaving home the police up to last night had been unable to ascertain.

Mrs. Benedict, on regaining consciousness at the hospital, could throw no light upon the chaotic condition of her home or the absence of her husband. She was in a half-starved condition when the hospital physicians began to treat her. She was unable to tell how long it had been since she had tasted food.

Dr. Cross, one of the staff physicians, who lives in the neighborhood of the woman's home, tried to jog her memory, but without avail. All Mrs. Benedict could say was that her husband had left, she did not know why. Mrs. Benedict in the last two days has done little but call for her husband.

The police have no theory to offer as to how Mrs. Benedict met with the peculiar misadventure that ended in her being found beneath the bed, except that she broke down from the strain of her husband's illness and, when he left, gave way, not being able to care for herself.

Mrs. Benedict owns the brownstone house on President Street. Her husband has been a music teacher in Brooklyn for twenty-five years and had a large clientele.

Ford 1910
If you are looking for "sensations" we are sorry, for we have none to offer. The "sensations" of today are the twelve and twenty-four months' late imitations of the FORD successes of the past.
The FORD 1910 policy will be the same as that of 1909 and several years previous. There will be but one type of car made in the FORD factory and all the FORD energy, ability and manufacturing facilities will be focused on that one product. We have no high priced car. FORD is a specialist.
We are delivering 1910 cars right now; delivered exactly 500 last week.
If it's sensational to be different, then this is our only claim to the sensational. Instead of planning, we are producing. In place of promising, we are delivering.
As riding around in attractively tagged pictures affords little profit or pleasure, it would appear to be the wiser plan to settle the matter now and secure a car, not a promise; a proven success, not a designer's dream.

BOSTON GOES DOWN TO DOUBLE DEFEAT

Visitors, Unable to Stand the Pace, Lose Two Games to Yankees, 7—6, 2—1.

MEXICANS IN THE BOX

Manager Lake's Experiment Proved Costly to His Club, Which Dropped Back to Third Place.

Tying in the fifth, taking a two-run lead in the seventh, and stalling off Boston in the eighth, the Highlanders, in American League Park, yesterday took the first game of a double-header by a score of 7 to 6. In the next game they tied in the ninth and won on a fluke with two out in the tenth, the score this time being 2 to 1. So doing, they dashed the hopes of the Puritans, who had counted on using the duplex event as a pole with which to vault into first place. Instead of taking the lead of the league, so close is the race in Ban Johnson's organization, the Back Bay contingent slipped back into third place through the loss of those two games. The two-ply victory sent the Hilltoppers hotfoot after Chicago for another tussle for the foremost position in the second division.

Manager Fred Lake at the beginning of each game sent a Mexican to the box. Arellanes started the opening encounter; Hall worked through the next. Hall is as thorough a Greaser as Ary. His name is Carlos Cholo, but he calls himself Hall in the baseball world. He is as swart as Arellanes, and has pretty much the same delivery. Hall was more effective than his compatriot, in that he lasted through the game, whereas Arellanes was withdrawn for the good of the team. But he threw away his own game by a wide throw in the tenth, when a straight hurl would have retired the locals and would have left the score tied, with a strong chance that Umpire Perrine would call the game on account of darkness.

Hall's wild throw dragged Stahl off the bag, and the ball crashed against Jake's left eye. Stahl clapped both hands to his face and fell to the grass, rolling and rocking in great pain. Brockett was on first and two men were down when Hall, after stopping Demmitt's attempt at a hit, made the bad heave. Stahl fell on the ball, and before another fielder could find it Brockett ran all the way home with the winning tally.

A hit batsman, Lord's triple and Speaker's double gave the Puritans two tallies in the third inning of the first game, throughout which Warhop worked. The Highlanders got a count in the same round on Demmitt's bunt, Keeler's double, and Engle's sacrifice fly. In the third chapter Warhop apparently went to pieces. Boston tallied three times on fielding and battery errors and a pair of singles. But New York knew a trick worth two of that. The locals scored four times in the middle inning on bungles by fielders and batterymen and three hits. That tied the counts, and in the seventh the Toppers marked twice on Keeler's single, walks by Engle and Elberfeld, Laporte's infield safety, and a sacrifice fly from Knight's bat. Against all that, one more in the eighth was the best Boston could do. A beautiful catch by Demmitt, running backward, saved the day for the locals in the ninth, when the visitors had the bases filled.

Brockett faced Hall for the second struggle. It was a pitchers' duel from first to last. Boston scored once in the fourth on Speaker's triple, Gessler's walk, and a double play. In the ninth, successive singles by Keeler, Engle, and Elberfeld tied the score, and in the tenth the home players won on the fluke that was so painful to Jake Stahl.

MATHEWSON LOSES PITCHERS' BATTLE

Giants Close Philadelphia Series with an Even Break in Double-Header.

PEERLESS ONE'S DOWNFALL

After Winning Hard-Hitting Game, 6—4, New York Meets Stumbling Block and Drops Second, 1—0.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—There was a division of war spoils at the Philadelphia Ball Park yesterday afternoon. In the first engagement between Quaker and Giant the latter triumphed—6 to 4. In the final contest victory came to the Phillies by the smallest possible score by which a game can be won—1 to 0. Of the four-game series the Quakers only captured the last, which came in a most sensational and unexpected manner when hope had fled from over 5,000 spectators. It was by far the best exhibition of the series, and the only one in which there is reflected any credit to the Phillies. Moore, Magee, and Bransfield were the heroes.

The first developed into a clouting matinée from the first ball pitched. Ames started for the Giants, but was as wild as an inexperienced aviator. After passing the first two men to face him, being stung for two solid raps, and then butting a bender into the ribs of another batsman, he was flagged in favor of Crandall, who pitched in superb style the remaining innings. Moren began operations for the Phillies. His curves were big marks for the Giants' bats. Eight hits, including a home run and two doubles, yielding five runs, furnished conclusive evidence that the "millionaire kid" was useless for the day. Sparks supplanted him in the fourth, and remained on the firing line with indifferent success until the ninth, when Corridon finished the game.

The Giants found Sparks for seven hits, but exceptional fielding limited their scoring on him to a single run. Corridon was touched for two singles and gave a pass, but retired his opponents scoreless. In only one inning could the Phillies bunch two hits on Crandall for runs. This was in the seventh inning when Bates bunted safely and came home on Magee's crash to the flagpole for two bases.

Hitting featured the first game. Magee and Schlei were the mighty bat wielders, each getting two doubles and the same number of singles, the Giants' catcher having an average of 1,000 for the game. Ward, with two doubles and a single, was also in the distinguished batting class.

Moore and Mathewson gave the most scientific exhibition of pitching witnessed in this city for many moons. It was a battle of curves, with a highly sensational ending. For eight innings the battle hung on a base hit. Several times a safe drive would have decided the issue. But in these crises the two master boxmen were supreme. Six hits, two scratches, were registered off Matty. Half this number equaled the Giants' batting ability.

While Moore allowed less hits than his brilliant rival, New York had more and better opportunities to score than the Phillies. In the first, second, and third innings a single would have altered the result. But it never came. Moore was master The Quakers only had one man as far as third until the ninth.

Catcher McLean Will Play Again.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—Robert McLean, catcher for the Cincinnati Baseball Club, whose kneecap was broken several days ago, submitted to an operation in a hospital here to-day. The physicians say the operation was successful, but that he will not be able to play again this season.

New Pitcher for the Yankees.

AKRON, Ohio, Aug. 19.—A deal was closed to-day whereby Richard Carroll, pitcher on the Akron team of the Ohio and Pennsylvania Baseball League, will join the New York Americans Sept. 1. It is said $2,500 was paid for Carroll's release. Carroll has a record of winning twenty-five games out of thirty-one this season.

DIXIE II. EASY WINNER.

Famous Power Boat Scores First Victory for Gold Cup.

Special to The New York Times.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, Aug. 19.—Attaining a speed of 30 miles an hour, the famous Dixie II., representing the Thousand Island Yacht Club, in the Gold Challenge cup races of the American Power Boat Association, experienced no trouble whatever here this afternoon in defeating the three other boats which competed in the classic event of the St. Lawrence River. Not once during the entire 32 miles was the Dixie II. opened full head, yet her speed carried her over the line a winner by something like a mile. The opening event of the three day's races was a disappointment, not only to the racing committee, but to the thousands that thronged shores and yachts.

Previous to the race, two disappointments were experienced in the failure of the Courier II., representing the Buffalo Motor Boat Club, in the Pawnee, representing the Clayton Yacht Club, to show up. Not a word did the committee hear from "Fingey" Connors, owner of the Courier, while the Pawnee was withdrawn on account of objections from its owner to having the boat compete.

All four boats got away well, the Duquesne leading. Before the first few miles had passed, the outcome of the race was settled. The Dixie II., running well, forged ahead, gaining foot by foot, leaving a struggling field behind.

Under the point system the Dixie has four points, the Duquesne three, Stranger 2, and Jan 1. The summaries:

Boat.	Finish. H.M.S.	Elapsed Time. H.M.S.
Dixie II.	4:33:50	1:03:50
Duquesne	4:39:20	1:09:20
Stranger	4:42:21	1:12:21
Jan	4:43:11	1:13:11

PACER BROKE DRIVER'S LEG.

Horses and Drivers Thrown in Race at Hills Grove Track.

HILLS GROVE, R. I., Aug. 19.—R. C. Lashbury of Broad Brook, Conn., had his leg broken just above the ankle at the second day's racing on the Hills Grove track to-day. The spectacular mixup occurred in the first half of the third heat of the 2:14 pace. As the field swung into the stretch The Plummer, with Eddy Sunderland up, broke badly.

Ella Willis was close up, and ran into Sunderland, throwing him to the track. Lashbury, driver of Ella Willis, was also thrown heavily. Colner came up and ran into Donnybrook, which was trying to get out of the mix-up, throwing Sherman, Colner's driver. Donnybrook also went down, throwing Martin, his driver. All the horses then scrambled madly to their feet and bolted around the track.

As near as can be learned Colner stepped on Lasbury, breaking his ankle off short. Sunderland was struck about the head, but not seriously injured. Ella Willis's sulky was smashed to pieces, but before damage could be caused all the horses were recaptured. The horses in the mix-up were placed, owing to the unavoidable accident.

ELLEN FIRST SELECTION.

Boston Yacht to Sail Against Germans —Final Choice To-Day.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 19.—Just before the start of the fourth day's racing in the Sonder Klasse elimination contest to-day the special committee of the Eastern Yacht Club having the matter in charge announced the selection of the Ellen, owned by Charles P. Curtis of Boston, as one of the American boats to race against the German challengers for the President Taft and Gov. Draper Cups. This decision was followed closely after the day's racing by the announcement that the Skeezix, owned by Frederick M. Hoyt of New York, had been eliminated from future trials, leaving the Joyette, Crooner, Manchester III., and Wolf to fight it out for the honor of being chosen for the other two places on the American side. These four boats will be given more races to-morrow, as the committee has not fully made up its mind from the performances so far which it considers the more suitable craft to join with the Ellen in the international contest, to be sailed off here beginning Aug. 30.

Two races were sailed to-day, with five participants. In the first race, which was to windward and return in a fluky breeze, the Croooner, owned by C. F. Adams, 2d, was first across the finish line. The Joyette, owned by Commodore William H. Childs of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club, Brooklyn, came dashing across the line the victor in a race over a triangular course that was completed in a hard squall, accompanied by rain, but all the five contestants came through the squall without parting a thread. The summary:

FIRST RACE.

WAR CAR STARTS WEST.

Automobile Bearing Dispatches Leaves for San Francisco.

Bearing dispatches from Major-Gen. Leonard A. Wood, commanding the Department of the East, to Gen. John F. Weston, commanding the Department of California, Private Malcolm E. Parrott, N. G. N. Y., started for San Francisco from Columbus Circle yesterday in the Mitchell Ranger.

It is said to be Major-Gen. Wood's desire to see the establishment of an automobile service in connection with the regular volunteer forces, so military authorities all over the country will watch with interest the ocean to ocean journey of Private Parrott.

New Haven Wins Polo Cup.

Special to The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 19.—There was a large attendance at the Point Judith Country Club polo tournament to-day, when Myopia met New Haven in the final match for the Rhode Island Cup. The game was closely contested, the teams being well matched. New Haven won the cup by a score of 6½ to 6¼. There was considerable riding off, and fouls were of frequent occurrence. Stoddard and Drury made most of the goals for New Haven, and their playing was a feature of the game. The line-up:

Pastime A. C.'s Big Entry List.

A big entry has been received by the Pastime A. C. for its open games, which will be held on the Pastime Oval, Ninetieth Street and Avenue A, to-morrow, starting promptly at 2:30 P. M. Nearly all the athletes of note in the Metropolitan District A. A. U. have sent their entries. John Eller, Roy Dorland, and Dewar will meet in the sprints; Tom Collins, the three and five mile National champion, will measure strides with Harry Jensen, George Obermeyer, Dick Egan, and Eddie Sweeney in the mile handicap. The 600-yard run, handicap, will include many athletes who have been pushing the champions hard in the handicap events during the Summer season.

Hurst Dropped from American League.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—"Tim" Hurst is no longer an umpire on the American League staff. It was officially announced at the office of B. B. Johnson, President of the American League, that Hurst had been dropped from the list of umpires. Hurst was recently suspended following an altercation with Collins of the Philadelphia Club, in which Hurst is alleged to have spat in the player's face. President Johnson investigated the charges, and his announcement yesterday followed.

FAR WEST BACK TO FORM

Veteran Campaigner Runs Over His Field—Donald McDonald, a Canadian Tip, Goes Wrong.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 19.—The first good attendance of the week witnessed the racing to-day and went wrong on four of the six races. The muddy track had only dried on the surface and was stiff and holding, and tangled up form badly. In the one stake event of the programme, May Amelia, a winner in the deep mud of the day before, was sent to the post as favorite, but was never a real contender in the race, the Catskill at seven furlongs, selling.

The veteran campaigner Far West, nursed back to winning form by John Miller, found the going exactly to his liking in the seven furlongs handicap and ran over his field, winning by three lengths, from Firestone, after the latter raced out in front for five furlongs with Ruble and Royal Onyx.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Handicap, for all ages; seven furlongs.
M. L. Schwartz's Far West, b. g., by Montana-Touche Pas, 107, (Butwell,) 118, 9 to 2 and 6 to 5 ..... 1^{3}
S. C. Hildreth's Firestone, 118, (Powers,) 8 to 5 and 3 to 5 ..... 2^{2}
T. G. Molineill's Royal Onyx, 98, (Dugan,) 9 to 5 and 3 to 5 ..... 3^{h}
Ruble, 92, (Garner,) 20 to 1, and Fighting Bob, 88, (E. Martin,) 8 to 1, also ran. Won driving. Time—1:30 4-5.

SECOND RACE.—Steeplechase, for four-year-olds and upward; selling allowances; about two miles.
Mrs. W. G. Wilson's Expansionist, ch. g., by Norwood-Gemima, 137, (McAffee,) 1 to 2 and 1 to 4 ..... 1^{8}
Leonce Fuller's O. K., 132, (Ryan,) 7 to 1 and 8 to 5 ..... 2^{20}
G. R. Tompkins's Bigot, 132, (Allen,) 15 to 1 and 5 to 1 ..... 3^{30}
Pompous, 135, (Huppe,) 40 to 1; Bobbin Around, 132, (Davidson,) 6 to 1, and Meddlesome Boy, 137, (Turnburke,) 8 to 1, also ran. Won easily. Time—4:34.

THIRD RACE.—The Catskill; for three-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs.
Montpelier Stable's Beaucoup, b. c., by Ornament-Ollie Belle, 111, (Creevy,) 9 to 5 and 3 to 5 ..... 1^{3}

J. R. Keene's Coronal Wins in England.

FOLKESTONE, England, Aug. 19.—The Saltwood two-year-old plate of 100 sovereigns, distance five furlongs, was run here to-day, and won by J. R. Keene's Coronal. Barracuta was second, and the Wise Saw filly third. Fourteen horses started. The Cinque Ports Welter Handicap of 100 sovereigns, for three-year-olds and upward, distance five furlongs, was won by Mauve Patch. J. R. Keene's Melisande was second, and Sciandhu third. Seventeen horses ran.

Cutch Whips Fred Dipples.

Harry Cutch whipped Fred Dipples at the Bedford Athletic Club last night. Though the bout went the stipulated ten rounds, Dipples was in a bad way all through, except in the sixth round. In this round Dipples dropped Cutch, but the latter was up again instantly and dancing around in his usual wild manner. Incidentally he got to Dipples with all kinds of wallops. Dipples was badly battered at the finish.

Post Office Men to Play Ball.

The second baseball game of a series for the Intercity Post Office championship will be played at American League Park on Monday, Aug. 23. The teams will be Philadelphia against New York. "Bugs" Raymond of the Giants has been invited to umpire the game.

WESTERN ANGLERS BEST.

Take Three Firsts in International Fly Casting Competitions.

Western anglers showed their supremacy over the men from this section yesterday in the first events of the third international championship fly and bait-casting tournament, which is to extend for a period of three days at the Van Cortlandt Park lake. Three events were decided, and in all the honors went to the representatives of Chicago. D. F. Beatty of the Chicago Fly Casting Club, who took first place in the tournament of last year in the bait casting for accuracy test with a percentage of 99, duplicated his victory yesterday by scoring a percentage of 98 14-15. This lacks only two-fifteenths of equaling the international association record. In the fly casting for distance, F. N. Peet won another victory for the Chicago Fly Casting Club, easily defeating his competitors with a cast of 95 feet, which establishes an international association record, as the event has never before been on the programme for five-ounce rods. The same applies to the bait casting for distance event, which was the concluding one of the day. This contest is a new one in the National Association events, and the mark of 627 feet with the quarter-ounce weight, five throws counting in the score, stands as a record for the event, A. D. Whitby of the Illinois Bait Casting Club attaining the figures.

Four events will be decided to-day—dry fly casting for accuracy, trout fly casting for accuracy, bait casting for distance, and trout fly casting for distance. The summary:

Bait casting for accuracy, one-quarter ounce; distances 60, 65, 70, 75, and 80 feet:

A TRUE CENTRAL BANK.

Only a little while ago a central bank was the first choice of almost all, who nevertheless subordinated their preference to a variety of rival proposals of financial reform because they were deemed more practicable. Thus the central bank idea was relegated to the second place, although on its merits it was entitled to lead the poll. Senator Aldrich's Monetary Commission places the central bank idea first, according to inspired intimations, but we have no details as to the kind of central bank which it is proposed to recommend. What the case calls for is the thing, not the name. A central bank which should alter forms, and perpetuate the substance of old abuses, would be a stalking horse, and a betrayal of the sentiment which the Monetary Commission so shrewdly avails itself of.

The desire to support the findings of the Commission is so strong that no effort should be spared to prevent its taking a position which could not be accepted as satisfactory. It is no proper function of a central bank to support the public credit. A central bank may very well be the Government's banker, and give it banking accommodation, but the maintenance of the Government's credit is the business of the Government, and of the people who support the Government. It was the people who bought the bonds, and who paid the taxes, who supported the credit of the United States under the stress of the rebellion. The banks supplied the machinery, and were entitled to praise for their efficiency and patriotism. But the strain once passed decks ought to have been cleared for the repetition of the operation in case of necessity. To the extent that the National banks are loaded with Government bonds, and to the extent that the Government is maintaining a forced popular loan in the shape of the uncovered greenbacks, the resources of the Government and people are mortgaged against such gigantic financing as would confront the United States in case of another domestic or international war to which the United States might be a party. There is no preparation for war which surpasses such illimitable credit as the United States should enjoy, and yet it is certain that any call to arms would be followed by currency disorders whose damage would rival that of war itself.

The best preparation for war also happens to be the best preparation for peace and commerce. No approved form of central bank either holds the bulk of Government bonds or bases currency upon any form of bonds. The reason is so simple that it ought to be unnecessary to state it, and yet the latest law passed by Congress embodied the heresy that, if bonds are good, currency on bonds is good. What a man wants in a crisis is something he can pay debts with, either instantly or at all events in an immediate future. A man who wants $100 cannot take one-tenth of a $1,000 bond. If he could, it would be payable in ten or fifty years, and he wants the sum in as many minutes, or quicker. Gold is the only thing which can be divided indefinitely, which everybody will take, and which will not shrink in the process of liquidation, as will the very best bonds, Governments or municipals not excepted. In the last panic bonds were unavailable as a liquidating agent except at cruel sacrifices, but commercial paper was liquidated within a reasonable period, according to its maturity, and without loss. The depreciation of securities was focused upon the relatively small sums listed upon the Exchange, and was accomplished in the sight of all men, with the omission of nothing which could heighten the fever and feed it with its own poisons. The liquidation of commercial paper, on the other hand, was spread over the incalculable amount of everything the makers of the notes traded in. Thus the loss was averaged to the practical minimum by being spread out thin, and by being accomplished quietly, without exaggeration by publicity.

It is to be hoped that Senator Aldrich's central bank will follow these lines. If it fails to do so it will not be what the country expects. Every business man will demand that the Monetary Commission shall not overlook the distinction between a mortgage and a promissory note, and the reasons why it is safe to bank upon one and not safe to bank upon the other. Every good promissory note provides the means of paying itself, and is expected to be paid at maturity, and there is no grievance in expecting it to be taken care of at a period fixed in days or months. That keeps everything sound and liquid. A mortgage produces nothing but interest. It runs for years, and cannot be relied upon to produce its face at maturity. And for the most part mortgages are not expected to be paid at a given date. If in good standing it is rather a hardship to both borrower and lender that they should not be extended. No central bank which entangles itself with the bond market is anything more than a mockery, and Senator Aldrich would forward his plans by declaring himself in that sense.

THE WEST POINT DISMISSALS.

The hazing, some of it innocent and merely prankish, that led up to the brutal treatment of Cadet Sutton at West Point, has resulted in the expulsion of seven cadets with the approval of President Taft, acting upon the report of Supt. Scott and the Sibley Board of Inquiry. Contrary to a recent distinguished precedent, Mr. Taft and Secretary Dickinson will not reinstate any of the dismissed men by an appeal from the law to the dictionary. Neither the influence they can wield nor the manly appearance of these young men who have been convicted of doing an unmanly thing—unmanly because in disobedience of orders—will save them.

The action of the new President clearly shows that during his Administration the military Ten Commandments will not budge, and hazing will continue hazing.

NO REASON FOR "NERVES."

Prof. Hugo Muensterberg has spoken right out in meetin', and we are glad of it. In an article on "Nerves" in The Metropolitan Magazine for September he has attacked the modern superstition that our more complex civilization increases nervous strain. Why has its technical mechanism become complex but to make life itself simpler, he asks. The desk telephone and the hall elevator save us trouble. We rest on the Subway express and in the Pullman car while they do all the hurrying needed. We would be justly distraught, as they were, at the inconveniences suffered by our ancestors. Asphalt and macadam save our bones a jarring. Not the least of Abraham Lincoln's handicaps was the flickering light by which he studied; if his eyes had suffered from pronounced astigmatism, their lenses would have remained uncorrected by the oculists of his day. His great career would have been cut off untimely, and he would have had an excuse for becoming a shattered nervous wreck.

There is no wear and tear of civilization to compare with the wear and tear of ignorance and barbarism. History has shown this again and again. Why, then, pull up our pale souls by the roots for introspection, take "rest cures," or treatments in sanitaria? Prof. Muensterberg argues ably that the only nervous affliction of this age is the "illusory ideas as to the causes of our nervousness." And he adds sensibly: "We can take a straighter road and insist that this nervousness itself is an illusion."

PROGRESS IN THE WAR ON THE TRUSTS.

The death blow is to be given to the Standard Oil Trust in about a month—once more. The Government's suit for its dissolution is then to be decided adversely to the trust, according to the opinion of the prosecutors. It would be interesting to know how many who rejoice at this outgiving from Washington reflect upon the consequences of such a decision. The dissolution of the Oil Trust would establish a legal principle fatal to the fundamental economic principle of modern industrial and commercial development, and the Oil Trust would be buried beneath ruins obscuring even its enormous bulk.

Apparently this is seen clearly enough at Washington, for The Tribune informs us that the triumphant smashing of the Oil Trust is to be followed by the amendment of the statute under which it was prosecuted. If the statute were amended first, it might not be possible to smash the trust, but that is a mere detail compared with the wondrous victory over the trust, accompanied by arrangements for not smashing all other trusts. Thus the universality and stability of the law is demonstrated, accompanied with the tempering of the same law's effects upon all lawbreakers other than the vicarious sacrifice. To claim credit both for enforcing the law and for amending the law so as not to punish future breaches of the same law is a masterpiece of political strategy.

But this does not exhaust the beneficent activities of the policies of the previous Administration and of the inheritors of them. It had been thought that the inter-State commerce law was perfected in Mr. Roosevelt's time; but Mr. Taft is going to improve upon it. The Commission is to be a judicial body, with power of issuing executions in enforcement of its mandate. This "would certainly not disturb business affairs, but would receive the support of business interests." That is of some business interests, for there is a defendant to every plaintiff, and if one is satisfied the other is aggrieved. Thus it would be impossible to please all by one and the same proceeding, but some might be pleased in one proceeding and others in another. For example, the Commission recently gave satisfaction to many in the Spokane cases. But it also displeased many others, and upon application the Commission was so struck by the corollaries of the principles of its own decision that it suspended action under it. It is a little difficult to see how business generally would be pacified and promoted by giving the Commission power to command forthwith compliance with decisions from whose operation the Commission itself shrinks. And the case is not alone.

The railroads are to be taken out from the Anti-Trust act. Admirable, but that is hardly proceeding with the policy which won so much popular praise for prosecuting them under the same act. And the act is to be amended so as to catch the bad trusts, and let through the good trusts, particularly trusts not organized for profit, which also are exempted from that other admirable statute, the corporation income tax. Here we see the true end and aim of modern legislation. It is to enact laws so perfect that it is necessary to except the good from their operation, lest otherwise the good and bad shall suffer together. Thus the administrators get unlimited glory, both for passing the perfect law in the first place, then for amending it so as to make it endurable without too great suffering by the good, then for amending the perfect law, and then for beginning all over again. Only carping critics can contend that here is a series of contradictions, each one taking away something of the credit claimed for the original legislation. The truth is, as may plainly be seen, that each step backward is a step forward toward the original objective. The Tribune's own report says so. The law which is being so mauled and perfected that its author would repudiate it is being put into shape "for more effective enforcement." Verily the people like to be fooled.

AN INCOMPETENT WITNESS.

If any considerable number of persons read the "Experiences of a Woman Reporter," a "yellow" article of the confession type appearing in the current number of Collier's Weekly, it will be necessary only to remember that some of the things the writer says are applicable to about six out of the more than 30,000 newspapers in the United States. The woman reporter's story might not be wholly misleading if she made it perfectly plain throughout that she refers only to the ultra "yellow" papers, knowing nothing whatever about the methods and conditions prevailing on the respectable newspapers of the country, as she evidently does not.

She does not always make this plain, and those who might take her alley-view of a calling in which there are only about one of the disreputable kind in every 5,000, and having no direct means of knowing better, should be put on their guard.

"Here are eight questions," this woman reporter writes, "I wish to ask the girl candidate for journalistic honors":

> Would you be willing to sacrifice a sister woman's reputation in order to gain a piece of news?
> Would you be willing to hobnob with servants and bribe them, if necessary, to secure information for your paper?
> Could you, after a man had refused to receive you at his office, follow him to his train, force yourself into his private car, and literally hold him up for an interview?
> Could you follow a man about in a cab, striving to waylay him and compel an interview; and, as a final desperate move, deliberately block his automobile in order to force his attention?
> Could you become sufficiently callous to play spy upon the wife of a bank defaulter, haunting her house, pursuing her to the train, traveling with her, and trapping her into an interview?
> Could you bring yourself to "interview" a murderer's wife an hour before her husband was executed, and write of her sufferings and agonies?
> Would you be willing to frequent police courts, jails, divorce courts, and murder trials, living in a perpetual atmosphere of crime and scandal?
> Lastly, could you endure the personal humiliation of being bodily ejected from a private home—literally pushed out of the door by the head of the house?

No woman, or man either, employed on any respectable newspaper in the United States would be asked to do a single one of the things here suggested. If he did any one of most of the things indicated without the knowledge of his office, he would be summarily discharged on making his report to the office. To those connected with the respectable papers it appears silly, not to say irritating, to hear some young person who has dragged along in the slime of scandal-mengering journals, the number of which is less than a dozen in the entire country, speak as revealing representative conditions in the work of making a newspaper.

THE AUTHORITY OF PARENTS.

The action of Justice Mayo of the Court of Special Sessions in paroling in the custody of their parents the three boys who destroyed the twenty-two concrete benches in Central Park would have provoked unfavorable comment in a more orderly community than this one. In disorderly Manhattan the imposition of so light a sentence, even if it did follow five days' detention by the Children's Society, cannot be said to be remedial or deterrent. Park Commissioner Smith complains that the acts of vandalism in the parks and of hoodlumism in public places and conveyances continue unabated. Harsher measures than parole in the custody of parents are requisite, and for reasons which the Magistrates of the Police Courts and the Justices of Special Sessions may quickly appreciate. They lie in the measurable decay of parental authority in this immigrant city.

It is a real decay, and it is pathetic. Dr. William Z. Ripley has thus defined its causes:

> In the transitional period of acquiring English, the dependence of the parents upon the children entirely reverses the customary relationship. Even young children, having learned to speak English in the public schools, are indispensable go-betweens for all intercourse with the public; and as a result they relegate the parents to a subordinate position before the world. Census enumerators and college settlement workers agree in citing instances where the old people are commanded to "shut up," not to interfere in official conversations; or in the familiar admonition "not to speak until spoken to." The decadence of family authority and coherence due to this cause is indubitable. * * *
> The crucial time among all our newcomers from Europe has always been in this second generation. The old customary ties and usages have been abruptly sundered; and new associations, restraints, and responsibilities have not yet been formed. * * * It has been among the second generation of foreigners in America, rather than among the raw immigrants, that criminality has been most prevalent.

Justice Mayo in defense of his light sentence says:

> I believe in treating a boy as a man in the making. Give him every chance that he can have.

Of course, the system of parole and probation is one that should be used wherever possible. Perhaps these boys were not the sons of immigrants. But their behavior showed well enough that they had been infected with the spirit of overt insubordination which Dr. Ripley describes; certainly they could not have been much under the control of their parents. In a city in which disobedience and disrespect among children is largely the rule, there must be some punishment of public infractions of the law, and it should be deterrent. The present general complaint of such infractions is one of which the Justices and Magistrates should take cognizance in their rulings.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Correct as to Essentials.

Douglas C. McMurtrie, head of the Pittsburg Typhoid Commission, has sent us a long letter criticising the article on the McKees Rock strike contributed to The Sunday Times by the Rev. George R. Lunn. Mr. McMurtrie evidently thinks that Mr. Lunn was too severe in his treatment of the Pressed Steel Car Company and its officials, and that there was exaggeration in his presentation of the grievances of the men. He admits, however, that the article was correct in all its main conclusions, and we cannot see that he denies the essential accuracy of any of its statements.

Mr. McMurtrie says, for instance, that it was not exactly the "pool" system of distributing and paying for work that caused the strike, for that had long been in operation and was fairly satisfactory to the men. The objection of the latter was to its extension from small to large groups, and the establishment between them of such inter-relations that the members of one often suffer from negligence or blunders over which they had no control. Even with this modification, the fact remains that it is the pooling system, as applied, to which the discontent of the employés was chiefly due. The two writers agree that payment for work done has often been long delayed under the extended plan, and that a particularly irritating result of it was uncertainty as to the exact amount of wages that would reward a fortnight's work.

As for the cruelly small checks which Mr. Lunn gave as illustrating the failure of the company to pay a living wage, Mr. McMurtrie asserts that these did not necessarily represent all the money to be paid to the men for work performed during the periods named, but that only emphasizes the delays and uncertainties from which the men suffer and the company profits. Compulsory insurance through a withholding of a part of the money earned Mr. McMurtrie defends as necessary, but Mr. Lunn's complaint was not of the insurance, but of the failure to pay it to the victims of accidents. And it is hardly worth while, as Mr. McMurtrie asks us to do, to call attention to the fact that the company has now established a bureau to hear and investigate the complaints of individual employés. As it still refuses to receive their representatives, the concession is an empty one.

A larger view of this strike than that of either Mr. McMurtrie or Mr. Lunn was that taken in a recent issue of The Survey by Paul U. Kellogg. He saw it as the first of many protests that are to come from half-assimilated immigrants against the policies that brought them here, and he condemned the company, not for this or that detail in its treatment of its men, but for insisting that all has been said when they are told that if they do not like the conditions in the mills they are free to quit. That is President Hoffstot's position, and it is terribly out of date.

Unsatisfactory Because Inconclusive.

After it was revealed that Mrs. Sutton "knew" her son was murdered by certain fellow-officers of his in the Marine Corps because his ghost had appeared to her and told her so, and that she had practically no other evidence to present, there was little left of the Sutton case, and some such result of the inquiry as the board conducting it has reached was almost inevitable. Nevertheless, the findings now officially approved by the department are on the whole unsatisfactory, as the determinations of such bodies so often are to civilian minds, and there is small likelihood that any such "settlement" as this will be the end of the extremely unpleasant affair.

The intention of the officers on the board to elucidate all its mysteries is beyond reasonable question, but military law has its own methods of procedure, as well as its own objects, and it is evident enough that only after the case gets into the civil courts, as it presumably will, sooner or later, can a really conclusive decision be reached. The members of the board have not hesitated to condemn severely the conditions revealed by the evidence taken. Naturally enough, however, they viewed those conditions chiefly in their relation to "discipline." By implication at least, we are to understand that the discipline of the corps and at the Marine School of Application has now been reformed and safeguarded. To the investigators that seems to have been held a sufficient reason for taking no further action either against those present when young Sutton was shot or against the others of higher rank who had a larger responsibility for the laxity that made the fatal outcome of a petty quarrel possible.

Therein lies the inadequacy and inconclusiveness of the verdict, as the public will judge it, and therein, too, is the excuse and the opportunity for turning to other arbiters in search of justice. As the matter stands it is full of mystery, for no convincing reason why Lieut. Sutton should have shot himself or why anybody else should have shot him has been disclosed. The theory of accident is plausible enough, but it is unproved.

A Bargain to Take or Refuse.

According to one of our cable dispatches, Prince Hermann of Saxe-Weimar, having suffered much from pernicious anaemia of the pocketbook, has openly announced the intention of coming over here to get an heiress whose dowry will cure his malady. He is reported to have "boasted" that he will have no difficulty in thus restoring himself and his creditors to the health that follows happiness.

The word is not pretty, and many will view the Prince more than askance when he arrives—if he does—but he seems at least to be a frank and honest person, and before condemning him utterly it is well to remember that while he expects to receive much, he offers something in return. What he offers is of great, little, or no value, according to the way one looks at it. As titles go, his is a good one, and for anybody who wanted a title it would be a bargain, though the outlay for it were considerable.

At any rate, it is a bargain to take or to leave. There will be no compulsion or misunderstanding on either side, and as the moral difference between title selling and title buying is inappreciable, such criticism as may be made of the proposed transaction should be impartially divided between the parties of the first and second parts.

DIVORCE.

Not the Destroyer of Homes Like Bad Economic Conditions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Recently there was delivered in Salt Lake, Utah, a sermon on divorce by Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis, Mo., in which he said that divorce was the chief curse in this country, and that it was crushing that "chief blossom of Christianity, the Christian home."

Divorce, forsooth! Where divorce destroys one home, blasts one "blossom," there are a thousand destroyed by the false, the unjust economic adjustment of the social status that fatally leads to the hiving and housing of families in hut-like hovels in the great cities of Christendom.

Against this social injustice let prelate and priest, preacher and pulpiteer fulminate and turn their weapons of a spiritual warfare if they would save the "home" and its life—the "blossom" from blasting!

Record Balloon Ascensions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of this date I find, apropos of an Italian balloon ascension, "The record for height has been 37,000 feet, made in 1862 by two Englishmen, Messrs. Coxwell and Glaisher. One of them became unconscious at an elevation of five and a half miles."

In my notes, derived from various sources, among them Prof. Kotch's book, "Sounding the Atmosphere," I find "the greatest height ever reached by a manned balloon was 10,300 meters, (nearly 6½ miles,) by Barron and Luerig of Berlin in 1901.

"Glaisher and Coxwell in 1862 became unconscious at 29,000 feet, after which they were supposed to have risen to 36,000 feet, but this is uncertain. Barron and Luerig remained conscious by inhaling oxygen."

If Mina and Piacarazo reached 11,800 meters, as you report, then they have the record. But the previous record was held by Barron and Luerig, and not by Glaisher and Coxwell, if my information is correct.

Dangers of Free Trade.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The protective system has made the United States and Germany the keen rivals of England until she to-day groans under the burden of free trade, and is gradually coming around to realize that she has lost her hold and must retrieve it by discarding that worn-out garment.

Should we adopt a free-trade policy our country would at once be the dumping ground for all European manufacturers. Our industries would become paralyzed, and before a readjustment of conditions to conform with those in Europe could take place we would be set back many years in the march of progress, while Germany would be expanding and attaining under protection the power that England once had under free trade.

"Hearts of Stone."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent letter of Dr. Harris in The Times on hospital discipline expresses in rather vigorous terms conditions that are also present in some of the large institutions in this city.

It is the idea of many heads of training schools for nurses to eliminate all the human side of life, both in their attitude toward those under them and in their methods of disciplining those who have not reached the calm indifference of spinsterhood.

Can anything change their hearts of stone and make them realize of how little worth in a sick room is a nurse who can chart a pulse correctly if there is lacking that human touch which, after all, is what makes life worth living?

Subway Terrorists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Magistrates are entirely too lenient with hoodlums and loafers brought before them for punishment by our police officers. What does a loafer or bum or vicious youth care for a reprimand? He considers it a license to go ahead in his nefarious life, only to be careful not to be caught at it again. Fines of $5 and $10 or their equivalent in jail or the workhouse would help mightily to reform these women and children scarers and car destroyers and Subway terrorists.

To let these wild youths, this scum of our community, go unpunished is a grievous offense against the community and its interests.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If "A. V. G." deplores the use of the word typewriter for the person who operates the machine, then he has but to consult Funk & Wagnalls's Standard Dictionary, where he will find the word "typist" signifying "an operator on a typewriting machine."

Typist is in line with machinist, cyclist, automobilist, pianist, and a thousand others, and is becoming more common daily.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reference to the destruction of flags flying in our public parks from the winds incident to heavy storms and at other times, allow me to suggest that they be saved by substituting small or storm flags, as they are called, in rough, windy weather, as is done at our numerous army posts, National Guard armories, &c.

MADE ALIEN AFTER 35 YEARS.

Chinese Veteran of Civil War Stripped by Court of His Citizenship.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Kwang Lee, a Chinese who has held citizenship papers for thirty-five years, was stripped of his adopted nationality yesterday by the action of the United States District Court, which canceled the certificates of naturalization issued by the Court of Criminal Correction of St. Louis in 1874.

Despite the fact that he is now denied by his adopted country, Kwang Lee, who is 69 years old, is likely to become one of its dependents, for he served honorably as an enlisted man in the United States Navy in the civil war, and his body bears the scars of five wounds received when fighting under the Stars and Stripes on a Mississippi gunboat. Because of his age, he is now entitled to a pension of $20 a month, and has declared that he will apply for it at once.

SARAH LONGACRE.

Life of the Girl Whose Face Appears on Cent.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

So great has been the interest awakened by the publication in The Times of the history of the United States cent that I have been importuned to give a brief resume of the American girl with her Indian headdress in addition to what I have already sent you.

Authorities differ as to her age—one putting it at 4 or 5 years; another at 13—when the Indian chief playfully adorned her head with his feathered helmet in her father's parlor in Philadelphia. I am inclined to accept the latter date, as a careful examination of the face shows greater maturity than the former account would allow.

Sarah Longacre received her education in the city of her birth, and, at the age of nineteen, married John F. Keen, with whom she lived an ideal wedded life for forty-four years, and who most heartily assisted and encouraged her in all her many philanthropic labors. She was corresponding secretary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Philadelphia branch of the Methodist Episcopal Church for more than thirty years, and on Jan. 25, 1906, she laid down her busy pen and passed on to her reward. At the funeral fitting and eloquent words were pronounced over her casket by her friend, Bishop Cyrus D. Foss. An Indian chief introduced her to the Nation on the humble cent, but a Bishop closed her earthly career with highest merited honors.

The Sarah Longacre Cent Piece.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed with pleasure your patriotic editorial in to-day's Times on "The 'Indian's' Head on the Cent." It is gratifying to know that there are still those who have regard for historic precedent.

If that great American Abraham Lincoln is to be honored by a permanent memorial coin let it be one of the higher denominations, not the lowest. It was peculiarly appropriate that the copper-colored American aborigine, now the smallest among the races of mankind, should have been remembered on the one-cent piece.

As to the little girl whose features have graced our "coppers" since 1837, why has she been taken off? What was the matter with Sarah anyway! I hope she will be put back, that she may smile on as long as our coins are struck from our busy mints.

THE "OLD RELIGION"

As Distinguished from Dr. Eliot's Brand of Harvardism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What a pity that President Eliot did not cultivate the gracious sense of humor along with his classics. But perhaps humor is a negligible quantity at Harvard. Only a few weeks ago a Harvard honor man was commenting in my presence on certain spiritual perplexities of another. "Is your friend a Catholic or a Protestant?" I inquired. "Neither," said he; "he's a Harvard man." And he still wonders why I laughed. When Eliot exhumed his five feet of liberal education we, the uncultured public, greeted its publication with a laugh. We laughed still louder when his list was followed up with the delightfully logical statement that Shakespeare and the Bible had been omitted from that list because of their antiquity. In short, they were dead. When is a book dead? When, for instance, its annual issues are far in excess of those of any one of the listed works during its entire existence?

To bolster up this liberal, Bibleless education, presumably, President Eliot now furnishes us with a liberal, Bibleless religion, made in Boston under the shadow of Mary Baker Eddy's factory. What next?

Long after these educational and religious jokes are forgotton we may turn to the fly leaves of many well-thumbed, very-much-alive Bibles and find annexed the quaint and homely lines on the "old religion" by W. J. Lampton that appeared in The Times the other day. We understand his philosophy. Let us have more of these humorous, stimulating, optimistic Lamptonisms that occasionally distinguish the "southeast corner" of The Times's editorial page.

CIRCUS DAY.

If you're waking call me early, call me
early, Mother dear,
I think at 4 o'clock A. M. the circus will be here;
If it was any other day 'twould take an awful shock
To rouse me from my little bed before quite 8 o'clock;
You needn't mind my breakfast, for I'll be in dreadful haste,
And if I see the cars unload I'll have no time to waste;
Perhaps they'll wash the cages, Ma, and I'll be there to see
The men take off the sideboards from the whole menagerie.

If you're waking call me early, call me
early, Mother dear,
Because the place where it unloads is full two miles from here;
I'd faint without my breakfast if 'twas any other day,
But I'll be strong enough, I think, to run quite all the way;
The boys I know will all be there; 'twill be a wondrous sight
To see the elephants led out before it's hardly light;
And hear the lions roar, which makes goose pimples when you hear—
If you're waking, call me early, call me
early, Mother dear.

If you're waking, call me early, call me
early, Mother dear,
No matter if you whisper it I'll be quite sure to hear;
If I was being waked to turn the wringer it would be A good deal harder job, of course, for you to waken me;
But I will leave my stockings on and put my shirt in place,
And if I'm rushed for time I will not need to wash my face;
And in the early morning light you'll see me leaving here
About three minutes after four, so call me, Mother dear.

If you're waking, call me early, call me
early, Mother dear;
I will not yawn and rub my eyes and ask if morning's here;
I will not pull the covers up as I have done before
And ask you if I cannot sleep just half an hour more;
I'll jump right out of bed as soon as ever you may call
And be all dressed and down the stairs and gone out through the hall.
Before you say Jack Robinson—the circus will be here
At 4 o'clock, so call me early, early,
Mother dear!

TAFT TAKES DUST FROM OTHER AUTOS

He and Mrs. Taft Like Speed, but Set Limit at Twenty Miles an Hour.

PRESIDENT LOSES AT GOLF

Beaten by His Military Aid—Gets an Elephant with G. O. P. Stamped on One Ear.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 19.—Stories that have gone abroad about the great speed at which President Taft's chauffeur takes the Chief Magistrate along the smooth, oiled roadways about Beverly have caused Mr. Taft's mail to be flooded with letters from timid admirers, urging that Robinson, who drives the President's car the greater part of the time, be directed to exercise more care. Some of the writers have enclosed clippings from newspapers telling of fatal automobile accidents both in this country and abroad.

It is a fact that the President does like to go fast when out in a machine and the day is fine, but to reassure those who have taken the interest to write, it was officially announced to-day that Robinson has specific instructions not to exceed twenty miles per hour at any time and that the needle on the speedometer never nowadays shows a fraction above the twenty-mile mark. The President's car is passed by nearly every other car on the road, and the temptation to retaliate rises strong within the professional chauffeur's breast, but Robinson is obeying instructions. Mrs. Taft is also fond of the thrill of fast riding, but the late afternoon trips are modest affairs as to speed. President and Mrs. Taft to-day motored to Magnolia.

Mr. Taft combined a little of business with his golf this morning. He met the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Meyer, at the Myopia Club and talked departmental matters over with him both before and after he had played around the eighteen-hole course, and had lost a match to Capt. Butt, his military aid, by 1 up.

The President will have Mr. Meyer for an opponent at Myopia. He expects Attorney General Wickersham for a conference on matters relating to the regulation of railroads and inter-State corporations during the afternoon.

Senator William Warner of Missouri, who is spending the Summer at Nahant, had an hour's talk with the President this afternoon. The President is anxious that Missouri, having been won twice in successive Presidential years, shall be kept in the Republican column.

Charles P. Taft, the President's brother, who, with Mrs. Taft, has been visiting at the Boardman's, at Beverly Farms, will leave Monday next. He will go down to his big ranch near Corpus Christi, Texas, to prepare for the welcome to be extended the President when he visits there late in October. The ranch is down near the southern tip end of the State, and it is said there will be great "doings" in honor of the President. Mr. Taft will spend four days on the ranch, the longest stop he will make at any place during his 13,000-mile trip.

The mail man brought to the Executive Office this morning a stuffed gray suede elephant about twelve inches in height and addressed to President Taft. The little fellow is an excellent likeness of a real elephant. He had "G. O. P." stamped on one side and on one ear. On the front of it was traced a picture of the President, and underneath were the words "Sunny Bill." The elephant came from Detroit. It was not wrapped, and there were 28 cents worth of stamps plastered on the side opposite the one bearing the insignia of the "Grand Old Party."

The President has sent the following congratulatory dispatch to Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary on the occasion of his birthday celebration:

"On this anniversary of your Majesty's birth I offer you my cordial congratulations with fitting expression of the good-will this Government and people bear for your countries and wishes for their prosperity."

CHERRY TREES FOR TAFT.

Mayor of Tokio Offers Them for the Potomac Park.

NO BIDS FOR SMUGGLED GEMS.

Marshal Henkel Begs in Vain for Offers for Jeweled Collar and Bracelet.

Although he employed all the arts of persuasion known to the most successful jewelry salesman, United States Marshal Henkel was unable to get a bid on the jeweled collar and bracelet which were forfeited to the United States for violation of the customs laws, when he offered them for sale at public auction in his office in the Federal Building yesterday, that even approximated the amount of duty fixed by the Appraiser's department. The jewelry belonged to Celso del Viller, a Mexican, who arrived at this port some time ago on the steamship Morro Castle and failed to declare it.

The bracelet was offered first. It has forty-six diamonds of three-eighths of a carat each, thirty-six smaller stones, a three-carat diamond and a large ruby and diamond. About twenty Maiden Lane diamond merchants were present, and when one of them offered $250 for the bracelet, which is valued by the Appraiser's experts at $4,800, including the duty, Marshal Henkel ignored the bid and remarked that he "was not selling coal or giving away Christmas presents." He started it himself at $1,500, but there was no advance, and he withdrew his bid. Then one of the diamond merchants bid $500 and the bracelet was withdrawn.

The Marshal had a like experience with the collar, which is appraised at $6,368, home value, which includes $2,388 duty. No one wanted it at all and it was withdrawn after the Marshal himself had bid $1,500. The sale was postponed until to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

BRIDGE PROFITS A SECRET.

Commissioner Maltbie Does Not Press Operating Company for Statement.

Public Service Commissioner Maltbie did not press yesterday afternoon for a statement of the profits made by the Bridge Operating Company in the operation of local cars across the Williamsburg Bridge at a three-cent fare, at the public hearing on the application of the receivers of the Metropolitan Street Railway for permission to buy at 300 500 shares of the Bridge Operating Company, of a par value of $100, from W. W. Ladd, receiver of the New York City Railway.

William C. Coleman, counsel for the Bridge Operating Company, admitted at the last hearing that the profits were large, but asked to be excused from giving the amount. Commissioner Maltbie closed the hearing yesterday without pressing his demand. The whole commission will now act on the question of the purchase of the shares.

OLD DOUBLES TEAM WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Hackett and Alexander Beat Western Challenging Pair at Newport.

LARNED SHOWS POOR FORM

Many Defaults in the Singles Matches Advance National Tournament to the Fourth Round.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—Ripe experience, backed by some of the fastest racquet work ever witnessed here, resulted in Frederick B. Alexander and Harold H. Hackett retaining their honors as National doubles champions. In three stirring sets they defeated the challenging Pacific Coast pair, George J. Janes and Maurice F. McLaughlin, 6—4, 6—4, 6—0. For the first two sets it was tennis of the highest order. Smashing from deep court and volleying superbly, the Californians afforded the champion defenders no rest. The pace was terrific. Both Janes and McLaughlin made sensational gets, but from the opposite side of the net Alexander and Hackett gradually outmanoeuvred them at critical periods, forcing them out of position, as they had not yet arrived at that point of achievement, where they could check the game.

An instance of how well they played occurred in the second set, when Janes and McLaughlin pulled up from behind at 4—love to 5—4. They fairly batted down Alexander's volleying. That player surpassed himself, however, increasing his speed until in the third set he smothered all of the Californians' returns, making it possible for the champions' side to take it at love.

The point score follows:

FIRST SET.

Hackett and Alexander 0 4 5 2 1 4 4 4 3 4—31—6
McLaughlin and Janes. 4 2 3 4 4 2 2 0 5 2—28—4

SECOND SET.

Hackett and Alexander 4 4 6 4 2 4 2 1 0 4—31—6
McLaughlin and Janes.. 2 1 4 1 4 2 4 4 4 0—26—4

THIRD SET.

Hackett and Alexander........4 4 4 4 4—24—6
McLaughlin and Janes.........2 2 1 0 0 2— 7—0

The manner in which the singles were rushed along filled the third round, and six players advanced to the fourth. Yet it was at the expense of the tournament, for forty-two defaults were recorded, no previous meeting showing so many. Five set matches were plentiful among those decided. One of the best was that in which George P. Gardner, Jr., the ex-Harvard intercollegiate, defeated the Californian, Janes, 8—6, 1—6, 1—6, 7—5, 8—6.

A score of times in the fourth and fifth sets Janes was within a point of winning, yet he could not bring it off. Both of the men made the fastest sort of an attack at the net, and the match provided an enlivening spectacle for the late afternoon gallery. Sinsabaugh, another of the Pacific Coast team, lost to the Harvard interscholastic champion, E. H. Whitney, 7—5, 6—2, 6—1. In this competition Sinsabaugh was not up to his form. Newport luncheons and social affairs had taken much of the snap from his game, so that he could not foot as fast as Whitney's game demanded, losing in straight sets.

Karl H. Behr appeared and easily won his initial match from W. D. Bourne, 6—2, 6—0, 6—1. Then Behr engaged William A. Larned, the National champion, in practice. The latter has not appeared so out of trim in his many years of playing here. Behr passed and drove for placement at will against Larned, scoring two sets. Among the other winners who held to their good work were Wallace F. Johnson, Richard H. Palmer, Theodore Roosevelt Pell, and the Maryland State champion, Frederick C. Colston. Summary:

THRONG AT THE TOURNAMENT.

Many Striking Costumes Worn by Women Spectators of Tennis Play.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Aug. 19.—Hot weather with plenty of sunshine brought an immense gathering of the Summer residents of Newport, Narragansett Pier, Jamestown, Watch Hill, and nearby resorts to the Casino this morning for the second day of the tennis tournament. Every seat on the grandstand was in use and the sidelines were deep with those unable to obtain seats. Automobile parties added to the large attendance.

Miss Edith Colford, who has been absent from Newport's social gaities for several years, owing to illness, came in with Miss Jeanie B. Wallach and received an ovation from the Summer residents. Miss Colford looked improved. She wore a white embroidered eyelet muslin gown and a stunning red peach-basket hat trimmed with cherries of red and red satin ribbons.

James V. Parker, a faithful tennis attendant, arrived, followed by Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Slater, Miss Lota Robinson, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parsons Cross of Providence.

Mrs. Whitney Warren and Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan, came early with their children as did Commodore and Mrs. Edwin D. Morgan.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Astor Wilks were among the early arrivals and were greeted by many friends.

Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden came with Miss Sadie Jones and Miss Louise Iselin. Mrs. Condé Nast, with her guest, Mrs. H. H. Rogers of New York, came in early. Gen. Horace Porter was late in arriving with Dr. and Mrs. Henry Barton Jacobs. Mr. and Mrs. L S. Witherbee and Miss Evelyn Witherbee were escorted to the grandstand by Lispenard Stewart. Mr. and Mrs. Pembroke Jones arrived soon afterward with Miss Blanche Oelrichs, who was later joined by Leonard M. Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. Peter D. Martin.

In Pineapple row, beneath shady trees were gathered a number of the ladies, including Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry, Mrs. James P. Kernochan, Mrs. Robert Goelet, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman, and Mrs. James Russell Soley.

After tennis there were many luncheons given in the colony.

Women in Striking Gowns.

Among the striking gowns noted at the tennis tournament were:

Mrs. John R. Drexel—An exquisite white mulle princess gown, empire sash of blue, with a large chip hat trimmed with the same shade of blue roses and embroidered white veil.

Mrs. H. McK. Twombly—Gray tailor suit with Empire coat; small straw hat with white roses, with the coat trimmed with Persian embroidery.

Mrs. Paul A. Andrews—Pale pink mulle princess gown with fawn cloth cape; small toque of white straw with embroidered veil.

Mrs. Condé Nast—White cloth gown, tailored, with lingerie waist, and white straw English turban trimmed with black.

Mrs. Barger-Wallach—White linen skirt; black serge short coat and large black, rough straw hat with black ostrich feathers.

Miss Maude Wetmore—Heliotrope linen tailor suit with black velvet collar and cuffs; English walking hat of black straw faced with white.

Mrs. Pembroke Jones—Pale lilac mulle gown trimmed with bands of same, and a large white hat with heliotrope velvet bow.

Mrs. French Vanderbilt—Stunning white short linen gown, long coat trimmed with heavy embroidery; white baby linen hat with a large pale blue satin bow.

Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman—Linen white tailor suit with a large blue crin hat with white tulle trimmings.

Mrs. Paulding Fosdick—Plain white linen tailor gown and coat; large black crin hat with black osprey.

Mrs. A. Lanfear Norrie—Embroidered white eyelet gown; burned orange straw hat trimmed with brown and purple flowers, and carrying a hand-painted parasol to match.

Mrs. Matthew Astor Wilks—White mulle princess gown. A large white linen hat, with a string of pearls, was worn.

Miss Blanche Oelrichs—White linen skirt, blue muslin shirtwaist with frill down the front; large, coarse blue straw hat with wreath of pink rosebuds.

Mrs. James P. Kernochan—White gown with long white Irish lace coat; small toque of black with white ostrich tips.

Miss Vera Gilbert—A beautiful thin white princess gown, insert with lace and medallions; large white chip hat.

Miss Alice G. Drexel—Simple white muslin frock; large white crushed chip hat with white flowers.

Miss Constance Warren—White serge tailor gown with black velvet collar and cuffs; large black chip hat with trimmings of black velvet.

Miss Margaretta Siegfried—White linen princess gown trimmed with braid. Large black crin hat with black ostrich feathers.

Mrs. Philip A. Clarke—White linen coat suit. Large white hat trimmed with white and pale blue veil.

PHONED THEY WERE MARRIED.

S. T. Titus and Miss Mary Meehan Surprise Their Fathers.

The telephone in the home of Edward Meehan, a wealthy resident of Sea Cliff, L. I., rang yesterday at about the same time that the telephone bell was tinkling in the home of S. Townsend Titus of Glen Cove, L. I.

"Louis and I are married and we're in Boston," was the message that Mr. Meehan received. He recognized the voice of his daughter, Miss Mary L. Meehan.

"Mary and I have been married in Boston and we'll be home after our wedding trip." That's what Mr. Titus heard over the telephone, and he instantly recognized the voice of his son Louis, who was the driver of an auto that took part in the Vanderbilt Cup race last year.

"Bless you, my children," said both fathers, who were several miles apart.

A few days ago young Titus went on an automobile tour of New England with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sleicher of Glen Cove. A fourth member of the party was Miss Meehan. Mr. Titus and Miss Meehan were sweethearts, and were to be married this Fall. On Monday the party was in Boston. It was Mr. Titus's birthday, and it occurred to the betrothed that a good way of celebrating the event was by getting married.

Social Notes.

Miss Pauline Robinson is visiting Mrs. Walter S. Gurnee at Bar Harbor.

Mrs. W. D. Leeds, who chartered Anthony Drexel's yacht Margarita for the Cowes regatta, has had among her guests Lady Paget, Lady Sarah Wilson, Sir Arthur Paget, Prince Murat, Lord Alexander Thynne, and the Marquis de Jaucourt.

The Duke and Duchess of Manchester, (Miss Zimmerman,) who were lately in London for several days, have returned to Kylemore Castle, Ireland, and will have guests staying with them throughout the Autumn.

Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, a niece of J. Pierpont Morgan, who has been much benefited by the cure at Bad Nauheim, will not return to England for several weeks. Her mother, Mrs. Burns, is with her.

W. M. Gibbons and W. G. Wynne of Sheffield, England, who are visiting this country for the first time and plan to make an extensive tour of the States, are at the Hotel Wolcott for a fortnight.

Mrs. James Bliss Townsend, who is spending the Summer at Murray Bay, Canada, gave a cotillion last week at Charmard's for her son, Reginald, who is a senior at Princeton this Fall.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lambert of New York have left Genoa and are now in Naples for a week's stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Stockton of New York and Princeton are among the newcomers at the Manor Richelieu, Murray Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Chauncey and Miss Adelaide Chauncey are spending a few days in Zermatt, Switzerland.

L. MORTIMER THORN DEAD.

Old New Yorker Dies at His Home at the Age of 94.

L. Mortimer Thorn of 23 West Sixteenth Street, whose brother, W. K. Thorn, married the eldest daughter of the late Commodore Vanderbilt, died on Wednesday at his home in this city at the age of 94. He was the son of Anna Knapp and William Thorn.

He was the father of L. Mortimer Thorn, Jr., whose wife, who was a Miss Lillian Gwynn, went on the stage about ten years ago. Conde Raguet Thorn of 310 West Seventy-seventh Street is another of his sons.

Mrs. Cullom's Body Taken Home.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Following brief funeral services to-day, the body of Mrs. Shelby M. Cullom, wife of the Senator from Illinois, who died here yesterday, accompanied by relatives and friends, was taken over the Pennsylvania Railroad at 5:45 o'clock this afternoon for her old home at Springfield, Ill. The services here were held at the family residence, and were conducted by the Rev. Tyler Dennet of the Church of the Covenant. In the funeral party were Senator Cullom and William B. Ridgely, ex-Controller of the Currency.

GLORIES OF MARBLE HOUSE ATTRACT MANY

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's Scheme for Helping Suffragist Cause Is an Assured Success.

ARCHITECTS SEEK TICKETS

Artistic Wonders of Newport Mansion Will Be Open for Inspection Before the Lectures Are Delivered.

Applications for tickets to the two lectures on woman suffrage, which are to be held on Tuesday and Saturday of next week at Marble Hall, the Summer home of Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, at Newport, R. I., have begun to pour in from all quarters. In spite of the $5 admission fee, letters have been received from points all the way from Maine to Michigan, and there is no doubt of the success of the undertaking.

Many of these applications have come from artists, architects, and art lovers throughout the country, who are keenly awake to the opportunity to see Marble Hall, which has up to the present been kept strictly guarded from the general public. It was learned yesterday that Mrs. Belmont, who always has believed in equal suffrage and is by no means a new convert to the doctrine, at first contemplated hiring a local theatre for the lectures, which were arranged at her instigation. It soon became apparent, however, that the general public might not welcome this setting on a hot Summer afternoon, and so she decided to throw open her own house for the two occasions.

Marble Hall faces on one side Bellevue Avenue and on the other the famous Cliff Walk. It was built by the late Richard M. Hunt, who also designed The Breakers and Belcourt, and is famous throughout the world as a work of art. Mrs. Belmont has been asked many times to permit its interior to be photographed, but has never consented, and has kept close guard over the rare antiques she collected when she made a trip around the world in her late husband's yacht.

The lectures, the first on Aug. 24, by Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, President of the National Suffrage Association, on "Why Women Should Vote," and the second on Aug. 28, by Prof. Charles Zueblin of Chicago University, on "Woman's Place in Public Life," will be given in a large tent erected on the lawn beneath the marble terrace at the rear of the mansion. Several hundred auditors can be accommodated in this way, and the lecturers will speak for about an hour. Gov. Pothier of Rhode Island will introduce Prof. Zueblin and Mayor Boyle will act in the same capacity for Dr. Anna Shaw.

Mrs. Belmont will occupy a seat on the platform at both lectures and will make short speeches on woman's suffrage. It is expected that Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, the last of the pioneer suffragists, whose Summer home is in Newport, will also be upon the platform at one of the meetings. Suffragist literature will be sold by young girls at tables scattered over the lawn.

The lectures are being given by Mrs. Belmont for the purpose of arousing interest in the suffrage cause and in order to raise funds for the suffragists. All the money received for entrance fees will be turned over to the National Suffrage Association.

For one hour before the lectures the lower floor of Marble Hall will be open to the inspection of ticket holders. They will enter by the front door the large hallway, from which the house takes its name. It extends upward for two stories and is built throughout of yellow African marble. Statuary and valuable bronzes stand about, and through the marble arches and massive bronze doors in the rear one looks out across the lawn and high hedge, guarding it from the strollers on Cliff Walk, to the wide expanse of ocean.

On the right of the hall is a Gothic Museum, said to be the most beautiful Gothic room in the world. It contains a collection of priceless antiques, which Mrs. Belmont has collected from churches, cathedrals, and monasteries in her travels abroad. Next to the museum is a Louis XVI. drawing room, which is used as a ballroom when the occasion requires. It is hung with tapestries and valuable paintings, and over the fireplace at one end is a large clock, which, like all others in the house, was especially built for the room in which it stands.

An immense dining room is on the left of the hall. The carpet for this room was especially woven, and the figures in the border are worked out in threads of pure copper. The chairs are of solid bronze and the whole room is paneled, the color scheme being a dark, rich red. Behind the dining room is a library, which is styled the Morning Room. Blue is the color followed here, and a view of the ocean may be had from its windows. The walls are lined from floor to ceiling with valuable editions of books, and there is also a handsome collection of rare bindings.

Outside, at the rear of the house, which is pure Grecian in style, a white marble terrace stretches away 100 feet to the balustrade at the edge of the lawn. This is surrounded on each side by a thick grove of trees, giving absolute seclusion from the public eye to Marble Hall.

SUFFRAGIST HEADQUARTERS.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont Helps the Acquisition of a Fifth Avenue Office.

The National Suffrage Association has taken an entire floor of the building recently erected at 505 Fifth Avenue, near Forty-second Street, as the headquarters of both the National and State associations. The annual rental is $5,000, and it is understood that Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has done much to meet this expense. The rooms will be open about Sept. 15, and Mrs. Belmont will have a special office for herself. She is about to organize a suffragist club, patterned after the one organized by Mrs. Clarence Mackay.

New York will hereafter be made the centre of the suffrage movement, and the Rev. Dr. Anna Shaw, President of the association, will arrive in town in a few days to superintend the fitting out of the new headquarters. She was recently thrown out of a carriage while on a lecture tour in Minneapolis, and her ankle was broken. It is now in a plaster cast, but she will not allow this to interfere with her lecture at Marble Hall.

FUNERAL OF S. J. SELIGMAN.

New York Stock Exchange Member to be Buried This Morning.

The funeral of Samuel J. Seligman, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, and a son of James Seligman, senior partner of the banking firm of J. W. Seligman & Co., who died suddenly on Wednesday morning from Bright's disease at Deal, N. J., will take place there this morning at 9 o'clock. He would have been 55 years old on Sept. 1. Mr. Seligman had been in poor health for about a year. Wednesday morning he went to the bathroom to shave and fifteen minutes later a servant found him dead on the floor.

Mr. Seligman was graduated from the College of the City of New York, and became a member of the Stock Exchange in December, 1879, and was in business for himself until he retired about eight years ago. His office was in the offices of J. & W. Seligman, 1 William Street, and his city home was at 32 West Seventy-sixth Street.

A widow, who was Miss Birdie Lisso of New York, and one daughter survive him. There are also four brothers living—Jefferson De Witt, J., Eugene, and Washington Seligman.

Gerald Howatt.

Gerald Howatt, Secretary and General Manager of the Monmouth County Agricultural Fair Association, died suddenly in Red Bank, N. J., yesterday from apoplexy, aged 54 years. Mr. Howatt was one of the leading cattle experts of the country, and was especially well known in the New England States, where he served as judge at the fairs. He was at one time Superintendent of the Briarcliff Farm, and was Superintendent of ex-Gov. Ames's estate at Elsah, Ill. He was for many years a resident of Adams, Mass., and of White Plains, N. Y., where he was Police Commissioner. He was a Lieutenant in Company M, Second Infantry, of Massachusetts, and belonged to the Knights of Pythias. He was born in Nanticoke, Penn., and married Miss Elizabeth Hill of New Rochelle, N. Y. Besides his widow, Mr. Howatt left two sons, Dr. William D. Howatt of Port Chester, N. Y., and Walter Howatt, and three daughters, Elizabeth, Jean, and Louise Howatt.

Oscar Malmros.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Oscar Malmros, the American Consul at Rouen, France, died yesterday, according to a State Department dispatch. Mr. Malmros had been Consul at Rouen for more than four years, and was originally appointed to the Consular service from Minnesota in 1865. He had served at a number of European posts.

Obituary Notes.

DAVENPORT OWES ALIMONY.

Court Reserves Decision on Argument to Adjudge Actor in Contempt.

Supreme Court Justice Amend reserved decision yesterday on the argument of a motion to adjudge Harry B. G. Davenport, an actor and relative of the late Fanny Davenport, in contempt for not paying alimony arrears.

The action was brought by Mrs. Alice S. Davenport, known on the stage as Alice Shepard, who contended, through her counsel, that her former husband was amply able to pay. Davenport's counsel insisted that his client was without work, that he had been engaged less than forty weeks at $100 a week, and out of this he had paid his former wife $1,000. When Davenport obtained an engagement, the lawyer said the arrears would be met. Justice Amend said he realized that if he committed the defendant he could not earn the money to pay up.

Andrew Mack Sued by His Wife.

William A. McAloon, known on the stage as Andrew Mack, the singing comedian, is the defendant in an action for divorce brought by Alice V. McAloon, and the testimony in the suit is now being heard by Leopold Harburger, appointed by the Supreme Court as referee. Mrs. McAloon names an actress in her husband's company as co-respondent. The McAloons were married at Boston, Mass., on Dec. 2, 1887, and have one child, Francis A., born in December, 1889.

Shuberts Get a Rochester Theatre.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 19.—It was announced here to-day that the United Amusement Company, controlling the National Theatre here, this season would make the house a high-class one and that the Shubert Brothers' attractions would be played in it hereafter. The National has been a popular priced house heretofore.

Amusement Notes.

The cast selected to support Blanche Walsh in "The Test" includes George W. Howard, C. J. Williams, Katherine Bell, Will D. Corbett, Harriet Sterling, Nicholas Judels, and Hastings Speed.

"Slumming," a new musical comedy by Aaron Hoffman, Will Madden, and Harry von Tilzer, will be produced next month by A. H. Woods.

Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth have been engaged by Percy G. Williams as headliners for a tour of his various theatres, commencing the week of Aug. 30.

Kyrle Bellew will open his season in "The Builder of Bridges" at the Star Theatre in Buffalo on Oct. 4. The company will include Eugene O'Brien, Frank Connor, De Witt C. Jennings, Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, and Jane May.

Charles Frohman announces that he intends to give American actors a chance to appear in London at special matinees next Summer.

Mme. Mary Wilensky, a prominent Yiddish actress who has been playing in Europe, will return to America on the Majestic next Wednesday to play leading parts with the Jacob Adler company.

Mrs. Leslie Carter has engaged John Glendenning to play an important part in her new play, "Vasta Herne," which is to be produced in St. Paul on Sept. 13.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Decline Abruptly at Close of Day—Call Money Rates 2¼@2½ Per Cent.

RECOVERY PRECEDED DROP

Union Pacific, Reading, and New York Central Show Largest Losses—Cereal Markets Decline.

Following a lower opening prices made some progress upward yesterday, but all that was gained on the day's irregular recovery and much more in the case of the most active stocks was lost in the last half hour of trading, when prices broke so abruptly that the market for some of the leading active stocks became temporarily demoralized. This extreme weakness developed so shortly before the close that traders were at a loss to gauge its significance, and the movement left the average observer of the speculative situation fully as much at sea as at any time during the confused and at times contradictory movements which have occurred during the past four or five days. Such abrupt declines as 4 points in Union Pacific common and New York Central within a very few minutes of the closing hour forced the conclusion that the operations in these stocks during recent days had left them in a very vulnerable position. Whether or not, however, the results of the last few moments of trading yesterday are to be attributed to forced sales of these stocks, due to impaired margins or to deliberate efforts to force further reaction it was not possible to determine. One fact, which was clearly disclosed by these movements, however, is that the recent course of prices had left the market open to just this sort of occurrence and had made it a dangerous market for traders. Reading ended the day with a loss of 4⅛ points, which compared with a decline of 5⅝ in New York Central and 4¾ in Union Pacific. Other extensive declines included 2⅝ in Southern Pacific, 1¾ in Northern Pacific, 1⅝ in Great Northern, and 1¼ in St. Paul, while the industrials showed such losses as 1⅝ each in United States Steel and Smelting, and lesser losses in other stocks.

It would be futile to attempt to find in any of the items of information which came to hand yesterday any explanation of the day's course in prices the origin of which lay in the confused state in which recent speculation for the advance had left the market. The day's developments included recessions in the price of both corn and wheat and favorable statements of the foreign banking position contained in the weekly reports of the Bank of England and the Bank of France, which were not without interest as bearing on the international monetary situation, but such incidents as these were of little import in yesterday's market. Doubtless the recent advance in prices had been furthered by speculative hopes which have since been followed by speculative misgivings even in advance of the possibility of the fulfillment of previous expectations. The effect of the action of the market during the past two days will be to leave the speculative mind very much in doubt as to whether or not it had been building up air castles first for its own comfort and later for its own discomfiture. The substantial facts of the situation, however, have suffered no impairment, and even the possibility of such developments as the carrying through in the near future of the Union Pacific segregation plan has not been lessened. Meanwhile losses have been suffered which may not be without their value if they serve to temper speculation, which had become somewhat reckless.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—Liquidation was again the order of the day in the Boston market, and new low records for the present reaction were recorded in a number of issues. Amalgamated declined to 83⅝, North Butte to 56, Lake lost a couple of points, to 36; North Lake was active at between 10¾ and 10⅝, over 2,000 shares changing hands between these figures. The market closed steady at a fractional rally.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Sluggish Market on the Curb Varied by Weakness in Some Copper Shares.

NEVADA CONSOLIDATED OFF

Loses ½ Point—Industrial List Shares Apathy of General Market, and Prices Move Narrowly.

Curb trading was in small volume yesterday, although a few of the coppers which showed weakness were fairly active on the decline. Nevada Consolidated was one of these, reporting transactions of 4,500 shares, on which the price dropped from 24⅛ to 23⅝. Ray Consolidated on transactions of 1,000 shares dropped from 20 to 19½, closing at 19¾. Movements in the other coppers were extremely narrow, and some closed even with the opening levels. The industrial list was also lacking in animation, the activity in American Writing Paper falling far below that of Wednesday.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last price, were as follows:

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—There was a decided increase in activity on the local Exchange to-day, but chiefly at the expense of values. Reading and United States Steel were the leaders in point of volume. Both receded sharply at first and then rallied. Rapid Transit weakened, and this was also true of Philadelphia Company. Electric Storage Battery broke a point or more, changing hands in considerable quantities.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Factors That Influence.

There is nothing curious perhaps in the fact that considering the possibilities of the market very little consideration is given to the so-called fundamental factors, if there be such a thing as fundamental factors in a speculative stock market. It is generally accepted that there are and consequently it is usual to assume that in determining a market position they are carefully considered. Just at the moment the intentions of a few dominant figures in the market are more eagerly sought to be learned than the details of the money situation, of business, or of the crops. This has been the case also for some time past, and, in fact, it is the case most of the time. Traders in offices look to their brokers for information as to the position of this man or that and the intentions of this or that interest. It is said, of course, that the big men who are watched so closely base their operations on a close observance of the so-called fundamental factors, and thus the important elements in the situation after all are money, crops, and business. That may be the case, but the average observer takes his inspiration from superficial sources.

Brokerage Offices Bare.

Most of the offices yesterday afternoon were absolutely deserted. Some of them managed to retain one or two customers, but those where a half-dozen or so congregated were the exception. Naturally the commission business emanating from these offices was very small, and the effect on the market easy to imagine. The market itself was the depressing factor, sometimes dull and almost lifeless, and almost all the time with a reactionary expression about it calculated to put the bullish contingent out of sorts. Brokers make the comment that after a fair reaction there ought to be profit taking on the part of those who were talking so much about lower prices, but profit taking on the reaction does not appear to be very much in evidence. Possibly the short accounts have been covered up in the excitement, or permitted to stand for lower prices.

High-Priced Speculation.

Four stocks were primarily in evidence in yesterday's market, furnishing a substantial part of the total transactions. They were Union Pacific, Steel common, Reading, and Southern Pacific. The heavy volume of trading in Union Pacific sometimes puzzles those who seek to analyze conditions in the market. For instance, many offices require at least twenty points margin on a stock selling as high as Union Pacific, and particularly a stock so active. That is a deterrent to the small trader. In some offices that margin is required on practically all stocks since the panic, but in most offices there is a special margin on active high-priced issues such as Union Pacific. Professionals are not concentrating their attention on Union Pacific, although they are trading in and out and are comparatively active at all times in the stock. But whenever there is any semblance of activity in the general market this particular stock shows the heaviest, or almost the heaviest, volume of trading.

Putting Profits Into Bonds.

Money for investment does not seem to be particularly scarce. Some of the profit taken out of the market during the recent big rise is finding its way into conservative investment stocks or bonds. Some bond houses know that their customers have made money in the stock market, and they have benefited by it by furnishing them with high grade investment securities paid for with stock profits. The habit of withdrawing profits from speculative accounts has grown appreciably since the panic. This is a development somewhat similar to the greater use of stop-loss orders or the ability of comparative amateurs in trading to take a loss. Most of the catastrophes in the stock market might be avoided often if a stop-loss order were more familiar to traders, or if losses could be limited by selling orders.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Moderate Business on London Exchange—Paris Prices Firm.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Money was in abundant supply and easy demand on the market to-day. Discounts were firm.

On the Stock Exchange the attendance was light and business was moderate. Foreign bonds, especially Russians, hardened owing to the shortness of stock. Gilt-edged securities benefited by the good bank statement, but Kaffirs and copper shares eased after early strength.

American securities opened fractionally lower following the weakness of the New York market of yesterday. At noon prices were generally ⅜ lower to ½ higher, and Canadian Pacific was 1⅜ under the New York closing of yesterday. The liquidation in this section proceeded, Wall Street operators here not being inclined to do much, and values sagged. New York sold in the afternoon which caused a further setback, especially in Union Pacific, and the market closed weak.

Bar silver steady at 23 7-16d per ounce.

Money, ½@¾ per cent. Rate of discount in the open market, for short bills, 1¼@1⅜ per cent.; for three months' bills, 1½ per cent.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day and the trading was quiet. At closing, 3 per cent. rentes were 98f 15c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 18c for checks.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were slightly downward.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday extreme dullness prevailed, with copper a shade easier for spot and near-by deliveries. Tin was firm. Lead was unchanged, while spelter improved 5 points in the bid, but was off 5 points in the asking price.

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday, spot copper receded 7s 6d from the final figure of Wednesday; futures also declined from Wednesday's final closing, dropping 8s 9d at the final. The market finished quiet, closing prices ruling at: Spot, £59 2s 6d; futures, £60 2s 6d. Pig tin closed steady with spot deliveries down 5s, to £136 2s 6d, and future deliveries off 2s 6d, to £137 10s. Spanish pig lead was easier at a recession of 1s 3d, to £12 8s 9d. Spelter was steady and unchanged, at £22. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 50s.

The closing bid and asked prices for copper and others metals for spot delivery on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of Wednesday:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Thursday.

While prices were notably depressed on the Consolidated Exchange, they failed in several instances to touch the low points reached on the larger Exchange. This was particularly true of Union Pacific and Reading, the two most active issues. The first named, at its lowest price, was half a point above the corresponding figure on the other Exchange, while in the case of Reading the difference was a full point. The demand from the short interest was responsible to some extent for this disparity, some heavy covering appearing in the late trading, when prices were at their weakest. Sixty-three issues were represnted in the day's total.

C., H. & D. CONTROL PASSES.

Governor Harmon Quits as Receiver in Favor of Road's Officers.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—One minute after midnight to-night Gov. Judson Harmon of Ohio will step down and out as receiver of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, and will turn over the property to officers of the road in this city.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton officers taking up the reins of authority are William Cotter, President, and J. L. Cramer, Vice President, both of Detroit, and Thomas J. Walsh, Secretary, of this city.

Mr. Cotter to-day filed in the United States Circuit Court the necessary acceptance by the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company of Judge Lurton's order regarding the lifting of the receivership and a request for the receiver to turn over the property. These were the legal requirements paving the way for the transfer of the property to-night.

Pursuant to the readjustment plan, under which the Baltimore & Ohio will take control of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, a first and refunding mortgage for $75,000,000 and a second mortgage of $20,000,000 on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton property were filed here yesterday.

Under the court's order in these $100,000,000 transactions, the following debts, amounting to $2,355,000, must be paid in actual cash. Claims for supplies, six months prior to the receivership, $900,000; receiver's certificates, $800,000; receiver's notes, $300,000; receiver's supplies, $355,000.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Early Gains Draw Few Buyers—Closes 2 Points Up to 4 Points Down.

Cotton made an early gain yesterday, but then eased off, with the close steady net 4 points lower to 2 point higher.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3@5 points, and the market soon sold 9@10 points net higher on continued dry, hot weather in the Southwest. But the buying movement did not seem to broaden, and after the requirements of local operators had been satisfied the market weakened under selling by early buyers, who were discouraged by the failure of outside demand to materialize.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—The only strength yesterday was right at the opening on buying of September at Chicago, later months partly sharing the upturn. For the rest of the day heaviness was conspicuous. The break was explained chiefly by a violent drop in late months at the Northwest on good crop and weather conditions and prospects for a rapidly increasing movement. Cables closed irregular, with September ¼d lower and late months ¼d higher, influenced somewhat by an estimate that the world's crops of wheat this year are 400,000,000 bushels larger than last, which would also partly account for the recent indifference of exporters. Receipts at the interior amounted to 771,000 bushels, compared with 510,000 bushels a year ago. Seaboard clearances, owing to liberal shipments from New York and Galveston, reached 407,000 bushels, besides 18,000 barrels of flour. No. 2 red wheat in New York closed $1.09, nominal, in elevator, and $1.12⅝ free on board afloat; old No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.42¼, and new No. 2 hard Winter $1.13⅞, free on board afloat, both nominal.

CORN.—Sentiment on the crop situation changed somewhat yesterday, producing considerable weakness after the first half hour. The only firmness of the day was at the opening, on a dry-weather map. Receipts were light, cables ⅛d to ¼d net higher, and export trade small. No. 2 corn in New York closed 80½c nominal in elevator, and 81c nominal delivered; new No. 2 corn, 63⅝c, free on board afloat.

BOND ISSUE NOT SETTLED.

American Locomotive Co.'s Plans for Improvements to be Decided Later.

A story circulated in Wall Street yesterday that the American Locomotive Company was contemplating an eight-million-dollar issue of bonds or notes to take up its outstanding note issues and capitalize recent improvements at the company's plants was qualified by an official of the company, who said:

"Some time ago the Directors authorized extensive improvements in our plants, to take advantage of the low prices of materials. It was understood when this was done that some financing would be necessary on this account later on. The details of this financing are not complete, and if they were would not be made public until presented to the board. They have not been submitted to the board, and nothing definite has been done in the matter."

It is understood that the financing contemplated will be taken up some time before the next regular meeting of the board, which is due in the last week in September. The improvements referred to were made during the slack times which have prevailed for the last two years in the company's existing plants, and do not refer to the projected plant at Gary, Ind., where the company purchased land some time ago. The improvements at the existing plants largely increase the company's capacity.

LEATHER MERGER NEARER.

Charter Altered to Bring the Central and U. S. Companies Together.

The stockholders of the Central Leather Company at a special meeting in Jersey City yesterday voted to make the changes in the charter suggested by the Directors, which will make the charter identical with that of the United States Leather Company. The changes will overcome the objections found to the absorption of the United States Leather Company by the Central Leather Company by the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals.

All that now stands in the way of the merger is the objection raised by the minority stockholders of the United States Leather Company under the leadership of James B. Colgate & Co., who say that back dividends should first be paid to them. Representatives of Colgate & Co. refused yesterday to discuss what further steps the minority stockholders may take to block the merger.

PLAN OF REORGANIZATION

Dated June 1, 1909,

OF THE

Chicago Great Western Railway Company

CALL FOR PAYMENTS BY DEPOSITORS OF PREFERRED B AND COMMON STOCKS.

To the Holders of Debenture Stock, Preferred Stock A, Preferred Stock B, Common Stock, and to the Holders of Outstanding Certificates of Deposit:

More than 97 per cent. of the Debenture Stock and a substantial majority of each of the other classes of stock, making more than 73 per cent. of the entire outstanding stock, having been deposited under the Plan of Reorganization dated June 1, 1909, the Plan has been declared operative and

PAYMENTS BY DEPOSITORS OF PREFERRED STOCK B AND OF COMMON STOCK ARE HEREBY CALLED TO BE MADE AT THE OFFICE OF THE UNDERSIGNED IN THREE INSTALMENTS, AS FOLLOWS:

$5 per share payable on or before August 20, 1909.

$5 per share payable on or before September 20, 1909.

$5 per share payable on or before October 21, 1909.

All payments must be receipted for by the undersigned on the Certificates of Deposit, in case of failure to pay any instalment on or before the date specified, all rights of the depositor in the deposited stock, and in respect of any instalment theretofore paid, ipso facto will pass to and will vest in the Reorganization Managers and in the Syndicate, and any and all rights of the depositor to further participation forthwith will cease and determine.

Pursuant to the decree entered by the United States Court, mentioned in our notice dated July 14, 1909, the Special Master has advertised the property of the Chicago Great Western Railway Company for sale, August 21, 1909, at St. Paul, Minnesota.

Notice is hereby given that the time within which the several stocks may be deposited under the Plan is hereby extended and limited to and including AUGUST 20, 1909. AFTER THAT DATE NO STOCK WILL BE RECEIVED, except upon such terms as may be fixed by the undersigned. Participation under the Plan in any respect whatsoever by any holders of any stock of the Chicago Great Western Railway Company is dependent on the deposit of Certificates for such stock with the undersigned within the period hereby limited therefor and making the payments in respect thereof as above stated.

Debenture Stock and Preferred Stock A are to be received without payment, as stated in the Plan, and upon completion of the reorganization, will be entitled to receive voting trust certificates in respect of capital stock of the new Company mentioned in the Plan, of the amount and class, respectively, as follows: Debenture Stock, 110 per cent. in new preferred stock voting trust certificates, and Preferred Stock A, 120 per cent. in new common stock voting trust certificates.

Depositors of Preferred Stock B must pay $15 in respect of each share of such Preferred Stock B so deposited, and will be entitled to obtain from the Syndicate mentioned in the Plan Preferred Stock voting trust certificates of the new Company, when issued, equal at par to such payment, and also Common Stock voting trust certificates of the new Company, when issued, to an aggregate amount at par equal to 60 per cent. of the par value of their present Preferred Stock B so deposited.

Depositors of Common Stock must pay $15 in respect of each share of such Common Stock so deposited and will be entitled to obtain from the Syndicate Preferred Stock voting trust certificates of the new Company, when issued, equal at par to such payment, and also Common Stock voting trust certificates of the new Company, when issued, to an aggregate amount at par equal to 40 per cent. of the par value of their present Common Stock so deposited.

On or about August 9, 1909, engraved Certificates of Deposit will be ready, to cover new deposits, and for exchange for outstanding temporary Certificates of Deposit. Application has been granted for the listing of such engraved Certificates on August 10, 1909, on the New York Stock Exchange.

Copies of the Plan and Agreement and further information in connection with the reorganization will be furnished to stockholders on application at our office.

West 94th Street Flat Sold.

The Frank L. Fisher Company has sold for William M. Benger the five-story double flat, on lot 27 by 100, 120 West Ninety-fourth Street. The building will be extensively altered.

Kate Oberkirch is reported to have sold to a Mrs. Curry 157 West Eighty-second Street, a three-story dwelling on lot 17.1 by 97.1.

Estate Sells on Dyckman Street.

The Ackerman estate has sold the plot, 140 by 150, with three-story dwelling and two-story stable, on the north side of Dyckman Street, 350 feet west of Broadway.

Sale of Kingsbridge Lots.

Marcus Nathan has sold twenty lots, bounded by 230th Street, Kingsbridge Terrace, and Heath Avenue, to B. T. Fairchild, who owns adjoining property.

J. J. Haggerty has sold for Mrs. Kiely and Mrs. O'Brien the two-family brick house 1,524 Hoe Avenue, on lot 25 by 100, to Mary McGuinness.

Lease of 125th Street Property.

Porter & Company have leased to Demarest & Demarest, for a term of years, 131 West 125th Street, 20 by 100, upon which a new building is to be erected by John H. Van Tine.

Samuel H. Martin has leased the store and basement on the southeast corner of Columbus Avenue and Ninety-seventh Street to Hugo Bulowa for five years.

Myer Bondy has leased the seventh and eight lofts in 129 and 131 West Twenty-second Street for the Acme Building Company; also, a loft in 126 and 128 Greene Street for the estate of Julius Flato, and a loft in 529 and 531 West Broadway for Samuel H. Burr.

Loan for Audubon Avenue Operation.

The Broad Construction Company has secured a building loan of $140,000 from the Lawyers' Title Insurance and Trust Company on the property at the northeast corner of Audubon Avenue and 177th Street, 107.11 by 100 and irregular.

New Residence on 78th Street.

Plans have been filed for a new four-story dwelling to be built for the Satz Company, (George S. Leiner, President,) at 116 East Seventy-eighth Street, from plans by William L. Rouse and L. A. Goldstone. The house is to be of Colonial design, and will cost $25,000.

Grosvenor Atterbury filed plans yesterday for enlarging and remodeling the five-story residence of C. L. Atterbury, at the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Seventieth Street, by adding front and rear extensions. The improvements will cost $20,000.

Jewish Congregation Buys.

The Mount Zion Congregation, which recently bought the Lenox Avenue Union Church, at 41 West 119th Street, has sold its property at 67 East 113th Street to a Jewish congregation that formerly worshipped on Eldridge Street. The Lenox Avenue church has taken over the three-story dwelling at 72 West 126th Street, near Lenox Avenue, which it will use until a suitable site on Washington Heights can be secured.

Braisted & Bettmann have leased for Major A. White the four-story brownstone dwelling 114 West 126th Street, to F. A. Peacock, for a term of years.

More Houses on Perkins Estate.

George W. Perkins has had plans filed for two more houses to be built on his property in the Riverside section. A two-and-a-half-story frame dwelling, to cost $20,000, is to be erected on the east side of Arlington Avenue, 225 feet south of 252d Street, and another house, on a plot 80 by 80, will be built on Arlington Avenue, 25 feet south of 252d Street, at a cost of $30,000.

Sale of Tract at Mamaroneck.

Walter Webb has bought from the Netherland Realty Corporation, of which M. L. Sire is President, a tract of twenty acres at Mamaroneck, N. Y., adjoining the holdings of Andrew J. Connick. Mr. Webb announced yesterday that he intended to subdivide the property into small building sites and develop it.

R. E. Colley has sold, through William H. Dennis, a tract of seven and one-half acres of land at Valhalla, Westchester County. The property has a frontage of about a quarter of a mile on Tarrytown Road, and is opposite the home of Alexander Corcoran. REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY.—HERMAN H. SCHURMANN and another, Plaintiffs, against MARY E. LOCKWOOD et al., Defendants.

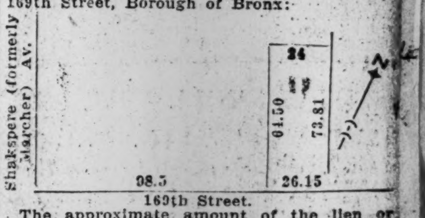
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action and bearing date the 6th day of August, 1909, I, the undersigned, referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the eighth day of September, 1909, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land, together with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying and being in the 23rd Ward of the Borough of Bronx, in the City, County and State of New York, beginning at a point ninety-eight and five one-hundredths (98 5-100) feet easterly from the northeasterly corner of Shakspere (formerly Marcher) Avenue and 169th Street; thence running twenty-six and fifteen one-hundredths (26 15-100) feet southeasterly along said 169th Street; thence northerly seventy-three and eighty-one one-hundredths (73 81-100) feet; thence running twenty-four (24) feet westerly; thence southerly sixty-four and fifty one-hundredths (64 50-100) feet to the point and place of beginning. The Lot being a part of the premises conveyed to William Daly by Joseph P. O'Donnell, by deed dated June 20, 1900, and recorded June 21, 1900, in liber 34 of Conveyances at page 284 in Section 9, Block 2506, on the land map of the City of New York, in the office of the Register of the County of New York.

Property to be sold subject to any state of facts which an accurate survey might show.

Dated, New York, Aug. 12th, 1909.
JOHN J. HYNES, Referee.
JOHN A. BOWEN, Attorney for Plaintiffs, No. 346 Fulton Street, Borough of Brooklyn, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold. Its street number is 67 West 169th Street, Borough of Bronx:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above described property is to be sold, is six thousand one hundred ninety-three and thirty-three one-hundredth ($6,193.33) dollars, with interest thereon from the sixth day of August, 1909, together with costs and allowances amounting to three hundred and five and sixty-eight one-hundredth ($305.68) dollars, together with the expenses of the sale.

The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments and water rates or other liens which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the Referee is one hundred five and thirty-five one-hundredth ($105.35) dollars, and interest.

Dated, New York City, Aug. 12th, 1909.
JOHN J. HYNES, Referee.

SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY.—LOUIS KELLER, Plaintiff, against HERMAN AARON et al., Defendants.

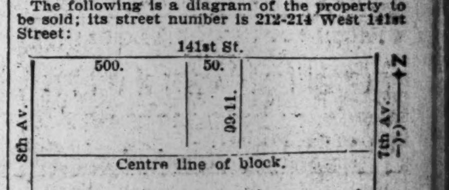
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 5th day of August, 1909, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, on the 31st day of August, 1909, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

ALL that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, New York City, bounded and described as follows:

BEGINNING at a point on the southerly side of West 141st Street, distant two hundred and twenty-five (225) feet westerly from the westerly side of Seventh Avenue; running thence westerly along said southerly side of 141st Street fifty (50) feet; thence southerly and parallel with the westerly side of Seventh Avenue and part of the distance through a party wall ninety-nine (99) feet eleven (11) inches; thence easterly and parallel with the southerly side of 141st Street fifty (50) feet; thence northerly and again parallel with the westerly side of Seventh Avenue and part of the distance through a party wall ninety-nine (99) feet eleven (11) inches to the said southerly side of 141st Street, at the point or place of beginning. The said premises being known and distinguished as Numbers 212 and 214 West 141st Street, in said borough and city.

Dated New York, August 6th, 1909.
EDWARD L. PARRIS, Referee.
HOLMES & ROGERS, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 20 Broad Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is 212-214 West 141st Street:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold, is nineteen thousand one hundred fourteen and 24-100 ($19,114.24) dollars, with interest thereon from the 4th day of August, 1909, together with costs and allowance amounting to three hundred thirty-six and 13-100 ($336.13) dollars, with interest thereon from the 6th day of August, 1909, together with the expenses of the sale. The said premises will be sold subject to a mortgage given to secure the sum of fifty thousand ($50,000) dollars, with interest at five per cent.

Dated New York, August 6th, 1909.
EDWARD L. PARRIS, Referee.

BAYSHORE - Long Island

Half-Acre Bungalow Plots

(EACH EQUAL TO SEVEN AND ONE-HALF CITY LOTS)

$560 $50 DOWN $10 MONTHLY $560

We made this offer a few days ago for the first time. People responded to it—came, saw and bought. They found a beautiful property, surrounded by fine private estates and overlooking "Brightwaters," the national suburban success, which has attracted buyers from all parts of the country. They found wide avenues, treated with asphaltum oil, sidewalks laid and water mains installed—an improved property ready for immediate building. And these people bought, as you (and many others) will do, once you see the beauties of THE PINES.

TWO MORE SPECIAL SALES DAYS

To-morrow, Sat., Aug. 21, and Wed., Aug. 25

Schools---Churches---Stores and all essentials at hand

Boating---Fishing---Bathing--- the best along the South Shore

No increase in the price—on change in the terms—giving all the privilege of buying to the same advantage as those who purchased at the opening sale.

This is another opportunity to buy half an acre of land in THE PINES at the ground floor price in a high-class, wide-awake, growing community where you will have good neighbors, city conveniences and a great, natural playground for the children. Short walk to Bayshore Station, easy distance to Great South Bay, with every facility at hand for the fullest enjoyment of all the recreative features of land and sea.

A half acre in THE PINES will yield better returns in health, enjoyment and profit than any other investment you may make.

SPEAKS FOR PARCELS POST.

Mr. Cowles Urges Law's Adoption Before the Pomona Grange.

James L. Cowles of 361 Broadway, Secretary of The Postal Progress League, delivered an address before the Central District of the Pomona Grange of New Jersey last night in approval of the bill which Congressman William S. Bennet introduced into the House of Representatives on June 17, 1909, advocating the reducing of postal rates; the improvement of postal service, and the increasing of postal revenues.

Mr. Cowles declared that more than a hundred million dollars is being lost annually to the people of the United States under the present system, and urged that the Post Office Department take over the insurance of mail matter, which is at present in the hands of private companies. He said that the proposed improvement in the rural free service under the bill would increase the postal revenues from $4,000,000 to $40,000,000 a year.

In like manner, he said, the posting of but two four-pound parcels a year per head at the new 8-cent a pound rate would increase the merchandise income from $8,000,000 in 1907 to $50,000,000. In addition the posting of but one four-pound sealed parcel a year per head of the estimated 28,000,000 urban population in the contemplated 2-cent four-ounce letter post would add another $9,000,000.

Additional postal service would be necessary, but the six months' limit before the bill went into operation would allow for this improvement.

The Grange passed a resolution approving of the bill.

FUEL CO. IN A FAMILY ROW.

Officers in a Wrangle and the Treasurer Appeals to the Courts.

Dissension among the officers of the reorganized Yankee Fuel Company, a promotion of the insolvent banking concern of E. D. Shepard & Co. of 31 Nassau Street, came to the surface yesterday when Supreme Court Justice Goff signed an order requiring Henry C. Sturges and others to show cause why they should not be restrained from transacting business as officers of the fuel company. The order was obtained by Luther L. Kellogg, treasurer of the company, whose firm, Kellogg & Rose, is counsel for John S. Shepard, Jr., receiver for E. D. Shepard & Co

It appears that the order to show cause was not precisely what Kellogg wanted, for on Tuesday he asked Justice Goff for an order restaining Sturges and the others from holding a meeting that afternoon, and it subsequently developed that the principal business of the session was to take action on the removal of Kellogg as treasurer of the company. In the application for the injunction Kellogg contended that he had only received the notice for the Tuesday meeting on the morning previous. It was signed by Charles T. Baillard as acting secretary on the order of Henry C. Sturges as President. He further said that Sturges was no longer President, had no authority to call the meeting, and that the call should have been signed by Charles H. Lee, the secretary. To his papers was attached a resolution passed at a meeting of the reorganization committee held on July 7, by which Sturges was removed from office.

Under this resolution Kellogg held that Sturges was no longer an officer of the company and that any business done would be illegal. Justice Goff denied the temporary injunction stating that an injunction should not issue against the performance of a threatened act.

A statement has been issued by Kellogg to the bondholders of the various Shepard promotions to the effect that the firm's assets will probably amount to $200,000 or $250,000 and the committee expects to obtain funds to develop all of the enterprises.

UNITED DRY GOODS DIVIDEND.

A Quarterly Disbursement of 1¾ Declared on the Preferred Stock.

The first dividend on the preferred stock of the United Dry Goods Companies, which is a holding company for the H. B. Claflin interests, was declared yesterday. The dividend is a quarterly disbursement of 1¾ per cent., which is the full rate on the company's issue of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock.

The United Dry Goods Companies is capitalized at $35,000,000 common and $16,000,000 preferred, of which $10,000,000 of each have been issued. The company owns a controlling interest in the Associated Merchants Company, which in turn has control of the H. B. Claflin Company, the O'Neil-Adams Company, Stewart & Co. of Baltimore, J. N. Adam & Co. of Buffalo, and C. G. Gunther's Sons, the Fifth Avenue fur dealers.

The holding company has also purchased from John Claflin, Hahne & Co. of Newark, the Powers Mercantile Company of Minneapolis, the William Hengerer Company of Buffalo, and the Stewart Dry Goods Company of Louisville, Ky.

KNITTING FIRMS BANKRUPT.

Two Concerns Owned by W. S. C. Wiley Put Into a Receiver's Hands.

Petitions in bankruptcy were filed here yesterday against the Aken Knitting Company, manufacturer of knit goods at Philmont, N. Y., and the Wiley Manufacturing Company, knit goods at Catskill, N. Y., of both of which concerns William S. C. Wiley is President, by Frank H. Osborn of Catskill, attorney for a number of up-State creditors. Judge Holt appointed Peter H. Corr receiver in both cases with a bond of $25,000 on application of Mr. Osborn and Blumenstiel & Blumenstiel, representing some of the large New York creditors. The receiver was authorized to continue the business for twenty days.

The petitioning creditors in the case of the Aken Knitting Company are William B. Charles of Amsterdam, N. Y., $1,027; S. Quilhot & Son, Amsterdam, $7,994; Emma C. Wiley, Catskill, $5,000, and Jones & Hardy, Hudson, $183. The petitioning creditors in the case of the Wiley Manufacturing Company are William B. Charles, $3,579; S. Quilhot & Son, $8,811, and George W. Kavanaugh, Cohoes, $729. It was alleged that both companies are insolvent, and on Aug. 18 the Board of Directors adopted a resolution to admit inability to pay the debts and willingness to be adjudged bankrupt.

The Aken Knitting Company was incorporated in 1888 with a capital stock of $225,000. It has three mills at Philmont and fully equipped plants, which had a book value, it is said, of $375,000. Blumenstiel & Blumenstiel said that the company has a large quantity of goods on which advances have been made, and it is impossible now to estimate the equity therein. Other assets are worth between $150,000 and $225,000. The liabilities are $152,000. The company wants to pay in full, and all it wants is an extension of time.

The Wiley Manufacturing Company was incorporated on April 1, 1895, with a capital stock of $100,000. The company's plant has been valued at $130,000, with a mortgage on it of $18,000. In addition to a large equity on goods in the hands of commission merchants in this city, the company has other assets estimated at $75,000 to $100,000. The liabilities are $135,000. The company expects to pull out by an extension.

The Aken Knitting Company has a sales agency at 346 Broadway.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Collector Loeb Is Reversed in an Assessment on Corsets from France.

A tariff controversy between the local customs authorities and A. Clement of Limoges, France, regarding the values at which large consignments of elaborately made corsets should be allowed to enter this country was decided yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers in favor of the foreign manufacturer.

When the goods arrived here Collector Loeb, after receiving a report from the Appraiser of the Port, declined to accept the prices at which the merchandise had been invoiced. A higher level of prices was established by the Collector, and duty exacted on the increased values. This action resulted in the American representatives of the manufacturer paying increased duties.

An appeal from the Collector's decision was made to the board. Mr. Fischer, the member of the tribunal hearing the case, now finds that the Collector erred in making an appraisal higher than the invoiced value. The Collector's action is reversed, and the goods are admitted at the prices invoiced by the exporters of the merchandise.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

Application to have a receiver appointed for the Kornit Manufacturing Company, with a plant in Belleville, N. J., was made to United States District Court Judge Relistab in Newark yesterday in behalf of Herman Feinberg and the Cee-Bap Manufacturing Company of New York and the Colebrook Manufacturing Company, a New Jersey concern. The proceedings were brought following the issuing of a restraining order prohibiting the prosecution of a suit against the company in the district court, Newark, by another concern.

TROETEL BURGLAR ALARM LOCK COMPANY.—Deputy Sheriff Cullen has taken charge of the factory of the Troetel Burglar Alarm Lock Company, at 311 West Fifty-ninth Street, under an execution of $6,444 in favor of Charles J. Halle on an assigned claim of Louis J. Halle for money loaned to the company between April 30 and July 20. Louis J. Halle was President and Treasurer of the company, and Elias Troetel, the inventor, was Vice President. The company was incorporated on March 1, 1909, with a capital stock of $30,000.

PENNY & ANDERSON.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against James J. Penny and George L. Anderson, who compose the firm of Penny & Anderson, who had the Lincoln Restaurant at 154 Columbus Avenue, by Samuel B. Balcom, a creditor, for $582. It was alleged that they are insolvent, made preferential payments, and allowed a chattel mortgage of $1,800 to be foreclosed, which was given to Henry Wise and assigned to the Gansevoort Beef Company. The Marshal sold them out under the mortgage on Wednesday. They began the business on Oct. 15, 1907.

MARTIN KRETSCH.—Judge Hand of the United States District Court has decided to grant a discharge from bankruptcy to Martin Kretsch, a real estate broker of 1,398 Bristow Avenue, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on Nov. 30, 1908, but referred the question of punishing him for contempt for misstatements in his testimony during his examination before the referee to the referee for a further hearing, and give him an opportunity to explain the statements. The Judge will not sign the discharge until the termination of the contempt proceedings. The Judge said: "It is extremely unlikely that he should have been innocently mistaken about these facts, or that he misunderstood the questions. While, however, those misstatements, even if corrupt, will not bar his discharge, they are none the less a contempt if they were in fact corrupt, and in that event I shall punish the bankrupt for them."

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The disturbance in the West Indies, reported Wednesday as being central near the Island of St. Kitts, was centered Thursday afternoon near Santo Domingo. It will probably move west northwest toward Bahama. Warning has been issued to the effect that it will be dangerous for shipping north of Cuba and in Bahama waters the next two days, and probably later off the South Atlantic Coast.

Local rains occurred within the last twenty-four hours in Northern New England, on the South Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, and at scattered points in the Rocky Mountain region; in all other districts fair weather prevailed.

The temperature has risen generally in the Eastern States, and it has fallen in the Gulf and the Southern plains States. The indications are that the weather will be generally fair Friday and Saturday, with no important changes in temperature in any section.

Winds along the New England Coast will be light to moderate west; Middle Atlantic Coast, light to moderate west and northwest; South Atlantic Coast, moderate and variable.

Steamships departing Friday for European ports will have moderate west winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York, New England, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Friday and Saturday; moderate west winds.

	1908.	1909.		1908.	1909.
3 A. M.	69	65	4 P. M.	84	82
6 A. M.	68	64	6 P. M.	83	81
9 A. M.	74	70	9 P. M.	78	76
12 M.	82	79	12 P. M.	73	75

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 74; for the corresponding date last year it was 76; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 72.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 68; at 8 P. M. it was 78. maximum temperature, 83 degrees at 4:20 P. M.; minimum, 64 degrees at 4 A. M. Humidity, 72 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 56 per cent. at 8 P. M.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

AT A STATED TERM OF THE DISTRICT Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, held at the Federal Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 16th day of July, 1909.—Present, Hon. George C. Holt, District Judge.—In the matter of WADI GARZOUZI, AZIZ GARZOUZI, and FRED GARZOUZI, individually and as members of the firm of GARZOUZI BROS., Bankrupts.

Upon the involuntary petition filed herein on the 8th day of July, 1907, against Wadi Garzouzi, Aziz Garzouzi, and Fred Garzouzi, individually and as members of the firm of Garzouzi Bros., and subpoenas having been issued directing the said persons to appear on the 15th day of July, 1907, and it appearing that the United States Marshal for the Southern District of New York has not found Wadi Garzouzi and Aziz Garzouzi, alleged bankrupts herein, in this jurisdiction, and has made return on said subpoenas that he was unable to find Wadi Garzouzi and Aziz Garzouzi within the Southern District of New York, and personal service of the subpoena cannot be made on the said Wadi Garzouzi and Aziz Garzouzi, alleged bankrupts.

Now on motion of WALTER T. KOHN, attorney for petitioning creditors, it is Ordered, That Wadi Garzouzi and Aziz Garzouzi, individually and as members of the firm of Garzouzi Bros., appear in this Court at a Stated Term thereof, to be held in the Southern District of New York, at the Federal Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 6th day of September, 1909, to answer, plead, or demur to the involuntary petition heretofore filed; and it is further

Ordered that this order be published in The New York Times once a week for two successive weeks, the first of said publications to be made on or before the 20th day of August, 1909; and it is further Ordered that a certified copy of this order and the petition upon which it is based be mailed to the last known place of residence of Wadi Garzouzi and Aziz Garzouzi, or directed to the General Delivery of the City of New York on or before the day of the last publication. GEO. C. HOLT, U. S. D. J.

KATZ INDICTED NOW IN HEINZE SWINDLE

Trust Company Head Accused of Grand Larceny in Connection with Sale of Collateral.

CLARK IN THE NET ALSO

Warrant Issued for Windsor Trust's ex-Employe—Loan Proposal and Bankers' Reply Published.

The indictment of Charles Katz, President of the Eastern Trust Company, and of Walter L. Clark, the loan broker who got M. M. Joyce to make, through the Windsor Trust Company, the $50,000 loan which formed the basis of the Joyce-Heinze loan swindle, brought the investigation of that case a step nearer completion yesterday. The two men were indicted for grand larceny in being parties to the sale of the $100,000 collateral securing the loan. A warrant was also issued yesterday by Magistrate Barlow in the Tombs Court for the arrest of Stirling Birmingham, former manager of the bond department of the Windsor Trust, for accepting a $250 gratuity in connection with the deal.

These developments and testimony that John Alvin Young, President of the Windsor Trust, gave before the Grand Jury yesterday brought practically every essential fact in the situation into view. Mr. Young's testimony developed the fact that the principals in the loan were not to appear, was known to him and to Jordan L. Rollins, counsel for the trust company, when the loan was made. The admission was also obtained that he knew that Henry Ulmann, manager of Katz's brewery, who posed as the lender, represented Katz as a principal. Copies of the proposition submitted by Richard Kaufmann as Katz's representative regarding the loan, and of the acceptance sent by Birmingham, both of which were known to John A. Young, also went into the record before the Grand Jury.

Clark a Reformatory Graduate.

Coupled with this testimony the District Attorney's office learned with interest that Clark, who put the loan through on behalf of Joyce, and actually appeared at the trust company for the borrower, is a graduate of the Elmira Reformatory. In June, 1901, Clark stopped a messenger boy named Fred Schmidt in the street and instructed him to take a check to the then North American Trust Company to be cashed. The check was for $96, and purported to have been signed by Peter Whitney.

The trust company teller grew suspicious and got the boy to point Clark out as he stood waiting outside the door. His arrest and conviction for forgery in the first degree followed. He was paroled in March, 1904.

Mr. Young's testimony before the Grand Jury occupied the entire session of that body yesterday. He came to the Criminal Courts Building with Mr. Rollins. He was examined by District Attorney Jerome. Young took with him several books of the trust company which demonstrated that the entries relating to the receipt of a commission of $1,500, $500 of which was to go to Kaufmann, had been correctly entered on Aug. 2, when the loan deal was closed. He produced this proposition sent by Kaufmann to Birmingham regarding the loan, dated July 23:

The Loan Proposition.

> Dear Sir: In my capacity of broker for a lender I have arranged to make a loan for certain responsible parties here of $50,000 to run for either six months or one year, at a rate which will be determined later, but not in excess of 6 per cent. per annum upon a promissory note secured by a certain number of securities consisting of stocks of the Davis-Daly, Ohio Copper, and the United Copper Companies. The borrower in this instance is represented by a broker friendly with the lenders, and I represent the lenders. My client, the lender, not wishing to appear as such, is desirous of having a bank or financial institution to clear this loan; he, my client, will deposit the principal and commission with your institution for aforesaid purpose, with the absolute condition that your institution will be held absolutely harmless by way of a separate agreement, and all that is necessary is that you transfer this security and note against the cash to my client, the lender, without any recourse on their or any other party or parties against you, for which purpose you will receive a specifice agreement.
> In acting in this capacity as clearing agent for this loan you will ask a commission of $1,500, which will be allowed, of which $1,000, is to be retained by yourself and the other $500 is to be delivered to me.
> The lender in this transaction is Mr. Henry Ulmann, general manager of the Eastern Brewing Company. The borrower, I am assured, is not a member of the Heinze family. Trusting that this may be acted upon immediately, very truly yours,
> R. S. & M. S. KAUFMANN,
> Per RICHARD S. KAUFMANN.

Trust Company's Reply.

Birmingham's reply, written on the official letter head of the Windsor Trust Company and bearing the same date, read as follows:

> Dear Sir: Replying to your favor of even date requesting that the Windsor Trust Company act for you and your clients in clearing a loan of $50,000 which has been arranged between two principals by you and another broker, as per the statement made in your letter, we beg to state that we will accept your proposal if the following conditions are conformed with, viz.: If the principals in this case are satisfactory and the conditions can be carried out as stated in your letter, namely: That we would be held harmless in the event of us acting and that an agreement to that effect will be signed by your principals, and, further, that the transfer of the securities and notes will be made without any indorsement by us and will be received without any recourse upon us, and that upon the completion of this transaction our interest ceases. Also, we will not be called upon for any further action in the matter, and that at no time are we to be held liable in any way for any deficiencies further than that we agree to deliver the money to the borrower after the note and securities have been approved by the lender.
> For this service it is understood that we are to charge $1,500, which will be paid, $500 of which is to be returned to you.
> Very truly yours,
> WINDSOR TRUST COMPANY,
> Per Stirling Birmingham.

Warrant for Birmingham.

Young testified that Birmingham had been instructed by him to communicate with Mr. Rollins about the matter and to get, along with the loan, a guarantee in writing holding the trust company harmless from any consequences of the transaction. This is the guarantee which Birmingham, apparently, failed to get, for although there is a reference to it in the correspondence printed above, nothing further has developed to show that it had any actual existence. Mr. Young admitted in his Grand Jury testimony that it was entirely understood that Katz was the lender of the money.

As soon as Young left the Grand Jury room Assistant District Attorney McNish, who has the Birmingham case in charge, was waiting for him. Mr. McNish has been trying for several days to get Young to be a complainant against Birmingham, but without success. Finally Mr. McNish got Kaufmann to subscribe yesterday to an affidavit setting forth that Kaufmann paid Birmingham the $250 bonus. Young made an affidavit stating that he as President of the trust company had no knowledge of the acceptance of this money by Birmingham, and on that basis Magistrate Barlow issued the warrant.

This morning Birmingham will appear before Magistrate Barlow, and Clark, Katz, and A. D. S. Adams, the Boston operator, who has been indicted in connection with the Cram-Mulliken loan deal, will come into Judge Mulqueen's court to plead and give bail. Donald S. Persch, who has been held up by the various parties involved as the real principal and is in the Tombs in default of $50,000 bail, has been telling some more chapters of the confession which he proposes to make if bail is not eventually forthcoming.

Persch Telling More.

These later chapters concern principally the part that L. J. Field, son of Jacob Field, is alleged to have played in the matter. Persch declares that he was engaged to conduct the matter on the understanding from John Sherwood and others that L. J. Field & Co. were the lenders and represented Jacob Field in that connection. Jacob Field has disavowed all knowledge of or connection with the loan swindle gang. It has been shown that the $50,000 on which the loan was made came from L. J. Field & Co.'s bank account in the Seaboard National Bank, through Field's personal account in the Phenix National, and that the money was given to Sherwood, who delivered it at the Windsor Trust Company.

Testimony already obtained also shows that $10,000 of the proceeds of the collateral which Sherwood sold remains in the possession of L. J. Field, who says he is holding it for Sherwood. Persch's explanation of this is that under the arrangement on which the loan was made L. J. Field was to get 25 per cent. of the profits.

The rest of the confession made public yesterday had to do with previous efforts to lend money on these Heinze stocks, in one of which the attempt was made unsuccessfully to get the banking firm of Kean, Van Cortlandt & Co. to clear the transaction. In that instance Sherwood, who produced the money, as Field says, in the form of a cashier's check on the Seaboard National Bank, at 26 Broadway, represented himself to the bankers to be the representative of the bank in the making of the loan. The attempt did not, however, go through.

Another statement made by Persch was that "Col." Bob Ammon, who has figured in many financial deals, had been trying to borrow money for Heinze.

Mr. Young's Famous Sprint.

An element of comedy was injected into the case yesterday by the sensational flight of John Alvin Young, the Windsor Trust's President, from a battalion of newspaper photographers who sought to snapshot him and Mr. Rollins when Mr. Young came out of the Grand Jury room. Finding a battery of cameras leveled at him, Mr. Young jumped into an elevator, slammed the door, and traveled down stairs; then came up again to another floor and ran through the corridors to the other side of the building, so as to descend to the first floor. But a squad of photographers was waiting for him. On coming out from the court Mr. Young made another break for liberty at top speed, with the photographers joining joyously in the chase, and the Criminal Courts Building attendants bringing up the rear.

The pursuit led from floor to floor, until finally Young fled from the building with coat tails flying. He sprinted for Walker Street, startling some passers-by, who thought a prisoner had escaped. As fast as they could snap their pictures and reload their cameras, the photographers took pictures of Mr. Young's flying figure, and abandoned the chase only when Mr. Young turned into Broadway on a sprint for the financial district.

NURSES HAUL GIRL FROM RIVER

With Aid of a Driver of Willard Parker Hospital They Save Mary Magreno.

Worn out by her exertions in taking care of her younger brother and sister while their mother was at work, fifteen-year-old Mary Magreno of 331 East Fourteenth Street walked to the foot of East Sixteenth Street last night to take the air. While standing on the dock near the Willard Parker Hospital she was attacked by vertigo and fell into the river.

Her fall was noticed by John Hogan, a hospital attendant, who stood near by. He shouted and a doctor come to the rescue. Picking up a rope as he ran, the doctor, who refused to give his name, threw one end to the girl, who had already disappeared once underneath the water. The girl grasped it and managed to hold on. Several nurses saw the attempt at rescue and hurried to the dock.

As she came to the top of the dock the nurses seized her dress and lifted her to safety. She was unconscious, but was revived. As soon as she was able to talk, Mary asked when she would be able to get back to her little brother and sister. She told the doctors that they were dependent upon her during the day.

FAINTS FROM JOY IN COURT.

Mrs. Hausefeld Overcome When Her Daughter Is Returned to Her.

Overjoyed at regaining her twelve-year-old daughter Mary, who had been detained three days as an "unwilling witness" by the Children's Society, Mrs. Esther Hausefeld of 74 Ludlow Street fainted yesterday morning in the Essex Market Court when her child was returned to her.

Mrs. Hausefeld was standing in the centre of the courtroom, which was crowded, when the decision was given. She kissed the girl fervently and cried: "ou will come back home, my darling, and I'll never let that society have you again."

Then she fell in a swoon. The court was in an uproar as some policemen carried the woman from the room. Friends escorted Mrs. Hausefeld home, clinging to her child.

Mary Hausefeld was among several witnesses the children's society held against George Kessler, a dentist, of 66 Avenue B. Magistrate House discharged Kessler for lack of evidence.

BRIDGE SHIELD FALLS ON HEADS OF CROWD

Collapse of Planking Meant to Protect Public Injures Eight, One Mortally.

LAST RITES IN AMBULANCE

Half-Ton Scaffolding Comes Down on Twenty Persons Watching Work on New Manhattan Structure.

Eight men and boys were injured, one probably mortally, by the fall of the twenty-foot wooden "campier," or shield, which has extended over Sands Street, near Jay Street, in Brooklyn, under the New Manhattan Bridge structure, ever since the work of riveting together the various parts of the big vermilion-painted steel bridge has been going on.

The shield consisted merely of a number of planks which were loosely nailed to two heavy, solid end beams, making a scaffold about twenty feet square. It has stretched immediately under the half-completed bridge at Sands Street, its purpose having been to keep the red-hot rivets from falling on citizens passing through the street below. It was not swung with ropes from the ironwork of the bridge, but was loosely fixed upon several heavy upright stanchions. One of these stanchions apparently had not been sunk deep enough, for at about 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning, when about fifty persons were watching the riveters dexterously hammering the glowing rivets into the rivet holes with the electric hammers, the upright tilted over. A second upright broke shortly afterward from the extra weight on it, and the whole mass of loose timber, weighing about half a ton, came down on the heads of the onlookers.

About twenty persons altogether were knocked down and partly buried under the big wooden shield. Probably they would all have been killed had the planking been tightly nailed to the end beams. But wherever the planks struck a head they tore away from the beams, and the force of the blow was lessened.

Rocco Gallatine, 35 years old, of 79 Gold Street, who was hurt the most, was standing beneath the edge of the shield. He was struck on the head by one of the heavy end beams. It fractured his skull and crushed him. Two other persons who stood beneath the shield were Ferdinand Lee, a clerk, and his father, Daniel Lee, 81 years old, of 1,164 Forty-fourth Street, Brooklyn. Ferdinand had taken a day off to give his old father a day's outing. They had stopped to watch the riveters while on their way to the Brooklyn Bridge. Ferdinand's left ankle was broken and his father sprained his back and arm. Others injured were:

- VINCENT PFEFFER, 50 years old, of 428 Covert Avenue; left knee fractured.
- HENRY JACOBS, 17 years old, of 225 Kingston Avenue; left knee fractured.
- GEORGE TRIMMER, 21 years old, of 169 Sands Street; right knee sprained.
- MYRTLE TOPILO, 10 years old, of 321 Hudson Avenue; scalp wound.
- DANIEL LUTZ, 37 years old, of Farmingdale, L. I.; scalp wound.

None of the bridge workmen was under the shield when it fell, and when the crash came the score of riveters who had been dangling high in the air above the shield and immediately under the bridge's ironwork hurried to the street and began pulling the planks and beams from the injured who lay beneath. Capt. Dooley hurried over with his reserves from the Fulton Street Station and summoned ambulances from the Cumberland and the Brooklyn Hospitals.

The Rev. Father James Dorney of the Church of the Assumption in Pierrepont Street and the Rev. Father John Sullivan, who were walking in the neighborhood, also ran over, and Father Dorney administered to Gallatine the last rites of the Church in the ambulance which took him to the Brooklyn Hospital.

Capt. Dooley arrested George Kasper, the foreman in charge of the bridge work at that point, charging him with criminal negligence. The bridge work there is being carried on by the contracting firm of Oscar S. Daniels of 38 Park Row, Manhattan.

At the Brooklyn Hospital last night Gallatine was said to be dying.

BARGE AND CREW LOST.

Shawmont Broke from Her Tug and Couldn't Be Found.

SAUNDERSTOWN, R. I., Aug. 19.—The barge Shawmont, with a crew of five men, bound from Philadelphia for Portsmouth, N. H., broke away from the tug Valley Forge, off Shinnecock, L. I., early Tuesday morning, and it is feared that she went to the bottom with all hands. Five other barges bound for Providence, Boston, and Newburyport broke away and floated helplessly for ten hours before they were picked up. One man was injured badly and was carried ashore for treatment when the Valley Forge arrived here to-day, bringing the news.

The barges left Philadelphia on Sunday in tow of the tugs Valley Forge and Monocacy. When off Shinnecock they ran into the heavy northeast gale that prevailed along the coast Monday night and Tuesday. The Shawmont, the first barge in the tow of the Valley Forge, broke loose Tuesday morning. At almost the same instant the tow of the Monocacy broke away, and so thick was the weather that the barges had completely disappeared before the tugs could put about. They cruised for ten hours before the Valley Forge picked up the barges Moline, Saucon, Wiconisco, and Meshamang. Soon afterward the Monocacy picked up the Oley. There was no trace of the Shawmont except some wreckage that was floating about, and the Captains finally decided that she had gone to the bottom.

The missing barge was commanded by Capt. Alfred Gould of Cape Cod. She was a schooner-rigged barge of 865 tons net, and was owned by the Philadelphia & Reading Coal Company.

FIREBOAT STUCK IN CANAL.

The Seth Low Fails to Get by the Gowanus Bridge—Sawmill Destroyed.

The fireboat Seth Low, on her way to the fire in the frame factory building of the Union Planing and Saw Mill, at Second Avenue and Eighth Street, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning, got caught in the middle of the bridge and had to lie there helpless while the factory, only a short block away, was burned to the ground. As a result the fire companies had a hard fight on their hands.

The Seth Low responded to the first alarm, steaming through the Gowanus Canal, on which the mill is situated. When within sight of the bridge the fireboat signaled the fire call and the tender started to raise the bridge to let the fireboat pass. The Seth Low had cleared half of the bridge when she became stuck. The machinery went out of order. No matter how they tried and worked, the fireboat's funnels could not get past.

After working for some time the firemen made the best of it and stood idly about while the crack of the flames and the smoke from the fire came to them. The mill was totally destroyed, with a loss of $10,000.

ACTOR A SUICIDE; DOGS GIVE ALARM

ANIMALS MADE ILL BY GAS

No Reason Known for His Deed—Left an Unfinished Letter to His Wife.

For two days two fine collies belonging to Louis Bishop Hall, 42 years old, an actor-manager, who lived on the fourth floor of the Paula Apartments, at 15 West 108th Street, kept other tenants awake with their howling, while their master lay dead in his room, a suicide. His body was discovered yesterday morning. He had a gas tube in his mouth and gas was flowing freely through the tube from a jet in the ceiling.

Shortly before noon yesterday a young man called at the Paula Apartments and told Lind that he wanted to see Hall immediately. He said he had a pass key that Hall had given him, and he was permitted to go to the fourth floor. He opened the door of the apartment, and was met with a rush of gas.

The young man, whose name was not learned, ran to the street and told Policeman Kearney of the West 100th Street Station that he believed the actor was dead in his rooms. Kearney stopped long enough to send a call to J. Hood Wright Hospital for an ambulance and then went to the apartment. He found the door secured by a guard chain, but broke it, and entered.

Hall was found in a bedroom, the doors and windows of which were closed. He was lying on the bed in his underclothing. In the kitchen, separated from the bedroom by a door and another room, the two dogs were still howling. Some of the gas had permeated the kitchen, but the window was open, and neither of the dogs had been affected to any great extent. However, they became very sick later, when taken to the basement by the janitor.

On a table in the room the police found a letter which Hall had started and not finished. It was intended, apparently, for the actor's wife, Fay Wallace Hall, known on the stage as Fay Wallace, who is playing the star's part in "Polly of the Circus" with another company, at present at North Adams, Mass. The few lines of the letter read as follows:

> Fay, Dear: I have just expressed to North Adams the little dress—.

Another letter found in the apartment was from Hall's mother, sent from Norwood, Ohio. It was addressed: "My Dear Children," and told of family affairs, ending with "Your loving Mother."

Teakwood—a half brother to the Graywood collar.
